LUBOVSKA, Who Translates Into Dances the Ancient Hieroglyphic Language of the Egyptians

Newest Wonderful Russian Dancer Is a Reincarnation From the Days of Ptolemy, When She Was an Egyptian Priestess.

As An Exponet of the "Mourning Dance"

A THOUSAND iron throats flung raucous midnight to New York. A thousand times repeated, the message vibrated, lingered, blended in a tangled ribbon of sound; it fluttered along Broadway, threading in and out of gilded doors that swung toward gilded mirrors; it penetrated the Gayest Restaurant and the lights dropped, so revelers sat round tables in pools of shadow. The orchestra stopped on a crashing chord and began to play a humping monotone; a flutter went round the room. Lubovska was going to dance.

She glided across the stage, her white robe billowing. Almost disappointing to those who hadn't seen her before; a little too slender, with dark, plain face and lips that never smiled. Yet she was very graceful; she seemed part of the droning music. . . .

Time rolled back like a curtain. The stars hung low like luminous butterflies. A wind came out of the south, bearing a hint of far-flung spaces. Was sandalwood spicing the air? And the muffled beating—that was the pulsing of the Night Song. Night and a white stone parapet against the sky and a weird strain weaving through the beating of tomtoms. And a dancer, like a spirit of expression, posturing on her white feet, telling of the miracle of Night's descent with her hands, her head, her wonderful lithe form. Egypt worshiped the Night. . . .

It was over. She was only the little Russian dancer—the spirit—too slender, with dark, plain face and lips that never smiled. But by her art they had lived in Egypt through the measure of a droning song. . . .

YOU know the elusive feeling of having been before in a certain place under similar conditions? It settles on you almost any time—when you're in a crowd; when you're alone; sometimes it seems brought about by the presence of certain persons; again it's apparently the result of certain events. A tone of voice, a gesture—and you're puzzling over a half-memory. When did it happen before? Where? Did you dream that it happened?

The "memory" is explained variously. It's all but obliterated impression reestablished by similarities of circumstance, struggling for expression; prenatal impression; a rift in the haze of the present which allows glimpses of previous existence. That last explanation is the one a little Russian girl made to herself when she first learned to dance and soon after she heard of such things as fatalism and reincarnation.

The dances of her own country came to her about as naturally as walking; pleasure and grief, mysticism, religious emotion—she expressed them all in rhythm and movement. Then she began to weave stories into her dancing, working out legends of her race.

About this time Lubovska, being sixteen years old, decided to marry. Domesticity lasted seven months; then her husband died. Being the widowed daughter of a Russian household isn't the most attractive life in the world. Besides the little dancer's art began to call again. So she started out to see the world. She worked her way through Russia to China and sailed rather aimlessly for South America. She found herself in the land of the Incas where the past hangs heavy. Her imagination was fired again; the elusive feeling of having been there before was awakened. She explored the country from corner to corner and her sense of bewilderment ceased to be fascinating and became troublesome. Finally she decided that she'd arrive at no solution of her problem in this place where the problem was most insistent. So she sailed for Mexico.

And in Mexico her dancing immediately found favor. Native dancers tried to pick up her Russian steps. She attempted a slow dance made up of a series of postures that she copied from figures cut on vases and pottery of the south. The effect was sensational. Porfirio Diaz invited her to his court at Chapultepec, and insisted that she remain there while she went on studying the prehistoric Indians.

It was quite by accident that she happened upon a story of ancient Egypt. Someone had presented the court with illustrations and literature on late expeditions; there were pictures of statues dug from the ancient tombs, and descriptions of temples and amphorae telling the history of the country.

And immediately the "feeling" that had become a problem returned more than ever puzzling. She gathered all she could find on Egypt and shut herself up to work it all out. Then there was a three-day period of thought; she saw no one—not even the servant who came to the door begging her to take a little food. She refused everything excepting water. During the three days and the first two nights she sat without moving, staring straight ahead, just thinking. The third night she fell asleep. And during the sleep the answer to all her questions came to her in a dream, she said.

She tells of the dream. "It was all hazy at first," she says. "I seemed to be walking in a sort of moonlight that was like liquid silver. Then, when I could see, I knew it was only the air clear and wonderful as crystal. All around me there were spaces, yellow red, rolling like the waves of the sea. And against the sky line were palm trees growing taller than any I had ever seen.

"I seemed to be walking slowly along a beaten roadway. Sometimes the wind caught up sand, fine and white as powder, and hurled it at me. And I knew I was walking along the boundary of Sahara.

"There was a palace of white marble at the end of my journey and silk covered couches and slaves and all the luxury of past ages. Princes were there, too, under the waving fans. And I danced for them—but as I'd never danced before. I was a priestess and my dance was the expression of joy, for one of them had returned from the war, victorious.

"When I awakened I knew it hadn't been an ordinary dream. It was memory stirring—stirring to expression through a sleep of thousands of years. I remembered other things, too. You see, I lived in the shadow of the Pyramids in the days of Menes, the first historical king of Egypt. I recall, clearly as I remember the events of yesterday, the events of my life there. I was the dancer in his court—the one who expressed the "Mourning Dance" when death visited the household and the "Dance of Joy" when victory or celebration was upon the land. Every gesture meant something then; the manner of holding the hands, the movements of the feet—everything was a definite expression.

"I'm trying to do those dances over again now for the benefit of a materialistic age. Not sensation, but education, is my aim. I feel as though I'm doing something for the glory of my home—Egypt, you know—when I do those dances now."

New fall silk fabrics

For years we have specialized on silks, and in all of our experience as silk sellers we have never gathered together in any one collection such an assortment of much wanted silks as we are enabled to show you tomorrow morning. Of course, to accomplish this, our plans must have been laid long ago.

We had the pre-science to forecast the popular fabric wants and the nerve to buy largely months ahead. We now are maintaining the high standard and have added many novelties unobtainable elsewhere.

Many luxurious suit creations ready tomorrow

A prodigal display of new styles, and a liberal assortment of qualities will be found in the showing here tomorrow. The modes are so diversified, and there is such a versatility of designs, that every woman can find among these new suits something for her individual taste. Every woman of good taste, no matter how small her purse, can find here just the suit she wants.

Luxurious suit creations, ready in every style. Every one fascinatingly smart, every one decidedly modish. Handsomely tailored, beautifully trimmed, they appeal at once to the eye of the fastidious.

The colors are field mouse, mole, plum, dark greens, prunes, as well as rich blacks and every good shade of blue.

The coats show every new mode in a variety of lengths, some are short hip, plaited or braided on the side; longer effects in flare styles, falling in graceful folds; other modes are in box styles; others on semi-fitted lines; others are mannish sport coat styles.

You will be pleased with the new ideas in skirts. We call particular attention to the richness of the fabrics and the abundance of fur trimmings used in the embellishment of these suits. Quantities of them are fur trimmed with fur trimmed skirts; others are braid trimmed, others are embroidery trimmed, and yet others show all three in combination. These new suits ready tomorrow; priced at

$19.75, $25, $29.75, $35, $37.50, $50

New broadcloths

It is conceded that no fabric this season will be so popular; so much in demand, so hard to get, in all good colors, as broadcloth.

The dye situation has made it almost impossible to get broadcloths in proper shades, unless the orders were given at least a year ahead. This we have done, and tomorrow we produce the cloth for your inspection.

--54-in. costume twill backs; yard $1.00
--54-in. chiffon cloth, satin finish $1.50
--54-in. lustrous high finish cloth $2.00

Wooltex Suits Are Irresistible This Season

That Fifth Thing That Sells the Suit.

It is "Know How."

It characterizes all Wooltex suits.

It is there. You see it. The woman sees it. It sells the suit. It makes the purchaser enjoy the wearing of the garment. It brings the comment of satisfaction at the end. And that's what makes repeat business on Wooltex.

"Know How" means the correct interpretation of current style. It includes fit, hang, snap, silhouette and all the other subtle, intangible things that attract.

"Know How" is only one of the characteristics of Wooltex suits. Honesty of materials and workmanship is another. Variety in design, fabrics and colors is another. Style precision, with good sense, is another.

Governor Harris Announces He Will Include Prohibition in Extra Session Call; Five Other Matters Will Be Acted On Measures to Be Submitted in Following Order: First, Appropriations; Second, Prohibition; Third, Western and Atlantic; Fourth, Cotton Warehouse Bill; Fifth, Revision of Game Laws; Sixth, Auto License Tax Law.

CHIEF EXECUTIVE SAYS SESSION SHOULD CLOSE WITHIN TWENTY DAYS

Formal Call for Extra Session Will Be Issued Monday or Tuesday, With November 1 Set as the Day for Convening—Expected Move for Revision of Rules of the House Will Precipitate Big Fight.

Governor Harris will issue his call for the extra session of the general assembly either Monday or Tuesday.

His call will stipulate that the general assembly in extra session shall consider six subjects, as follows:

First—Appropriations, general, special and deficiency.

Second—Prohibition.

Third—Western and Atlantic railroad commission for re-leasing the state's property.

Fourth—State cotton warehouse bill.

Fifth—Revision of the state game laws for the protection of the shrimp and prawn industry of the coast counties.

Sixth—The revision of the state automobile license tax law, forestalling the possibility of the supreme court handing down a decision in cases now pending declaring the present law unconstitutional, and thereby leaving the state without an automobile license tax law.

HARRIS ISSUES STATEMENT.

The governor issued a statement Saturday afternoon, stipulating the foregoing measures which will be included in his call for the general assembly to convene in extra session November 1.

With the enumeration of the matters for the consideration of the extra session, Governor Harris issued a statement explaining his position in including the matters set forth above, and in refusing to include some seventeen other matters which he was asked to include in his call.

This statement declares that the governor believes that all these matters mentioned are emergency. As to his position on prohibition, he states that he has been asked by two-thirds of the members of the house to include prohibition and the statement sets forth that these members believe this legislation to be emergency. Governor Harris further gives as his reason for including this matter which fulfills has been tremendous pressure brought to bear on both sides, that it was the issue at stake that brought about the extra session, and intimates that the subversion of the will of the majority by the minority had bearing in his decision in this matter.

The governor's statement concludes with the belief that this legislation can be concluded in twenty days, unless obstructive tactics are used.

That this could be done is true, but prospects appear to be for a fight which will carry the extra session for many days more than twenty if not for the entire fifty days to which the session is limited by the constitution.

FIGHT IS EXPECTED.

It appears that however the minority may feel now upon their prospects for winning out upon another tactical fight against the prohibition wishes of the majority, they will not die without a struggle. It is known upon good authority that certain leading members of the minority wing feel that it would be folly for them to have fought prohibition to the extent of provoking an extra session and then to lie down before the issue when it is revived in the extra session.

It seems entirely likely, therefore, that there will be another fight on prohibition. How long this fight can hold out or how long the opposition would be disposed to make it hold out is another question.

If the appropriations bill is taken up and passed before prohibition comes up for a vote, it seems probable that the opposition will attempt to hold out against prohibition until the end of the session. At any rate the opposition will make an attempt to have the

Worsham Plans Campaign Against the Boll Weevil; "Big Drive" Begins Oct. 4

E. Lee Worsham, Georgia entomologist, and his scheme for the preparations for one of the most sweeping and effective campaigns which has ever been waged against the boll weevil in any state.

Meetings and measures heretofore have been merely preliminary to the "big drive," so to speak. The real campaign will be put under way October 4.

There is a reason for this campaign. The reason is given by the United States bureau of entomology, whose conservative estimate is that the damage of the boll weevil to Dixie amounts to not less than $200,000,000.

Damage to Cotton Crop.

Of this damage the bureau estimates that $100,000,000 has been done to the cotton crop itself. The other $100,000,000 of damage is to cotton seed oil mills and other by-product enterprises.

Until this fall Georgia was free from any of this burden imposed by the Mexican boll weevil. Georgia had not expected to have to face the pest for two years yet, anticipating that the bug

LEAVE OF ABSENCE BARRED TO DUMBA

United States Makes Clear to Austria That the Discredited Ambassador Must Be Recalled.

Washington, September 25.—Ambassador Penfield at Vienna has been instructed to make clear to the Austrian government informally that the United States must insist on the recall of Dr. Dumba, the Austrian ambassador here, and that his departure "on leave of absence" would not be satisfactory.

From messages exchanged between Ambassador Penfield and the state department it appears that the Austrian government misunderstood the desires of the United States.

It was intimated at first to Ambassador Penfield that the Austrian government might recall Dr. Dumba on leave of absence and might desire safe conduct for him.

Dr. Dumba himself telegraphed for such safe conduct a few days later, informing the state department that he had been granted leave of absence. No action was taken on his request, but it was forwarded to Ambassador Penfield.

Instructions sent to Mr. Penfield were not disclosed, but he has been advised to make it clear that Dr. Dumba's usefulness as the Austrian ambassador to the United States has ceased and that if given merely "leave of absence," he would nevertheless still remain accredited.

The right of a government to demand the recall of an ambassador because of his personal acts is unquestioned under international law, and, according to officials, if the Austrian government persisted in refusing to recall Dr. Dumba, passports could be handed to him.

Later today state department officials said they had received no new communications from Vienna, but expected the situation would be satisfactorily disposed of shortly.

WILSON MAY NOT CALL EXTRA SENATE SESSION

Washington, September 25.—President Wilson probably will not call a special session of the senate. Administration officials said today he had not finally made up his mind, however.

Some senators have urged that the senate be called early that it might revise its rules to facilitate debate before the regular session. Many administration leaders, however, have strongly advised against it.

FIRING WAS BEGUN BY THE MEXICANS

Funston Reports on Recent Fight in Which a U. S. Trooper Was Killed--Raiders Aided by Uniformed Mexicans.

Washington, September 25.—Major General Funston, commanding United States troops on the border, and General Nafarette, the Carranza commander, both disclaim for their men responsibility for the fighting yesterday near Progreso, Texas, in which one American trooper was killed and an officer wounded, while the casualties of the Mexican raiders are not known.

General Funston reported to the war department today that his men had repelled the raiding party which fled across the border under the protection of soldiers "in uniform," entrenched on the other side. The Carranza agency gave out a telegram from General Nafarette asserting that there were no Carranza troops in the vicinity.

Full Report on Fighting.

A full report on recent fighting along the border was made to the state department today by the war department. It stated that in no case have American soldiers begun the firing, but it is admitted that civilians and deputy sheriffs in Texas have provoked some attacks. In yesterday's fighting it is asserted that an armed force invaded American territory and that this party was repulsed.

Officials here are frankly puzzled over the border situation. General Carranza has directed General Jacinto Trevino to make a thorough investigation and a clearer understanding of conditions along the Rio Grande is expected to result. Until authentic information is obtained as to the cause of the raids the policy of the American government will be unchanged and, while raiders will be driven off, American troops will not be permitted to cross into Mexico in pursuit.

The Visit of Gen. Angeles.

Explaining the visit of General Felipe Angeles to Washington, the Villa agency issued this statement tonight:

"General Felipe Angeles wishes to state that he has arrived in Washington as a member of the delegation appointed by the military chiefs of the provisional government to represent it in the peace conferences planned in ac-

MENDENHALL TELLS OF AUTO TRAGEDY

Denies Killing Mrs. Eliot and Daughter—Admits Taking Girl to Chicago. Says Girl Did Shooting.

Clearwater, Fla., September 25.—Declaring that he had nothing to do with the death of Mrs. Bessie Eliot and her daughter, Susie Eliot, who were killed on the old Green Springs road near here on the night of July 2, J. J. Mendenhall, defendant on a charge of murder in connection with the death of the two women, dramatically described the tragedy this afternoon when he went on the stand in his own behalf.

Mendenhall admitted evidence up to the point where he arrived at the new Green Springs road. He supplied the missing link in the chain of circumstantial evidence by describing what took place between the time the car stopped until he was arrested at his home in Clearwater near midnight.

Mendenhall said that Miss Eliot took a revolver from his pocket and declaring that she was tired of the things Mendenhall had been telling her mother, said she would end it all. Mendenhall said he grasped both her wrists, the revolver was discharged four times and Miss Eliot fell back on the seat. The pistol dropped into the road, he said. Mrs. Eliot exclaimed: "Susie, are you hurt?" and when Susie failed to answer, the defendant said Mrs. Eliot swooned.

Objected to Firing Car.

"I said to Stemple, 'We must hurry to Tampa. We must get away from here.' I saw Stemple go to the front of the car where the gas tank was located, come back with a half full of gasoline, throw it into the tonneau and light it."

Mendenhall said he demurred to setting fire to the car, but that Stemple said it was the only thing to do, as they could say the car exploded and the ladies were unable to escape. Mendenhall said he left the scene of the fire with Stemple and left him just before getting in his brother-in-law's car, a few hundred yards from where the tragedy occurred.

Mendenhall explained his presence in old Green Springs road by saying that he went there for an uninterrupted conference with Mrs. Eliot and her daughter, seeking a settlement of charges which he said Miss Eliot had threatened to bring against him in violating the Mann act.

The defendant, using a member of counsel for the state as a dummy, illustrated the manner he was holding Miss Eliot when the first shot was fired. He was standing directly back of her with hand hands raised. It was in this position the defendant said the four shots were fired.

Went to Chicago With Girl.

Mendenhall denied that he had promised to divorce his wife and marry the girl, with whom he is alleged to have had improper relations. He said the divorce suggestion came from the Eliot side. He said he had suggested a monetary compromise.

He admitted that the girl had accompanied him on a trip to Chicago. He denied that he took her or paid her fare. He admitted that he gave her $100.

"They (the women) had asked me for $6,000," he said, "if was not in position to pay that, and hoped to settle for less. I arranged for $1,500 with the Clearwater bank of Clearwater the day before I went to Tampa. That night Miss Eliot agreed to take $5,000."

He told of going with them on the car. He denied instructing the chauffeur to take the old Green Springs road; he said they talked over the matter of money on the drive and that Susie Eliot agreed to settle for $5,000 in future on payment of $1,000."

Girl Wanted Bottle of Beer.

Mendenhall said the party insisted that he carry a bottle of beer in the car for her. That when her mother discovered the beer and Mendenhall told her it was her own fault, she first reproached him and in her anger grabbed his revolver out of his pocket. He said there was a crash of glass, several shots and the women crumpled up in the bottom of the car.

Then, according to Mendenhall, the chauffeur came to the rear of the car and threw gasoline over the women's forms and set it afire, remarking that they had best say there had been an accident, and thus escape trouble. That he protested Stemple's action, but the chauffeur was resolute. That they then went to where Hammock, Mendenhall's brother-in-law, had agreed to meet him by pre-arrangement.

Asked if either of the women was alive when the chauffeur, as he alleged, poured gasoline on them, he said he did not know. He said he did not really know who fired the shots, or where the women were wounded.

His testimony created a sensation. He told his story calmly, except toward the last, when he rose from his seat and spoke in a dramatic manner.

Following Mendenhall's statement an adjournment was taken until Monday, when arguments will begin.

Indicating the return to normal conditions in Atlanta and the southeast, Atlanta's bank clearings for the week just ended showed an increase of 43 per cent over the clearings for the corresponding week of last year, when clearings were more than 40 per cent off.

Last week's clearings showed a total of $14,522,102.34, as against $9,944,-957.75, for the corresponding week of last year, an increase of $4,287,144.56.

Terrific Bombardments Preceded the Advance Of the Allied Infantry

Anglo-French Troops Engage the Germans in Hand-to-Hand Combats in Front of and in the Trenches—In Champagne French Take First Line of German Trenches and Are Still Advancing—British Troops Attacking at Several Points and British Warships Shelling German Positions on Belgian Coast—In the East, Russians Seem to Have Upper Hand Everywhere Except in the North.

London, September 25.—British and French troops have united in a far-reaching offensive movement against the German entrenchments on the western front. One of the most terrific bombardments of the war has preceded the advance of the infantry, who have engaged the Germans in hand-to-hand combats in front of and in the trenches.

The most important action probably has taken place in Champagne, where the French threw thousands of shells into the German trenches, shelters, blockhouses and batteries, and then began a fierce assault on the opposing lines between the Suippes and the Aisne rivers.

The extent of this assault is not recorded in the French official communication, which, however, declares that the first line of German positions on that front has been occupied and that the French are still making progress.

There has been particularly hard fighting also to the north of Arras, where the Anglo-French troops have gained a foothold at several points in the German lines.

BRITISH FORCES STILL ATTACKING.

The German war office officially announces that the Anglo-French artillery preparation was of great intensity and that the long-expected offensive movement by the allies has begun. The Germans, however, claim to have repulsed the British on the northern wing in the vicinity of Ypres in a battle which evidently was with the bayonet. But the British are still attacking northeast and southeast of Armentieres and north of La Bassee canal.

Simultaneously the British warships have opened more or less continuous bombardment of Ostend, Zeebrugge and other points on the Belgian coast and it is rumored that an enterprise is being attempted which may change the whole aspect of the war on the western front.

The activity displayed by the British fleet apparently has not been left undisputed, dispatches from Holland saying that heavy firing has been

BALKANS TURNED INTO ARMED CAMP BUT NO BLOWS YET

GREAT DEVELOPMENTS SAID TO BE IMMINENT

Relief Caused in Greece by Order to Mobilize—Greek-Bulgar War Believed to Be Inevitable — Germany Is Very Bitter Against Rumania.

London, September 25.—The situation in the Balkans is developing with considerable celerity. The Bulgarian mobilization, as well as the Greek, is proceeding and Athens announces that King Constantine and Premier Venizelos have reached a complete agreement as to the course of Greece. This is understood in the Greek capital to provide for the maintenance of Greece's treaty obligations. The treaty which Greece and Serbia signed is said to call for Greek assistance to Serbia should Serbia be attacked by Bulgaria.

So far as the Balkans are concerned, the present crisis is considered more suited to military than diplomatic action, one minister stating that great developments are imminent.

The latest advices respecting the Balkan situation would seem to indicate that Bulgaria is not yet ready to abandon her neutral attitude, although she intends that that neutrality shall be, like that of Holland and Switzerland, armed. A semi-official statement from Sofia says that Bulgaria has not the slighest aggressive intention, but is firmly resolved to defend her rights and independence.

Berlin dispatches say that both the Greek and Bulgarian mobilizations are considered there as measures to bring about armed neutrality, similar to that of Holland and Switzerland.

German newspapers express resentment at the attitude of Rumania, which is regarded as far from friendly to the central powers.

GREEK-BULGAR WAR REGARDED AS CERTAIN.

Athens, September 25.—(Via London.) King Constantine and Premier Venizelos, at a conference today, reached a complete agreement in regard to both

GA. FARMERS RECEIVING GOOD PRICE FOR COTTON

Staple Being Sold Rapidly at Prices Ranging Up to 11 7-8 Cents.

Calhoun, Ga., September 25.—(Special.)—Cotton reached a high water mark for 1915 here today when 150 bales sold for 11⅝c per pound, this being the highest price paid since the outbreak of the European war.

Farmers are selling their crop as fast as it can be picked.

Griffin, Ga., September 25.—(Special.)—The cotton receipts for the Griffin warehouses for the week closing last night indicates the shortness of the cotton crop and are given with comparisons on the corresponding date last year. Receipts for the week, 1,371; last season, 1,224. Shipments, 534; last season, 414. Total receipts for the season to date, 3,689; last season, 2,254. Total stock on hand, 2,576; last season, 2,115. The price for spots was 11¾ cents.

Columbus, Ga., September 25.—(Special.)—Cotton sales in Columbus today reported show that over 12,000 was placed on the market. The price which the staple brought ranged from 11¼c to 11¾c. The cotton was all purchased by local mills, and while most of it was brought the week before some of it was bought straight from the farmers.

Americus, Ga., September 25.—(Special.)—Seven hundred bales of wagon cotton received today at Americus. Warehouses increased stocks considerably, although sales have been numerous at 11¾c a pound. Farmers are marketing the crop rapidly, and within two weeks the fields will be entirely bare of the staple.

While some farmers are holding a portion of the crop for expected higher prices, three-fourths of the current crop has been sold already.

Lawrenceville, Ga., September 25.—(Special.)—The cotton market here this week has been very brisk. The market has ranged from 11c to 11.37c. The crop is going to be very short this year on account of the reduction of acreage and the bad weather in the early spring. The cotton on gray land is the poorest in many years. A good many farmers are selling their staple and paying their rents while others are holding for higher prices. More foodstuffs were raised at home this year than in quite a few years, the farmers, as a rule, are in a very good condition, much more so than twelve months ago.

THREE PRISONERS CLEAN ONE WINDOW AT CITY STOCKADE

In spite of the fact that Recorder George E. Johnson began his term on the bench with the golden rule as his rule, $32,009.29 in fines given in his court has been turned into the city treasury since January 1, and Superintendent Tom Lanford, in charge of the stockade, announces that he has so many prisoners to take care of that he has been forced to put three at work cleaning one window.

The police court of the city of Atlanta annually turns in about $50,000 to the city treasury, and it is thought by Recorder Johnson that this year's sum will exceed that amount.

TWO SAVINGS BANKS OF CHILDREN LOOTED BY DARING BURGLAR

While the family of S. E. Gordon, of 131 Prairie avenue, was at a moving picture show last night, a burglar entered the residence and after taking two savings banks belonging to the children, also stole the receipts of a slot gas meter, and a silk shirt valued by its owner at $10.

Officers Wylie and Evans answered the call and were informed that one bank contained $1 in change, the other $15 and the gas meter $3.

Entrance to the home was made through a side window. Officers believe the robbery took place about 5 o'clock.

Useful Information About Atlanta Given In Brinsmade's Guide

Brismade's Atlanta Guide, just from the press for September, contains the usual amount of useful information about state, county and city buildings, officers and institutions, and offers the new 1915 Atlanta map. There are other new features, the usual street car and steam time tables. Withal it is a useful pocket companion to the traveler as well as to the constant resident of Atlanta.

Blowing for Nashville, Ga.

One of the livest organizations in Nashville, Ga., is the brass band, which adds much to the festive spirit of the city's gala occasions. Composed of eighteen pieces, and with each instrument played with unusual skill, the band is a much more elaborate organization than is found in most places much larger than Nashville.

Fiftieth Birthday of Uninterrupted Success Is Celebrated by the Atlanta National Bank

By Benjamin M. Blackburn.

"Unique" is the one word that may be used to indicate the relation that the Atlanta National bank bears to the upbuilding of Atlanta and the rehabilitation of the south after the city and the section had been devastated by the armies of the north, in the war between the states.

Celebrating, in this September month of 1915, the fiftieth birthday of uninterrupted success, it remains to the future a record of courtesy, confidence and conservatism that cannot be exceeded by any banking institution in America.

And to this shining motto: "Courtesy, confidence and conservatism," is due the phenomenal success of an institution which is of Atlanta and of the south a distinctive part.

Courtesy, the ever rare essence that causes one to rise above the perplexing worries of business to feel at home; confidence, the strong reliance in self which has been communicated to the patron in a way to show that he is a part of the common trust; conservatism, the last link in the unbreakable chain, which means to stockholder and patron a firm purpose to preserve that which is legitimately gained.

On these three rocks have the organizers and loyal their successors builded an institution that is safer than its vaults, stronger than its investments and more enduring than its splendid house of granite at the corner of Whitehall and Alabama streets.

For there is the indefinable something which supports the Atlanta National bank that is stronger than safes and sounder than material securities.

Confidence the Keystone.

Confidence then is the keystone in the arch of courtesy and conservatism, that supports this structural magnificence, known throughout the world of finance as the Atlanta National bank.

And these three central designating pillars of strength have sustained this institution since it was organized for business by that master financier, General Alfred Austell, September 2, 1865.

Emerging as a phoenix from the ashes of a desolated southland, it opened doors for business December 19, 1865, with a capital stock of $100,000.

General Alfred Austell was the financier selected as president of the first national bank to be organized in the cotton states. (It is significant that it was Paul Romare, bookkeeper, and later president, who received the money, which was placed in a crude iron safe, locked by keys, such as are used for china closets and sideboards. "It is a wonder," said President Currier, in retrospective humor, "that some one did not lift the deposits, safe and all, on some dreary night and walk away with the bank."

However, throughout its career the institution has never been visited by a robber or a safeblower.

Coincident with the story of the early history of the Atlanta National, the following report is of peculiar interest in comparison with those evolutional changes that have builded this institution into one of the strong banks of America:

I, William H. Tuller, Cashier of the Atlanta National bank, do solemnly swear that the above statement is true, to the best of my knowledge and belief.

W. H. TULLER, Cashier.

State of Georgia, County of Fulton—Sworn to and subscribed before me this 13th day of April, 1868.

PAUL ROMARE, Notary Public.

In looking over this report that showed $61,956.75 in loans and discounts, and comparing the same with the close of business September 15, 1915, set up as $6,246,815.49, one is simply dazed by the tremendous growth of this most wonderful institution, in which all Atlantans and all Georgians are interested, and for the continued prosperity of which all southerners pray.

The retrospect of the life of the Atlanta National bank is most pleasing. The anecdotal history of this life would be charmingly elevating and soulfully helpful. Its historic association with men and measures, with home-builders and industries, with merchandise and railroads would, if written, make an invaluable chapter in the history of Georgia and the south.

Bank's First Ledger.

With reverent head I bended over the first ledger kept by this bank, to glean from its pages some of the names that with this helping agency, started the world talking of that potential essence, the Atlanta spirit. The old volume was in splendid preservation and contained record of all business which twenty-eight larger volumes are now required to enter.

In turning the book, a half century in age, my eyes first fell upon the name, George Hillyer, that most pleasing raconteur, whose life was closely associated with all that interested Atlanta, and that of Captain Evan P. Howell, a most attractive personality. Hillyer, Howell and Austell were so inseparably commingled, that though not related, they were constantly remark upon seeing them together, "par nobile fratrum."

Prosperous Depositors.

Samuel Bard was another depositor.

Next I turned to Beerman & Kuhrt, Mr. Beerman was one of the first lessees of the Kimball house.

Logan Edgar Bleckley (Judge), a man who belonged to the philosophic culture of ancient Greece.

W. H. Richarton, a successful merchant and an uncompromising political opponent.

Chapman, Rucker & Co., truly associated with our business life.

Thomas H. and H. M. Clark, inseparably linked with Atlanta's best history.

Cox & Hill, known socially and in business far and near.

Marsh Willis, a great Georgia developer, whose name is but necessary.

Laurent DeGive, an ethical gentleman and loyal friend.

J. W. English, now president of the Fourth National bank.

Ferguson, Peters & Co. T. J. Hightower, of this firm, is still here and still in active business at the age of 86 years.

Fain & Parrott. George W. Parrott, of this firm, a wealthy citizen and a true friend, still resides here.

L. P. Grant, for whom Grant Park to the children of Atlanta, and to whom a fitting monument must yet be erected.

W. D. Grant, a leading capitalist.

Levi Cohen, who we all remember pleasantly.

George Hillyer, now railroad commissioner.

W. A. Hemphill, strong man, one of the framers of the Constitution.

S. M. Inman, Atlanta's friend, who did too much.

M. C. & J. F. Kiser, a strong and upbuilding firm of patriotic Atlantans.

Langston, Crane & Hammock, solid merchants.

McMillan & Snow, known over Georgia.

Samuel Meyer, old and honored name.

John C. Whitner, one of our most respected citizens.

T. G. and Wm. Westmoreland, the best in materia medica and in surgery.

James R. Wylie, a strong and solid force.

W. P. Orme, the able treasurer of the Atlanta and West Point Railroad company. This company still has its account with the Atlanta National bank.

Columbus Payne, an old and honored county treasurer.

Jno. Neal, postmaster.

Georgia Air Line railroad.

Redwine & Fox, headquarters for good people.

J. P. and S. P. Richards, worthy name yet in business.

Trustees of the Georgia State lottery.

William H. Fuller, a valued citizen.

W. R. Venable, whose name is a worthy legacy to Atlanta.

Lucius J. Gartrell, successful criminal lawyer, and Luther J. Glenn, likewise prominent in the practice of that time.

Others, many others, might be named from the gray-covered book now in the vaults of the oldest national bank in the cotton states. The list presented is sufficient to impress the reader of today with the strength of material on which a great city and a great institution were builded.

Of Historic Interest.

In this connection it is of historic interest to note that during the panic of 1873 this bank, through New York connections, formed by General Austell, its president, succeeded in organizing a fund to move the cotton crop of the south, thus saving the southern farmer from ruin.

Throughout its career the Atlanta National bank has exhibited a broad interest in the financial welfare of the southern producer.

The officers who have served this bank and those who are now in its service, together with dates of their election, are herewith taken from a beautiful little volume of recent print:

Upon the death of General Austell, in 1881, James Swann succeeded to the presidency; R. H. Richards was elected vice president; Paul Romare, cashier, and George DeSaussure, assistant cashier. The directors at this time were James Swann, R. H. Richards, W. H. Hill, Paul Romare, H. T. Inman, W. W. Austell and A. E. Thornton.

On may 14, 1884, over a few months previous to his death, Mr. Richards resigned and Mr. Romare succeeded to the vice presidency. On the same day Mr. C. E. Currier, now president of the bank, entered the service in the capacity of assistant cashier, and on June 28, following, was elected cashier.

On May 1, 1893, President Swann died, and on May 3 Mr. Romare was elected to succeed him. Mr. Currier was then made vice president and A. E. Thornton second vice president. The directors at that time were Paul Romare, A. E. Thornton, H. T. Inman, S. M. Inman, F. E. Block and C. E. Currier.

Mr. Romare died on February 3, 1904, and on February 17 Mr. Currier was elected president; H. T. Inman, vice president; H. S. Bloodworth, cashier; G. R. Donovan and J. S. Floyd assistant cashiers.

Mr. Bloodworth died on March 26, 1906, and on April 16 Mr. Donovan was elected cashier. In November, 1910, Vice President Inman died, and at the annual meeting in January, 1911, the following personnel of officers was elected: C. E. Currier, president; F. E. Block and J. S. Floyd, vice presidents; G. R. Donovan, cashier; J. S. Kennedy and J. D. Leitner, assistant cashiers. These gentlemen represent the present management of the bank.

The changes brought about by the death of President Austell gave to the bank a continuation of strong official heads that held the institution in the forefront of conservative building.

Mr. James Swann, a man of strength and character, succeeded to the office of presidency, and Mr. Paul Romare, the bookkeeper, was promoted to cashier. Mr. Romare, a native of Sweden, was later elected president, filling every office from bookkeeper to the highest executive position, with an ability and a fidelity that really distinguished him and the institution. He was one of the truest men I ever knew, a strong, beautiful character.

President Currier.

Mr. Charles E. Currier, who succeeded to the presidency on the occasion of the death of Mr. Romare, was a most fortunate and popular selection. He was the intimate friend of his predecessor, and having served with him as cashier and assistant cashier, was well equipped for the first office in the bank. His administration has been marked by signal growth, and under it the institution has bought and moved to the present magnificent office building, at the corner of Whitehall and Alabama streets.

Associated with this splendid executive officer in the active management of the bank are Mr. J. S. Floyd, the able and popular vice president; Mr. G. R. Donovan, cashier, a gentleman of obliging courtesy and rare ability; Mr. J. S. Kennedy, whose positive worth is exhibited in twenty years of official service, and Mr. J. D. Leitner, likewise a gentleman of fidelity and efficiency. Messrs. Kennedy and Leitner are assistant cashiers.

While all the men in this institution are loyal, there is intelligence and genuine worth, this article would not be complete if there was special mention of Mr. D. B. DeSaussure, the efficient man at the head of the collection department, who, since its inception, having been with the bank thirty-six years and, Mr. Thompson, the thoroughly competent gentleman at the note desk, with twenty-eight years' service, and Mr. Leitner, the quiet and accurate paying teller, with a service of twenty years to his credit. Each of these gentlemen has won honorable promotion.

In all there are 54 active workers in the bank, exclusive of the officers—an increase not more significant than that represented in the volume of business, increased capital and growing profits.

Until 1903 the capital stock of the bank was $100,000, when it was increased by a stock dividend to $500,000. An additional $500,000 was issued at par in 1909, thus increasing the present capital stock $1,000,000. The surplus and undivided profits at the present time amount to $7,353,886.06, and there has been paid in dividends $2,000,000, while the total profits of the bank since its organization is $10,000,000.

No more impressive presentation of the truly wonderful success of this bank can be made than the statement that its assets have increased more than a hundredfold since the organization, these now being more than ten million dollars.

A study of the career of the Atlanta National bank is an inspiration. Its record through seasons of panics has never been questioned. Its every act of its obligations with promptness, and throughout these seasons of prosperity it has never been known to refuse to promote the interests of a worthy depositor.

It is a genuine pleasure to pay this merited tribute to an institution that is so interestingly associated with the happiness and prosperity of all the people of the commonwealth, and to express the wish that it may round a century of uninterrupted success.

LIMBS SWOLLEN AND STIFF

In Hospital and on Crutches for 11 Weeks, Sylax Puts Local Man on His Feet Again.

One startling statement after another is being made regarding the remarkable results obtained from Sylax, the new preparation that is accomplishing such good results in Atlanta and vicinity. Peter Lamar, employed by the Karwisch wagon works and living at No. 81 Auburn avenue, this city, says: "I think Sylax the greatest medicine on earth, and why should I not, it has put me on my feet again after suffering for eleven weeks as no tongue can tell. I was in the hospital and had been on crutches all this time. My limbs were swollen and stiff and they said my trouble was rheumatism and stomach trouble. I was not able to get in and out of bed by myself, I stated, and I was so sensitive to the touch that I could hardly bear the weight of my clothes. My stomach gave me much concern while I was down also. Could not retain the lightest of food and after eating them would have fullness and great amount of gas would form, causing shooting pains around and near my heart gave me much uneasiness. I was told that it all came from my stomach and kidneys. My brother-in-law heard of the good that Sylax was doing others who had similar trouble as myself, purchased two bottles of Sylax and two bottles of my medicine was used faithfully, as all the family had so much confidence in it. By the time the first bottle of each was used I began to improve. I have just finished my second bottle; now feel fine. The only sign of rheumatism I have left is a slight swelling in the left knee, but I can go anywhere I desire and feel that I will soon be myself again."

G. G. Payne, who is personally meeting the public at Coursey & Munn's drug store, corner Marietta and Broad streets, declared that our faulty methods of living were responsible for most of the stomach troubles. Sylax, he concluded, builds up the constitution and thereby disease and weakness and physical overwork, quickens convalescence and is a sound source of comfort to those who are ailing. Sylax can be shipped on the receipt of the purchase price, $1.00, or three bottles for $2.50. Sylax Oil, 50 cents, three for $1.25. Address orders to Coursey & Munn, sole distributors for Sylax in Atlanta.—(adv.)

NEGROES ENTER STORE AND ROB PROPRIETOR

Two unknown negroes held up S. H. Goldstein in his store, 2 Kennedy street, at 11 o'clock last night and robbed him of $7 and a watch. They escaped and have not been apprehended. Entering Goldstein's store as he was about to close up, one of the negroes asked the old man for a cigar. As he bent over the show case, the black ordered him to hold up his hands. The money and watch were taken from Goldstein's pockets.

Fourth Ward Voters, Attention

We, the undersigned, voters of the fourth ward, are zealous in our desire to re-elect Hon. John W. Darlinger on Thursday, September 30. It is rare, indeed, that any ward in any city can claim the services of a man for a councilman, who is so richly endowed with brains, skill and influence. For thirty years he has helped to build Atlanta with true Atlanta spirit. Mr. Darlinger has proven by the presence felt in the city council since January 1914, his value as a constructive. He is fully qualified to protect and develop the growing interests of our ward.

As chairman of the finance committee he has given much of his time in handling his duties in such an able and efficient manner. Mr. Darlinger is a clean man in every one of the word, he is quiet and unassuming in bearing, honorable and true in the confidence of all who know him. He is devoting a large part of his valuable time directly for the benefit of our ward, and he can be depended upon to "deliver the goods" in the future.

We believe it to be the solemn duty of each and every voter in the fourth ward to vote for Mr. Darlinger. Mr. Darlinger has made, and give him a fair chance to complete the important work now in hand.

MAKING WAGONS

Darsey is still making wagons—all styles of high-class quality—and has finished deliveries, with or without tops. Darsey feels so good when he is building a wagon that he just can't help putting his spirit into it, and the consequence is—there is no good a wagon as any man's money can buy. Asking Darsey for a catalogue is almost like sending him an order. Try it.

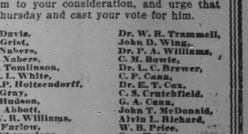
To the Voters of the Sixth Ward



We, the undersigned citizens of the Sixth Ward, are among many of those who heartily endorse Dr. Ed T. Mincey, candidate for Council from the Sixth Ward in the approaching primary.

Dr. Mincey has resided in Atlanta for a number of years and has taken an active interest in all civic matters. He is already closely identified with the interest of the city, being at present a member of the Board of Health, from the Sixth Ward, and during his tenure of office has rendered satisfactory and efficient service.

Dr. Mincey is successful in his profession as a dentist, and in private life is clean and honorable in all his dealings; he is allied with no faction, but is fair, is against strife, vigorous in attention to all matters undertaken by him, and in favor of a greater city and an efficient management of all her various departments, to the end that the Tax Payers may get value received for their money.

We heartily commend him to your consideration, and urge that you go to the polls on next Thursday and cast your vote for him.

TAKES THE PLACE OF DANGEROUS CALOMEL

New Discovery! Dodson's Liver Tone Acts Like Calomel But Doesn't Gripe, Salivate or Make You Sick—Don't Lose a Day's Work—Harmless Liver Medicine for Men, Women, Children—Read Guarantee!

Ugh! Calomel makes you sick. It's horrible! Take a dose of the dangerous drug tonight and tomorrow you may lose a day's work.

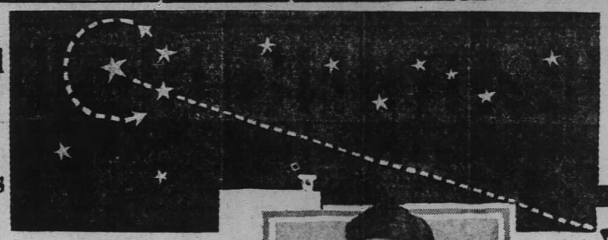
Calomel is mercury or quicksilver, which causes necrosis of the bones. Calomel, when it comes into contact with sour bile crashes into it, breaking it up. This is when you feel that awful nausea and cramping. If you are sluggish and "all knocked out," if your liver is torpid and bowels constipated or you have headache, dizziness, coated tongue, if breath is bad or stomach sour, just try a spoonful of harmless Dodson's Liver Tone tonight.

Here's my guarantee—Go to any drug store and get a 50-cent bottle of Dodson's Liver Tone. Take a spoonful and if it doesn't straighten you right up and make you feel fine and vigorous I want you to go back to the store and get your money. Dodson's Liver Tone is destroying the sale of calomel because it is real liver medicine; entirely vegetable, therefore it can not salivate or make you sick.

I guarantee that one spoonful of Dodson's Liver Tone will put your sluggish liver to work and clean your bowels of that sour bile and constipated waste which is clogging your system and making you feel miserable. I guarantee that a bottle of Dodson's Liver Tone will keep your entire family feeling fine for months. Give it to your children. It is harmless; doesn't gripe and they like its pleasant taste.

SCIENCE AND NEAR-SCIENCE UP-TO-DATE

Variable Bodies Are Misnamed and Their Rays Lost to Earth When Other Luminaries Pass, if Latest Theory Announced Proves True



IS THE secret of variable stars—the greatest unsolved problem of astronomy—to be revealed by an amateur astronomer of 19 years?

In a little second story observatory in Hyde Park Frederick C. Leonard, a student at the University of Chicago, is seeking the solution of this century-old puzzle. If he is as successful in this as he has been with other projects during his career as a seeker after knowledge for the sake of knowledge it is as good as solved.

The explanation of most variable stars, as offered by Leonard, is that they are caused by the passage of a smaller and less luminous body between the telescope and the star being observed. The brilliance of the more distant star is dimmed during the period of its partial eclipse, returning to its normal state after the passage of the smaller body. Because of this changing condition it is classed as a varying star.

"This is not the only theory of variable stars, but it appears to be the most plausible solution of the problem presented by many of them," said Leonard when asked about this phase of his work. "It is probable that some stars of varying brilliance are of the sort that are cooling, or dying out, and their actions are similar to those of a dying ember. On occasions they flare up with fresh fire, then slowly become dimmer.

"Close observation of certain of the variable stars reveals the fact that their changes come about at certain fixed periods. They are dimmed at regular intervals and resume their former brightness in an equally definite manner. These stars evidently are affected by the passage of a smaller and less brilliant body before them.

"The 'dying out' stars are less regular in their variations and, as a consequence, their changes could not be brought about by the passage of another body before them. It seems much more probable that the changes are those of a cooling star."

Although Leonard is but 19 years old he is far from inexperienced in astronomy. Ever since the age of 7 he has been a student of the heavenly bodies. Beginning with the bits of astronomy that could be picked from a Webster's dictionary, he has pursued his subject through all the roads and byways of knowledge, as a student at the University of Chicago, as a founder of the Society for Practical Astronomy, as a member of the British Astronomical Association and as a member of several other scientific bodies.

Leonard was but 14 years old when he founded the Society for Practical Astronomy. The organization today boasts 108 members and publishes its own official organ. The Monthly Register of the Society for Practical Astronomy, of which he is editor, finds its way into some of the most remote corners of the globe.

The observatory in which the young astronomer now works is of his own designing and is perched on the roof of his home. It is a structure of wood and canvas, and is equipped with a four-inch equatorial telescope and accessories that permit of photographic, micrometric and spectroscopic investigation.

As a scientist Leonard possesses all the prejudices of a scientist against a "mercenary use of his knowledge." His quest for knowledge is solely for the purpose of increasing the sum of human wisdom. Astronomy, he admits, is the most impractical of the sciences, but at the same time the most interesting.

"It is unlikely that any astronomical discovery ever will have any important bearing upon the arts or the practical things of life," said he. "A man who enters the field of astronomy with the idea of earning a livelihood with it is doomed to disappointment. Its study is purely a search for knowledge for the sake of knowledge."

Stars Do Not Die to Be Born Again to Brighter Life, Says Young Astronomer

Water Weed Proves Valuable

WATER hyacinth, which incumbers the lower Mekong and other waters of Cochin China and Cambodia to such a degree that it has become a positive menace to navigation, may become prominent in the commercial world. Experiments have proved it to be a rival of rattan, while it can also be put to other uses.

The fiber produced at an experimental plant has been used in the manufacture of rope, twine, matting, paddy sacks, boxes and chairs, sofas, cradles and other articles of furniture. It has been mixed with silk to form a somewhat stiff but durable cloth.

As soon as the plant is gathered it is stripped of leaves and passed through a fiber crusher until the fiber is completely separated from the pulp. The fiber is then gradually dried in the shade. When carefully treated it is strong, flexible and elastic.

Rope, textiles and furniture made of it, when treated with carbolineum, become impervious to the ravages of the weather or of white ants and insects, so damaging to furniture in that locality. The chairs and sofas made of this fiber are incomparably more elastic and comfortable than those made of bamboo.

May Blot Out Whirlpool Rapids to Secure 2,000,000 Horse Power

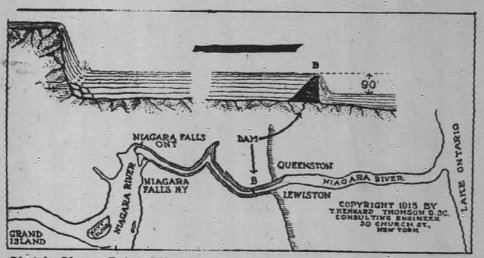
PLANS have recently been submitted to a New York state commission which, it is claimed, will make the Niagara River the greatest power-producing river in the world. The plan also promises to place Niagara Falls on the map as a lake port.

It is claimed that by the new scheme 2,000,000 electrical horse power will be obtained by damming the lower Niagara, a plan which, it is thought, will not mar the scenic grandeur of the famous falls.

The power development will be located not above the falls, where all the trouble has been centered, but a good six miles below. Devil's Hole Rapids would have to be eliminated, but that is the sole loss which Niagara would suffer, and the power plants above the falls would not be in any way affected.

The plan includes the erection of a colossal dam across the gorge, three-quarters of a mile south of Queenstown. The river is very narrow here and natural conditions offer the best possible opportunity for a dam of great strength. The dam would be at least ninety feet in height, a little less than one-third of the height of the steep banks of the gorge.

Such a dam would impound the waters of the river straight back to within about a mile of the falls. This would submerge the present Whirlpool Rapids, the Whirlpool and the entire lower rapids beneath a long, narrow lake. The lower end of this lake, pouring over the proposed dam, would create a smaller Niagara. The drop of the river from the falls to Lewiston, seven miles below, is about 100 feet, providing at least for the development of 2,000,000 horse power.



Sketch Shows Point Where Proposed Dam Will be Located and Map of Niagara River.

The scheme also includes a ship canal to connect Lake Ontario with Lake Erie, a project which has been dreamed of for many years. It is claimed that it would be feasible to place a lift lock at the foot of the proposed ninety-foot dam in the gorge, which would carry lake vessels up to the higher level from Lake Ontario. This would permit them to steam direct to the City of Niagara Falls.

Then at the foot of the falls themselves would be two enormous lift locks, one on the American and one on the Canadian side of the cataract. The American lock would lift vessels up to the high bank. There they would find passage in a short ship canal to the upper reaches of the river and thence on to Buffalo and the great lakes.

On the Canadian side the lock would lift the vessels to the top of the first bluff. There a second lock would carry them to the higher level and thence by canal to the Welland Canal.

The scheme would cost about $100,000,000.

Traveling Bag Life Preserver Latest Invention

A NEWLY invented life preserver is to all outward appearances a traveling bag which, like other valises, carries shirts, razors, etc., but which, like no other valise, can, in case of emergency, be expanded into a lifelike union suit of waterproof trousers and coat, conveying their owner through the most perilous seas.

The bag, the inventor avers, can be made to suit the purchaser as to shape, size and material. A brown waterproof cloth covers the bag, and the suit for the arms, legs and body is of the same material. It folds compactly into the bottom of the suitcase, leaving ample room for anything one wishes to carry. The body of the case is equipped with a window and two air valves which may be locked from the inside.

The side flappers or armholes may or may not be used, for they do not add or detract from the buoyancy. The arms may, however, be used as a propeller. The bag when in the water need not be closed, for it will not sink.

The position of the occupant is one of perfect comfort, for he may stand upright, lean on the arms or rest on the back or sides without danger of tipping. Food enough to last a number of days can be taken into the compartment. In short, it is an emergency hotel.

In case of accident to the outer covering there is an emergency air bag which may be blown up from the inside. In the bag one may remain in the water for from four to five days without danger of sinking or death by exposure. But in these days of the perfected wireless it is seldom more than a few hours before rescuers are on the scene after the sinking of a vessel.

Edison's Newest Device

THOMAS A. EDISON has invented a machine that has been named the "telescribe." It combines the dictograph with a telephone-recording device. There is a small electric motor operated from the regular lighting circuit and driving at constant speed a revolving barrel that carries a phonograph cylinder and a micro-recorder that fits over the cylinder and is connected by wire with a telephone extension box.

To make a record of a telephone conversation it is necessary only to remove the receiver of the regular desk telephone from its hook and place it in the socket of the telescribe, take up a small receiver that is part of the telescribe and give a call to the exchange.

Paste Straw to Make Wood

INFORMATION has been made public in Lyons, France, concerning an artificial wood which, it is stated, will be of great value as a substitute for natural wood. The new product has been found, after several years of study and practical experiments, the most recent of which have given eminently satisfactory results.

The process consists in transforming straw into solid material having the resistance of oak. The straw, after being cut into small pieces, is reduced to paste by boiling, to which certain chemicals are added.

When the paste has been reduced to a homogeneous mass it is put into presses, and planks, beams, laths and molding of all sizes are readily made. The new material can be sawed like natural wood. As a fuel it emits a bright flame and little smoke. It is further stated to be adaptable to the manufacture of match stems.

New Limbs of Powdered Bone

A NEW method of treating fractures has just been announced by Dr. H. J. Kauffer of England. He dries and grinds to powder a piece of fresh bone, and this powder he mixes to the consistency of a paste with petrolatum, and properly sterilizes the mixture. After the ends of the fractured bone have been brought into proper relations and the location ascertained by digital examination and X-ray, a syringe having a long needle is filled with the warmed bone mixture and the needle is inserted to the seat of the fracture, and as deeply as possible between the fractured ends.

The contents of the needle are then injected as the needle is slowly withdrawn to the surface of the bone, when the injection must stop. This procedure may be repeated several times at different angles, thus filling the entire space between the fractured ends with the petrolatum and bone cells, which act as a focus for the formation of new bone.

Ideas Wanted For Submarines

SOME of the best thought of the naval engineering profession is now engaged in trying to unify the motive power of the submarine—that is, to do away with the oil engine and the battery-driven electric motor, and to substitute for it perhaps an ordinary boiler with oil fuel for running on the surface, and the so-called secondary "soda boiler" for running submerged.

Many changes are afoot in submarine design, notably a more minute subdivision of the hull to withstand the maximum water pressure likely to be encountered; a change in the cross-sectional shape to get better results in the way of stability and ease of handling, and more room for storing fuel and air; the perfecting of the signaling apparatus for use under water; an increased power of offensive; some way of providing the boats with light armor and with light disappearing guns, and with two and three propellers.

Wage War to Win Camphor

THE camphor tree grows only in the most mountainous parts of Formosa, inhabited by head-hunting savages, whom none of the successive invaders of the island have been able to subdue. These savages are quite alive to the value of the trees, and fiercely opposed to all attempts to get possession of the forests.

Since the Japanese took the island after their successful campaign against China in the '90s they have been carrying on a carefully conceived plan of gradual penetration. They make paths six feet in width through the virgin forests; every 120 yards stands a guardhouse, and every fourth or fifth guardhouse is a small fort intrenched and defended by wire entanglements.

Telephonic intercommunication, machine guns, and all the resources of western military science are employed. In spite of these elaborate precautions, the loss among the camphor gatherers amounts to hundreds of lives annually.

STARS and STORIES of the MOVIES

Conducted by L. E. Winchell.

'UNDER SOUTHERN SKIES' AT THE SAVOY THURSDAY

Leading Part in Lottie Blair Parker's Famous Novel Enacted by Mary Fuller.

The Savoy theater hereafter will adhere strictly to the rule of charging five cents only for all attractions, no matter what the attraction may be. The programs from now on will include all of the leading screen playing in strong releases and at least once each week, on Thursdays, a big Broadway feature will be presented. This coming week the attraction will be Mary Fuller in "Under Southern Skies." The picture is in five acts and is a beautiful drama of love and romance of the ante-bellum days of the south. The picture was taken in and around Savannah, Ga., and is replete with southern atmosphere of a charming nature. The story is taken from Lottie Blair Parker's famous play and is as follows:

Lelia Crofton, a southern girl of 18, is loved by two young men, Burleigh Mayor and Steve Daubeney. The story opens in 1860 on Major Crofton's plantation in Louisiana. Lelia's mother eloped when she was two years old and Major Crofton has hidden her shame from his daughter. Seeing that Lelia loves Burleigh, Daubeney tells her that although her mother was partly colored, he is willing to marry her. Lelia is about to marry him out of shame at her ignoble birth, when Major Crofton learns of the accusation. He attempts to shoot Daubeney, but the latter escapes and joins the southern army. Lelia's mother, deserted by the man she ran away with, comes back and is forgiven by Major Crofton, who thus permits Lelia that her mother was white.

Burleigh also joins the southern army at the beginning of the war and is saved from death at the hands of Daubeney's gang of guerrillas by Lelia, who makes a leap of 25 feet on horseback into a river with Burleigh. Daubeney deserts from the army and later attempts to shoot Burleigh on the day of his marriage to Lelia, but is killed by one of Burleigh's men as he is pulling the trigger.

AT THE ALPHA.

Steinway Four Engaged for Coming Week.

Another musical attraction of drawing power will be on the bill at the Alpha this coming week, The Steinway Four. These clever entertainers have appeared in Atlanta before and always play to crowded houses. They have been referred to as the south's greatest harmony singers.

An excellent program of pictures has been provided as well. Monday "The Broken Coin," fourteenth episode, will continue to interest those who have been following the story. Tuesday Harry Carey, the man who was so successful in the Broadway production of "Montana," will be shown in "Just Jim." This is a story of throbbing heart interest and has been highly praised by those who have seen it.

"Mrs. Plum's Pudding" tells the adventures of a penniless but self-reliant widow whose home is blown sky-high one day by an oil gusher. Mrs. Plum loses her house cat in the accident and some family heirlooms, but her property nets her nearly $7,000,000, and thereafter she travels on the sunny side of Easy street. Her ups and downs in socalled society are screamingly funny. W. Grahame Browne, Miss Tempest's leading man, is one of England's foremost actors. He first appeared on the London stage at the Grand theater, Islington, in 1895, as Frink Gibson, in "The Reckoning." Later he toured England in several metropolitan successes. He first appeared in America with the Olga Nethersole repertoire company and has since appeared in more than fifty big American and English productions, among them "Caste," "The Marriage of Kitty," "A Thief in the Night," "Vanity Fair," and with Marie Tempest in Scotland.

Al Christie, who produced "Mrs Plum's Pudding," has had nearly eighteen years of theatrical experience, although still on the sunny side of the thirties. The first picture he directed was a series of Mutt and Jeff comedies. That was seven years ago. He has been turning out high-class, refined comedies ever since for the Nestor brand of the Universal. Al ranks Lee Moran and Eddie Lyons, his comedy team, among the best in the picture game. Lee is one clever boy, when it comes to the slapstick stuff, but put him in curls and skirts and he is one gasping, choking, rip-snorting scream as a female impersonator. He has had plenty of experience on the legitimate stage, playing the juvenile lead in "The Golden Girl," and "The Girl and the Kimona," and other country-wide successes. He has been a vandevillain in his time, but reformed when Al Christie met him. Lee plays the "detecatiff in "Mrs. Plum's Pudding."

Film Flashes.

The next picture for Mr. Leonard will be "That Lass O'Lowries," adapted from Mrs. Frances Hodgson Burnett's novel. In it Helen Ware will be featured under Mr. Leonard's direction.

Tina Marshall, for several years leading woman for Edwin Stevens, is now playing in that capacity in the Universal film, "The Main Inside," Broadway Universal play, featuring Edwin Stevens.

In spite of the fact that many legitimate companies who have gone in for pictures have made attractive offers to George Fawcett to act for them on the screen, the noted character actor has signed to appear in a Broadway Universal feature, entitled "Tainted Money."

Edna Aug, known on Broadway as a shining light in comedyland, is now in Universal City, conferring with Al Christie on a play in which she is to star for the Universal.

Famous Stage Stars Now in Silent Drama

ATLANTA MOVIE PATRONS TO SEE PROMINENT PLAYERS THIS WEEK

AT ALAMO NO. 2.

Leading Screen Players Are Booked for Week.

Betty Nansen, Robert Warwick, Yansci Dolly, Theda Bara and Anna Orr are numbered among the stars to appear at Alamo No. 2 this week. Betty Nansen comes Monday in "Should a Mother Tell." Robert Warwick, Tuesday, in "The Face in the Moonlight," Yansci Dolly Wednesday in "Call of the Dance." Theda Bara Thursday in "The Devil's Daughter," and Anna Orr Saturday in "The Masked Dancer." Anna Orr is the wonderful danseuse who took Broadway by storm in several of the big productions in which she has recently taken part. "The Masked Dancer" is a powerful three-act Broadway Favorites production and shows Miss Orr at her best.

There are few stories which present in so fascinating and thrilling a manner some of the vital problems which women are sometimes called upon to solve, as "Should a Mother Tell?" as picturized by William Fox. The mother in the story is a woman in an ordinary station of life, the parent of a beautiful girl.

She is suddenly thrust into a situation where action is demanded and where such action must either blight her daughter's life and honor or her own good name, conscience and her duty to God.

On witnessing this picture one is confronted with a problem that seems, at first, to be unanswerable. It seems almost unjust for frail woman to be called upon to face such a question.

On Tuesday the five-part William A. Brady photoplay showing Robert Warwick in "The Face in the Moonlight," will be shown. World Film corporation is releasing the picture, which is the first offering in the United States of the renowned French director, Mons. Albert Capellani. A dramatist, an artist, a scholar, a poet and an all-round intellectual, Mr. Capellani has produced a convincing thriller in Robert Warwick in "The Face in the Moonlight."

Robert Warwick is the bright particular star of the photoplay, and has an enormously powerful part to undertake. He has the support of such experienced screen articles as H. Cooper Cliffe and Montagu Love. Stella Archer makes her first appearance on the screen with Robert Warwick in "The Face in the Moonlight."

The action of the play takes place in France at the period of the first French empire. Napoleon had just come into supreme power, he is heard of in the photoplay; but he is not seen.

Magnificent costumes and settings, allied with good photography makes this feature a pleasing offering to the eye, the cast and the acting, as well, as the story, constitute Robert Warwick in "The Face in the Moonlight," a singularly powerful costume play.

Billy Garwood and Violet Merserau have a hard time eluding "The Wolf of Debt," in the drama, written by Hugh Weir and produced by Jack Harvey. Some remarkable photography, showing rain and lightning storms, make a notable feature.

AT THE REGENT.

Many Really Great Stars on Program Monday.

It is often said that the public life of a screen star is shorter than that of any other national figure. The prize-fighter drops from the limelight when age overtakes him. The musician, the artist, the novelist and the politician each has his day, and his day is generally longer lived than that of the moving picture favorite. It may be said with equal truth that the fistic champion winds up his career when he meets a better man and, in much the same manner, this is true of the others. The moving picture star, however, is a public pet, dependent for his or her popularity not so much upon intrinsic personal merit as the flicks' likes and dislikes of the theater-going public. But the screen star possesses an advantage denied the others. He can improve with age if he is not spoiled and, by absorbing experience, adds steadily to his laurels. And this is just exactly what seldom happens.

Hence, the Biograph company under whose tutelage many of the really great stars have been made, was the recipient of many earnest requests from photoplay fans for a revival of the beautiful dramas and comedies directed by David W. Griffith and Mack Sennett. The response to this was the formation of programs representing the best of the old favorites featuring such stellar players as Mary Pickford, Lillian and Dorothy Gish, Blanche Sweet, Edwin August, Fred Mace, Mabel Normand, Mae Marsh, Henry Walthall and many others.

Music at Strand.

The program of special musical numbers arranged for the Strand orchesta for the coming week is as follows: Monday, Quartette from Rigoletto (Verdi); Wednesday and Thursday, march, "Stars and Stripes Forever" (Sousa); Friday, "La Paloma" (Yradia); Saturday, Entre-act, gavotte, (Gillet). On Wednesday, during the first reel, the orchestra will play one of the latest hits from Broadway, "Down in Bom Bay" (Carroll).

AT THE GRAND.

"Voice in the Fog," With Donald Brian.

Mr. Brian stepped into fame when he originated the role of Prince Danilo, in "The Merry Widow." For the past season he has been the star in "The Siren," "The Marriage Market" and "The Girl From Utah."

In "The Voice in the Fog" Mr. Brian will appear as a young Englishman who inherits a title but who transfers its use to a professional crook for three months in payment of a gambling debt. The adventures and hardships of the young nobleman during this three months makes one of the most interesting stories yet shown on the screen. A valuable necklace is the prize for which the crook schemes, and its disappearance and return lend a mysterious touch that is appealing.

An American heiress plays an important part in the production, and the young nobleman, who has been under suspicion as the mysterious purloiner of valuable jewelry, is saved from imprisonment by the finding of the necklace and the capture of the real culprit.

An ever-changing scene is shown on the screen, from the society functions to the ballroom and the gambling den, and through it all runs a human interest touch that touches the heart.

With John Mason and Hazel Dawn in "The Fatal Card," Friday and Saturday, and "Tillie's Tomato Surprise," the great Lubin comedy, with Marie Dressler in the leading role, Wednesday and Thursday, the Grand has one of the most interesting and diversified programs of the season and should do a record business.

In the mountains surrounding Universal City the battle between the forces of Gretzhoffen and those of Grahaften is still waging bitterly. Most of the battle scenes which they have taken both by day and by night are to be used in the fourteenth and fifteenth installments of the "Broken Coin" serial.

'WONDERFUL ADVENTURE' AT THE STRAND MONDAY

William Farnum Plays Dual Role in Latest William Fox Release.

The recent William Fox release, "The Wonderful Adventure," starring William Farnum, known to fame as the $1,000,000 actor, will be the opening attraction at the Strand theater for this week. It is a story of unusual power and deep human interest.

William Farnum, who appears in a dual role in "The Wonderful Adventure," is America's favorite screen artist and matinee idol of the day. Mr. Farnum is the highest salaried actor of the screen today, drawing $100,000 a year for his work. Mr. Farnum was the first of the great legitimate actors to forsake the stage, but he says today that he never was more contented nor happier in his work.

He was an immediate success when the first picture in which he appeared was released. Quickly one great feature after another followed, and in each instance Mr. Farnum's drawing power was apparent. Great features in which this noted actor has caused a perfect sensation are "The Spy," "A Gilded Fool," "The Plunderer" and "The Bondman," Hall Caine's most famous book and drama.

In "The Wonderful Adventure," however, Mr. Farnum can be said to be at his best in character portrayal. In this magnificent feature picture he plays a dual part. He is in one character a rough and rugged man of the plains whose life has been cast in rough and thorny places, and in the other character he is a well-to-do business man, who stands high in the community, whose home life is ideal and happy.

"Trilby," one of the most popular book and play ever presented internationally, comes to the Strand Wednesday and Thursday as cinimatized by the Equitable Motion Pictures corporation, with the queenly screen artist, Clara Kimball Young, and Wilton Lackaye as co-starred in the role of "Svengali" in the legitimate production, in the leading roles, supported by Chester Barnett, Paul McAllister and an all-star cast.

"Trilby," produced under the able direction of Maurice Tourneur, had its initial run at the Forty-fourth Street theater in New York, and is voted by "those who know" as being one of the best five-act feature productions yet seen.

When George Du Maurier first wrote "Trilby" it took the world by storm, becoming the "best seller" of the times, and up to this present day the popular novel did not decrease twenty per cent in sales.

"Trilby" was first presented on the stage in London in 1895, where it met with great success, since being revived both here and abroad at least once every two years.

When the Equitable Motion Pictures corporation decided to produce the film version of "Trilby" they decided to make it as great or even a greater success, sparing no pains or expense to make this their first production, worthy of "Trilby's" preceding presentations.

Under the direction of Maurice Tourneur, of the Equitabel staff, with Clara Kimball Young and Wilton Lackaye, two of the screen and stage's most popular dramatic stars in the stellar roles, supported by Chester Barnett, Paul McAllister and an all-tar cast, "Trilby" surpassed the expectations of all concerned.

For Friday another one of the Gold Rooster plays has been secured. "The Spender." All of the Gold Roosters so far shown at the Strand have been very popular, and coming as they do on Friday of each week they are many who never miss each week's release. From the advance notices coming out from the east this promises to equal in merit those which have already been presented.

The recent opening of "Via Wireless" at the Strand was very successful, and as a result repeat dates have been received for a repeat date on this picture the management has arranged to show it again on next Saturday.

AT THE VICTORIA.

Mary Pickford Monday in "The Eagle's Mate."

Mary Pickford starts the week at the Victoria theater in a novel and typical characterization, "The Eagle's Mate," by Mary Pickford Chaplin, in five reels, and produced by the Famous Players' Film company. It is a drama of splendid emotions and heroic action.

Tuesday the photo drama sensation, "The House of Bondage," will be shown. This picture is in six parts and has been endorsed by critics throughout the United States. The offering for Wednesday will be Mrs. Fiske in "Erstwhile Susan Burbervilles," the play which she so successfully produced on the same stage. Thursday Herbert Kelsey and Effie Shannon will be shown in "After the Ball," taken from the song of the same name which enjoyed so much popularity a few years ago. On Friday the attraction will be the popular photoplay star Carlyle Blackwell, in the famous musical comedy drama, "The Spitfire." A melodramatic farce in four reels and full of laughs and thrills, it involves the theft of a yacht, a case of jewels and a hearty laugh.

The play entertained thousands for many years. Its humorous situations, together with its absorbing dramatic element, makes the subject certain to please both lovers of light drama and those who prefer the big heart-throb of tense, overpowering incidents. The episodes in this film productions, the laughs and thrills are carefully balanced, so that at no time is it difficult to determine whether the subject is to be serious drama or just the comedy or serious drama, until at the very last flash the culmination of the fascinating plot brings the conviction that it is only real life after all.

Carlyle Blackwell is an ideal type for the role of Monsieur Beaucaire, from most of the action revolves. In both the lighter moments and the big dramatic situations, he portrays a perfect characterization.

J. P. MacGowan, who produced the "Hazel Kirke" and "Helen" railroad stories for the Kalem company, is now a Universal director.

HALLOWE'EN BALL.

The announcement of the annual harvest and hallowe'en ball at the Piedmont Driving club the last of October is a source of social interest, the ball generally marking the real opening of the fall season, when people are assembled for the first time after summer vacations. The ball will, as usual, be on a very elaborate scale, and the guests will wear fancy costumes. There will be a feature menu, feature decorations and many plans are being made for the pleasure of the guests. The company will be limited, because of the desire of the club management to have a number that will guarantee satisfactory service at the dinner to precede the ball.

THE ITALIAN DINNER.

Not beneath sunny skies like those of Italy, nor was the atmosphere what poetic minds associate with Lake Como, but rather under a clear sky illumined by silver moon, did the members of the Capital City club enjoy the Italian dinner-dance on the roof of the clubhouse Wednesday evening. The flower boxes all showed blooms the fall breeze had not chilled; hanging baskets had their place, and the Italian flags and colors fluttered from the columns of the pergola. The tables had bright-colored flowers as decorations, and flags as centerpieces, and over the entrance door on the roof was a miniature representation of Mount Vesuvius—wonderfully realistic, declared the guests who had seen the real thing. During dinner two clever interpreters in Italian costume sang and danced.

There was an old-time artist who played the accordion to the delight of the guests, and then the street organ was wheeled out, and the pretty girl dancer and her partner looked after the production of the music. Then for fun; there was the scissors grinder and his machine, the usual bell announcing his approach. The menu was most satisfying, and included a light soup, a paste with creamy sauce, which proved to contain spinach, and minced meat, highly seasoned; then chicken with a rich sauce; macaroni delightfully prepared with cream and cheese; a lettuce salad with Italian dressing and frozen cream and cream cake.

Fall Frocks.

The sudden approach of fall and the fact that but few women had had time to select their fall costumes, brought many different toilets, though none the less pretty ones, and new coats and wraps. Mrs. Wycliff Goldsmith wore with a bottle green chiffon and silk gown, black picture hat, the short skirt full and graceful and especially adaptable for dancing; Mrs. Ida Howell Cramer wore a beige-colored voile gown, dancing length, her hat of black and white and black and white trimming the gown. Mrs. Ulric Atkinson wore a becoming gown in black net, with black hat. Mrs. Alfred Kennedy wore a military blue gown with hat to match. Mrs. John E. Murphy wore a Parisian toilet of ivory-colored cloth, the Russian coat braided and trimmed in beaver. Her toque was of velvet and beaver, and her high boots were embroidered in steel. Mrs. George Howard wore a dark blue chiffon and silk gown, her black hat trimmed in purple and rose flowers. Mrs. Henry Clay Bagley wore a long coat velvet coat over a white net and taffetas gown. Mrs. Robert Wessells wore a Frenchy toilet in black chiffon satin, the short coat opening over a blouse of creamy lace and chiffon. Her black toque was close-fitting and she wore a boa of white feathers. Miss Lucile Kuhrt wore with a white chiffon cloth gown, trimmed in bands of silk, a smart top coat of white taffetas, and a blue velvet toque trimmed in white flowers.

Mrs. Paul Goldsmith wore a smart suit of black silk striped in satin, her coat to match. Mrs. Beaumont Davidson wore a white cloth and lace gown. Mrs. John S. Cohen wore a long ciel blue silk coat over a white lace gown, her hat of black tulle. Mrs. George Ballenger wore a blue chiffon and silk gown, her toque trimmed in white wings.

Mrs. Harvey Johnson wore a taupe-colored silk gown, her hat to match. Mrs. James Williams wore a white cloth gown trimmed in fur, her velvet hat trimmed in fur. Miss Catherine Ellis wore a long brown silk coat over a cream-colored lace gown, her brown tulle hat trimmed in cream-colored roses. Mrs. John Evans wore a white chiffon and lace gown, with long coat of black chiffon, her hat of black velvet.

FROM A MAN'S POINT OF VIEW.

Fashions from a Man's Point of View would indicate that at last all women have determined to defy Father Time in the matter of fashion, and to purchase their gowns no longer according to "Misses' Styles," "Young Ladies' Fashions," or "Things Suitable for Matrons." They are all going to be governed by the same models.

"What impressed me most during my recent visit to New York, was that you could not tell when you walked behind a woman whether she had slipped out of school for a walk on the avenue, or whether she was a grandmother out with her favorite grandson," said a worldly young man recently returned from the north.

"Going into a theater, for example, and having to walk slowly for your turn at the ticket office, you would behold what appeared to be a company of school girls, out with men of all ages. But getting in front and looking back you would meet the countenances of women of all ages, but all wearing gowns of school girl length. Some of them wore the regulation high boot, laced or buttoned, and I could see about two inches of sock above the boot."

"Socks, only?" he was asked.

"Didn't they have on the flesh-colored stockings, and then the rolled socks?"

"I didn't see any flesh-colored socks, he stated positively, "but I was no there gathering fashion notes!"

"The skirts are very full and stan out," he continued.

"They puff out here in an old-fash toned way," and he made a gesture t indicate the old pannier drapery.

"You mean scalloped," I interrupted

"No, I mean skirts were actuall shorter on one side sometimes than o the other, and many were shorter in the back than in the front.

THE BIRD CAGES.

"Then, many of these little girl-women carry bird cages instead of shopping bags," the young man continued. "Sometimes the cage contained birds, but just as often they did not."

"Did the men carry little chicken houses, instead of canes?" I asked "and what about the new dances?"

"There is very little to be said now about dancing," he answered.

"The fad of roller-skating is growing every moment. I noticed that at the Hippodrome, at all the vaudeville performances, there was always the roller skating feature with experts, wonderfully arrayed, doing wonderful stunts on skates, and I worked out the idea in my mind that roller-skating had started the rolled-sock fad, and the fur-trimmed boots, for all the pretty skaters wore fur-trimmed boots.

ROLLER SKATING.

"They are not skating in the roof gardens?" I ventured.

"No, not yet, but dancing as the craze of the moment is on the wane. People were not so enthusiastic as they were this time last year, and I predict that the first man to start roller skating in a roof garden will make a fortune.

"What else did I notice about fads and fashion?

"Well, women are smoking more and more in public, and it is no use to charge it to the young and frivolous, to the chorus girls and foreigners, for I saw middle-aged, conservative women, with their husbands, and with family parties, smoking cigarettes on the roof gardens and in the cafes. They are very elaborate about it.

"I noticed a young woman who seemed very popular, very carefully remove her cigarette, place it on the ash tray and dance off with her partner. On her return she found her cigarette, freshly lighted it and continued to smoke with her companion.

"What do I think of it?

"Why, I think if women wish to smoke, they have a right to do it."

"How would you like to see the young lady, whose escort you were that night, smoking?" was here asked.

"Why, I would throw her—why, that is a different thing," was the reply.

"SWEET SALLY" WILLIAMS.

The News, of Jackson, Miss., comments upon the marriage of Miss Williams, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. John Sharp Williams, to Lieutenant Bunkley, of Sandersville, Ga., as follows:

"Sweet Sally Williams, as she is so often called by Daisy Fitzhugh Ayres, the Washington corresondent, has chosen her father's country home in old Yazoo as the scene for her marriage at an early date, to the young naval officer whom she has chosen out of all the wide brilliant official world wherein she lives as her father's daughter in the nation's capital, and friends have received the following invitation thereto:

"'Mr. and Mrs. John Sharp Williams invite you to be present at the marriage of their daughter, Sally Shelby, to Joel William Bunkley, lieutenant United States navy, on the afternoon of Wednesday, the sixth day of October, nineteen hundred and fifteen, at half after 5 o'clock. Presbyterian church, Yazoo City.'

"Naturally this event will be anticipated with the greatest interest, and many friends from out-of-town and from other states will be present to witness the marriage.

"This wedding claims the affectionate interest of many friends and relatives of the groom-elect in Meridian, among these being his aunt and uncle, Mr. and Mrs. G. A. Goodyear, who will be present at the wedding.

"Miss Jeanette Bunkley, of Sandersville, Ga., sister of the groom-elect, who often visits here as the guest of her cousin, Mrs. Charles Demere, will participate in the wedding."

While in the city he was entertained at dinner by Dr. and Mrs. James N. Ellis, at Stone-henge, and by Mrs. J. K. Ottley at tea.

Appointing the Wedding Day

There are many little perplexities connected with functions carried out upon the wedding day, but there is none so important as sending out the right kind of invitations.

This is an item that should never be given to the "bargain counter," where lack of knowledge of correct forms or cheap material are the dominating features.

If there is ever a time when the bride should appear well to her friends it should be through the proper appearance and verbiage of her wedding cards; to fail upon this point is a mistake that induces unfavorable comment.

The safest plan is to have these very important representatives of one's taste executed by an engraving house that has an established reputation for the manufacture of such articles. The name of such a maker upon the envelope is a guarantee that establishes beyond doubt the correctness of style.

For over twenty years past the imprint of the J. P. Stevens Engraving Co., of Atlanta, has stood for the very finest products in the engraver's art. Material is of the highest grade, the forms of expression are those required by the strictest rules of social dictum; their engraving has that finish and balance that is only attained by engravers of skill, and shapes are right-up-to-the-minute style. Upon request this house will send out samples that will exhibit the superiority of its work.

heard on many occasions during the week to the north of Amiand, which would indicate that, if the Germans have not actually undertaken to oppose the British ships, part of the German fleet ventured out to learn what was happening.

TIDE OF BATTLE TURNS TO RUSSIANS.

The battle tide on the eastern front seems to be swinging more with the Russians, except in the north, where Dvinsk is under heavy attack, with the Germans making headway in their drive.

Stubborn battles were in progress, when the latest official statements were issued, in Volhynia and Galicia, the Russian arms appear in the ascendancy, with Lutsk again in their possession, they have Dubno in the toils, and complete the reclaiming of the Volhynian fortress triangle.

Fruits of the recent Russian successes in Galicia and Volhynia are reported in the passage through Kiev between September 7 and 9 of 40,000 Austrian prisoners on their way to interior camps.

Neither entente allies nor Turkey report recent happenings of moment in the Dardanelles, but the latest statement from Constantinople records minor successes for the Turks near Anafarta and Seddul Bahr on the Gallipoli peninsula.

GERMANS MOWED BY RUSSIAN FIRE.

Petrograd, September 25.—(Via London, September 26.)—The Russian official statement tonight says:

"The cannonade in the Riga region has become much more intense in places, the Germans using asphyxiating shells.

"A fierce battle has been fought along the whole front of the Dvinsk positions between Dvina and Lake Drisviaty, where the Germans, supported by the hurricane fire of their artillery, delivered repeated desperate attacks, all of which were repulsed. Certain trenches changed hands frequently.

"During an attack along the Dvinsk road, in the district of Lake Lavkez, near Novy Alexandrovsk, the enemy first succeeded in entering several trenches, but afterwards was ejected by a counter attack. Gathering themselves together, the Germans again rushed in compact columns upon our trenches, but received such artillery, machine gun and rifle fire at close range, they retired in disorder. Twice attacks of the nature subsequently were repeated in the same direction.

"The artillery fire here was extreme in its intensity, but all attacks were repulsed and at some places the Germans, in confusion, left their enormous losses were enormous. The heaviness of our losses, due to the desperate fighting, is the best proof of the valor of our troops. During one counter attack a Russian detachment in the heat of the fight was surrounded by Germans, but cut its way out and joined the other troops.

"There is no notable change on the front from Oschmiany to Pripet. Isolated actions have occurred in the districts of Novogrodek and Baranovichi. According to later reports, during the engagement near Logishin the 61st German corps suffered very severe losses and during its disorderly retreat was made prisoners of seven officers and 500 unwounded men and captured a cannon and seven machine guns. We also captured many German wounded, but the number is not yet established.

"In a hot engagement near Dubno for the villages of Khorupagne and Golovtchitza our troops by a frontal attack captured 30 officers, about 1,600 men and a machine gun. This attack was delivered under the enemy's hurricane artillery fire which subsequently forced our troops to retreat towards the river Ikwa.

"In the region adjoining Galicia the enemy launched a series of attacks near the village of New Alexinetz, but our troops by a counter attack overthrew him and took prisoners over 3,000 men and captured four machine guns.

"Later reports show that the prisoners captured in the Lutsk district number 138 officers and about 6,000 men, not 80 officers and 4,000 men as stated in the preliminary estimates."

BRITISH WARSHIPS SHELL ZEEBRUGGE.

Amsterdam, September 25.—(Via London.)—British warships have bombarded the Belgian town of Zeebrugge this morning. Three ships were engaged. The flashes of their heavy guns were visible on the coast.

London, September 26.—The Amsterdam correspondent of the Exchange Telegram company says that the Handelsblad's correspondent on the island of Cadsand, province of Zeeland, Holland, sends the following account of the bombardment of Zeebrugge, Belgium, by a British squadron:

"An English squadron of five large warships and twenty-five smaller vessels opened fire on Zeebrugge at 6:30 o'clock in the morning. Only two of the big ships fired from what appeared to be 28 centimeter guns. The German batteries replied with lighter guns, but not until 10 o'clock.

"A big column of smoke at 7 o'clock arose above Zeebrugge,' apparently caused by shell fire from an English vessel in order to establish a better target. The English also employed their guns but the shots did not reach the coast and probably were directed against submarines.

"Peace once more reigns."

ALLIES ATTACK ON WEST FRONT.

Paris, September 25.—The French official statement tonight says:

"On the Belgian coast our batteries have co-operated in the bombardment by the British fleet of the German positions at Westende and Middlekerke.

"The British troops have attacked with success enemy positions to the west of Loos and Hulluch. Our troops, operating in conjunction with the British army, delivered to the north of Arras an energetic attack which permitted them to gain a foothold at several points in the enemy's lines.

"Between the Somme and the Aisne fighting by means of torpedoes and bombs has been going on in the sector of Canny-Sur-Matz. Our artillery exploded a munitions depot in a fortified house at Berry-au-Bac.

"In Champagne and after a new and violent bombardment of the enemy's shelters, blockhouses and batteries of wire entanglements,

CITY GOLF TITLE PLAY IS NOW ON

TEN FLIGHTS FILL FOR CITY TITLE

"Little Bob" Jones Turns in Low Score With 80—One Hundred and Fifty-Five Qualify.

By Dick Jemison.

Ten flights filled for match play in the golf tournament for the championship of the city of Atlanta, which is an annual event over the Druid Hills Golf club course, 158 players entering and 155 returning qualifying scores.

"Little Bob" Jones added to his golfing reputation yesterday by leading the large field with a splendid score of 80. His father was second with 81, and G. W. Adair and Clark Donaldson were tied for third with 83 each.

The qualifying list numbered less than last season when eleven flights were filled, but this was believed due to the fact that there has been a tournament at one of the local golf clubs about every week during the summer, and quite a few of the players of the city were tournament tired.

There were fourteen scores returned in the qualifying round better than 90, with an even 90 getting in the first flight, as against a 93 in the tournament held a year ago.

Ninety to 95 scores qualified in the second flight, 95 to 98 in the third, 98 to 100 in the fourth, 100 to 102 in the fifth, 102 to 105 in the sixth, 105 to 110 in the seventh, 110 to 112 in the eighth, 112 to 114 in the ninth and 114 and over in the tenth.

According to the rules of the tournament, the players must complete their first round of match play by Tuesday, though the committee hopes that as many as possible will play their matches today to relieve the congestion later in the week.

The second round of match play must be completed by Saturday, Sept. 30, the semi-finals by October 2 and the finals by October 3. The finals in all flights will be 36 holes.

No handicaps apply in the first flight. The losers in the first match play round in the first flight will form a defeated eight, which will also play from scratch; no handicaps apply in all the other flights.

There will be prizes to the winner and runner up in each flight and to the winner of the defeated eight in the first flight.

The pairings in the ten flights are as follows. In the first flight, the qualifying scores appear after the players' names. In the other flights the handicaps with which the players will play with through the tourney are shown.

Weaver Made the Goat.

We had been counting on the five-game series between the Red Sox and White Sox in Boston just before we arrived to help the Detroit club to win the championship. The Chicago team is a strong one, and we felt sure it would win at least two out three games of the five. But I am reliably told that the Red Sox used the same tactics against Rowland's club in that important series that they employed against us. They were so successful and got Weaver's "goat" so effectively that he had to be taken out of the line-up before the end of the series. The crowd, led by the opinions of the newspaper reporters, roasted Weaver so hard that he was finally put on the bench.

"CITY OF KULTUR" ROASTED BY COBB

Two Sport Writers Blamed for Inciting Riot During Tigers-Red Sox Series. Other Kultur Incidents.

By TY COBB.
(World's Champion All-Round Ball Player.)

When my club went to Boston to play the last series of the season with the Red Sox we all knew that the American league championship and a chance at the world's series depended on the outcome if either team could win a decisive victory. We met the most unsportsmanlike reception from the newspapers, the ball club and the fans a team has ever received since I have been in the big leagues, as far as I know. And this is supposed to be the "City of Kultur."

I blame the whole riot (and I am calling things by their right names) on two baseball reporters on Boston papers. After the Boston Red Sox came home from their last western trip, these two reporters began stirring up the local fans against the Detroit club by articles in their papers. These reporters are not real newspapermen, but more fans and followers of the Red Sox than reporters. These two men spoke to thousands through their papers each day and ran the stories that put the Tigers in bad with the Boston public.

Of course, the Tigers fought the series hard when the Red Sox played in Detroit last, and the two Boston men covering the series for their papers at that time told some things then that were supposed to have occurred. Naturally we did all we could to win the series fairly and put the Red Sox pitchers up in the air. They were very important games. Once I led the fans in cheering for Cady, behind the Red Sox catcher and waving my hat. I have seen Tris Speaker do this with the Detroit players on the field, when at home, leading them in rooting by waving his arms as a college cheer leader does. This is all a part of baseball.

Won by Pegging at Batters.

It is baseball history that Boston won the pennant from the Athletics in 1912 by "pegging" at batters. The players boast even yet that their pitchers beat the Athletics in this way.

"We kept Collins and Baker on the ground all the time," declared one of the pitchers to me not after that season. "As soon as they would get up, we would 'knock them down.'"

He meant that the pitchers would keep throwing the ball at the heads of the Philadelphia players, especially the two stars, so that they would have to drop flat to avoid being hit, endeavoring in this way to drive batters away from the plate. The Red Sox pitchers always aim at the best players on the opposing team. And when you meet Carrigan's club you can hear the chorus from the bench:

"Dust him off there!"

By this they are urging the pitcher to shoot fast ones at close to the batter that the ball dusts him off. There is no excuse for this, unless a hitter is crowding the plate, which none of our batters do. The Red Sox hit more batters and "peg" at more than any other team in the league. It is Carrigan's policy, and they boast of it.

The Detroit club has fought the Red Sox all the way this season, and clinched it. The Boston boys tried to "ride" a team all the time. In the last two series we played with Carrigan's club in Detroit we fought back the "ride" them from the bench. This got the "goats" on both of them. The old Athletics were never a gang to do much "riding" and, for this reason, the Red Sox were always a hard team for Mack's strong club to beat. The Red Sox started after Manager Jennings last year, but in the end, after all them every time the team has been in Detroit this season, one the Boston papers once in awhile, and I know the two reporters who are so partisan to Boston began pounding the lawn for our reception as soon as the Red Sox returned from the west. They (the reporters and players) all realized that the last series with the Tigers would be the crushing blow and would probably decide the pennant race.

Holds Reporters Responsible.

I hold these two reporters personally responsible for the whole city of Boston losing its reputation for fairness and for the attack on me by a few fans inspired by the reporters' articles they wrote. Except for the quick work of the police, the result might have been very serious. I should think the two reporters would regret their articles now.

As a result of this hot preliminary newspaper campaign against the Tigers, we all got the same adverse atmosphere as soon as we arrived in Boston for the big series. We were received as if we were playing before rowdies. Boston is generally fair. I can't make that out from the fact that many fair fans, but all the followers of the game have lost their reputation for fairness through the actions of the few who, aroused by the newspaper articles, made up the mob. The reception certainly surprised us.

Since I have been in baseball I have never seen an owner become such a rah rah as does Joseph Lannin, the owner of the Boston Red Sox. Winning this pennant was life and death with him. I passed his box at the park after that first game was over and when the fans tried to mob me, and his attitude toward me was astounding. Many of the players did, players who "knocked" him to me in the past. I never believed the stuff until that last series in Boston. Now I believe it is all true. He certainly loses hard when things go against him.

ATLANTA NATIONAL AMATEUR CHAMPS

By Frank Taylor.

By a count of 7 to 3, the Atlanta National Bank yesterday defeated the Agogas in the deciding game of the series between them for the amateur baseball championship of the city.

The game Saturday was, with the exception of one inning, even more closely contested than any of the others, and the large crowd of spectators that were out to witness the festivities were treated to some unusually good playing.

The game wound up one of the best series ever staged by two amateur teams in the city for a city championship. Five games were necessary, two of which resulted in tie affairs.

Golightly's pitching was the main feature of the game Saturday. He allowed the Agogas but three runs. Nine hits were made off his delivery, but they were widely scattered.

Swift and Dawes did the best work for the Agogas, Lester and Ewing were the stars for the bank team with the stick.

SOUTHERN BELL TENNIS TITLE IS WON BY P. H. COX

Defeating M. A. Candler in the final round of the Southern Bell Telephone and Telegraph society's tennis tourney, Percy H. Cox captured the singles event.

The match was a closely-fought affair, and five hectic sets were required before it was settled. The score was 5-7, 6-4, 2-6, 6-4, 6-2.

A large crowd of spectators witnessed the match, and were treated to some excellent tennis.

Cox is an unusually good player, and besides coming to Atlanta on several tourneys in Nashville, Tenn., his former home.

Cox, by winning the tourney, gets one leg on a handsome three-year cup offered by the society.

The tourney will be an annual event.

Hugh S. Fullerton, recognized as baseball's leading dopester, has been engaged by The Constitution to dope out for its readers, the probable outcome of the world's series between the Boston Americans and the Philadelphia Nationals.

Each day of Mr. Fullerton's articles will appear in Monday's Constitution, and daily thereafter, until the first game of the series is played, he will dope out for The Constitution a fans what he believes of the rival teams chances.

In Monday's article Mr. Fullerton will take the fans in on the dope and explain to them how he arrives at his method of comparing players and teams. He has evolved a system of dope down to mathematical exactness that borders on the uncanny.

Mr. Fullerton invites the fans to get out their pencil and paper and dope along with him. In this way the fans now will find themselves some agreeing with him, and disagreeing. That is as Mr. Fullerton would have it.

The fans will find Mr. Fullerton's method both a new and an interesting. He arrives at his different result in a different way from any other dopester, and his percentages are so accurate that the fans after figuring along with him, wonder why they never thought of such a method.

Of course, Mr. Fullerton's doping connection with the game, his intimate acquaintance with all the players in the game, his ability to size up and know any layman to discuss the ability of this or that player. He is in close touch with things and capable of telling what this or that player will do.

By Mr. Fullerton's system, The Constitution readers will be taken over the whole ground of doping out the series. He will compare the rival pitching staffs as a whole, the infields as a whole, the outfields as a whole, the pitching staffs as a whole, the catching staffs as a whole, and then the teams as a whole.

But he goes even further. By his system he claims that he can show how well a team can be expected to get off a certain pitcher, how many hits an individual batter will get off a certain pitcher, which pitcher will prove most effective against this or that batsman.

He goes even further. He has the ability to announce that he can predict, everything being equal, physical condition, knowledge of players, batting orders, etc., what the score of what the number of hits and what the number of errors will be in any given game, when he has the exact line-up to work with.

To the fans that are skeptical of such ability, The Constitution only asks that they take up the challenge and prepare and figure along daily with Mr. Fullerton and see whether or not they arrive at the same conclusions that he does. We think you'll disagree. If you do, that's fine. That's what Mr. Fullerton expects you to do, but agreeing or disagreeing, you'll find Mr. Fullerton's series the most entertaining, most instructive and most accurate series of articles in advance on the world's series that will appear anywhere.

Be sure to read the first article begins Monday. Be sure and read this. You've got to get in on the ground floor to understand the system. He starts with the individual positions Tuesday.

CARBUNKLE HAS BEEN JACK BARRY'S AILMENT

Boston, September 25.—Jack Barry, captain of the Boston Red Sox, may not be able to play again during the American league season, but probably will be in condition for the world's series games, it was learned today. Barry has been at his home in Worcester since last Tuesday, supposedly suffering from an ordinary boil. Today he visited a specialist here and was told that his trouble was due to a carbuncle, and that some days would be required for proper treatment.

PHILLIES PRAISED BY MUGGSY M'GRAW

BY JOHN J. McGRAW.
(Manager of the Giants.)

Hustling and harmony won a pennant for the Philadelphia National league club this year. The same spirit and the same determined effort are likely to clinch a world's championship to boot.

I see some writers have dubbed Pat Moran, "The Second Miracle Man." Such an appellation is absurd as deserved, though Moran himself does not believe in miracles.

I was one who at the start of the season could not possibly see the Phillies with a 1915 game. Even the early spurt with which the Quakers got away did not at all concern me. With half the race gone, I still expected momentarily to witness the big explosion. I could not reconcile the idea of a collection of apparently ordinary discards from other clubs beating out a team of such proved merit as the Braves, for instance.

Now I am ready to take my hat off to Pat Moran. I am also to doff same to his players. The example set by the Phillies this season is one that would do every other big league club a whole lot of good if taken to heart.

I was joshing with Pat Moran during a game in early spring, one in which the score was going against the Giants.

"You fellows will be lucky if you don't drop out of the league," I flung at the Philadelphia bunch, and I honestly believed it at the time. I didn't get a rise to this. But shortly afterward Moran, in passing me, said pleasantly:

Moran Calls McGraw.

"We're going to lick your club on the baseball field, Mac, not in any debating society."

Pat said this so seriously and with such self-conviction that I was forced to admire his sportsmanship, at least.

Personally, I am mighty proud of Pat Moran's first year success and am confident that the honor of the National league will be ably upheld by his club. Philadelphia has won a host of friends throughout the country by the gentlemanly conduct of its players on and off the field.

In my estimation, Philadelphia is not the best club in our circuit, and for that very reason the more credit is due to Pat. Nor does this in any way detract from the credit of the club or its leader when I say that under ordinary circumstances the Quakers should never have landed where they are. A close-by-balance finish, coupled with an unusual amount of sickness and injury in the ranks of the Giants, has figured to outclass the Quakers over a stretch of 154 games, giving them the semi-theatrical plugging of the new heroes.

We all like Pat, and will go the limit with him, as we demonstrated during his first visit to New York last spring, when the players virtually elected him manager. It strikes me this race is going to be the easiest of many years for the team that will get out and hustle all the time. I know I can win a lot of games myself and still keep ready for service every other day. Others, not necessary to name, every one else thinks the same way. If some of the other teams do not wake up pretty soon, we'll see what a lead no one possibly can catch up.

That prediction was fearfully fulfilled. Philadelphia now has the winning edge, but it came mighty slowly, I can tell you. And Alexander has not the least factor by long odds. Philadelphia won the pennant by a great start and a brilliant finish. If I remember correctly, that team took its first eight straight games. For three months thereafter that club did not win as high a percentage as Alexander is at the Giant's, who were never prominent in the club standings.

Pulled Out Brooklyn.

I was pulling for my old friend, Wilbert Robinson, to win with Brooklyn, just as I rooted for Hughie Jennings when I took that team. It was a case of comradie, as it were. I have nothing but admiration for George Stallings, and sympathize with him on account of the tough luck that dampened his gallant spirit every time. Take such a pitcher as Bill James was a year ago away from any club, and you leave it a gaping hole. Remove Strip away in addition a man of Johnny Evers' capabilities, and you create no more or less of a wreck.

The baseball luck of good to have the pennant pass around a bit. Philadelphia's victory over their Boston rivals should be a great stimulus to more honest hustling generally in the National league's ranks. Furthermore, I consider that the Braves were too rough in their language to umpires. Baseball should have passed the vilifying age by this time.

The loss of prestige or precedent prevail in the question of a world's series. The last game of a series is the first game of the Classic have usually maintained the advantage to the end. For that very reason I consider it is going to be a great big feature of the great baseball carnival next month.

I do not see the American league pitching staff, on which we should depend largely for that dope upon the conclusions at which I have arrived. Believe me, I consider Alexander a great pitcher as can be found anywhere. Whether this any time will be equal to the better supplied with really classy pitchers, but the Phillies are of that first game favors Alexander, no matter how many other games it is absolutely necessary for Moran to win the opener, otherwise, the morale of the losing team might affect it greatly.

Horde of Good Hurlers.

The Red Sox have a horde of good pitchers. But this may work against them. Usually no more than two—or at the outside, three—pitchers in regular turns in the world's series. Alexander, Eppa Rixey and Mayer Powell, so cleverly by his manager that he could be able to pitch three world's series games in a row, if necessary, should eliminate the probability of Boston's having the first call on pitchers.

It is far too early to hint at the outcome of the world's series. A number of accidents might, at the eleventh hour, knock out one of the prospective candidates. I shall root for the National league, as usual. I do sincerely hope the Phillies in the series will assume the same sang froid attitude that has attended their National league efforts this season.

This prosperous world's series appeals far more to the sportsmanship of Moran's players than to their cupidity. It was the players themselves who decided down the idea of playing at Shibe park. The decision doubtless will deprive a great number of loyal rooters from reserved seat accommodations because the capacity is so limited. Yet the Phillies are more anxious to win the universal championship than to help divide the world's series spoils.

It has been agreed that the Boston Americans will play their home games at Gatins's new park. This may be quite commendable under the circumstances. The Boston public is fairly mad through baseball enthusiasm. Brave field can accommodate many more than Fenway. But at the same time it strikes me the Red Sox are just a trifle inclined to regard the Phillies somewhat lightly. This latter team will play its home game in its cigar box simply because it is accustomed to the many possibilities of its confines. Boston has waived its privilege. The Leading Hitter.

Tim Hendryx, of the New Orleans Pelicans, will finish the leading batter and leading run-getter of the league. He also has made the most number of hits for the season.

But Hendryx, by leaving to join the New York Americans before the close of the season, is about to break two records. Tommy Long, of Atlanta, scored the most runs in the season of 1913 with 112. Hendryx was four short of this mark when he left the league. Welchonce, of Atlanta, also in 1913, made the most hits ever made in a season in the league, when he registered 194. Hendryx was considerably short of that.

Thomas, of New Orleans, led the players of the league in base stealing during the season, but he did not get the most extra bases. Hendryx had the largest total bases on his hits.

The season has not been a very bright one from a financial standpoint, due to business conditions, but it was not without merit. It was also the longest playing schedule in the history of the league and it is believed that the season next year will run as long.

Leading Batters.

1914—Kriesly, Birmingham		.329

Managerial Changes.

With the close of the season the next week or ten days, changes may be the plans for next season. The managerial changes will attract the chief interest around the circuit.

Johnny Dobbs may be back at New Orleans, but he will probably not be back at Memphis, and Charley Schmidt at Mobile.

Nashville has a berth that is doubtful, though Starr has done well to have served another trial.

Bill Smith has resigned at Nashville, and it is reported that Dolly Stark, the field captain, has the inside track as his successor.

At Chattanooga the chances are that the directors of that club will give Elberfeld another shot at it.

Little Rock is very uncertain. It will be about the first of October before any decision is made in the matter.

TITLES DO NOT A PICTURE MAKE.

Does the picture patronage need elevation of taste or education?

Atlantic picture lovers overlooked good opportunities in the last two weeks to witness two of the month's most appreciable offerings. "The Galloper" and "Playing Dead."

Both were shown at one of the city's highest class downtown theaters. It was repeated that on both occasions even the theater's clientele fell far short in patronage.

Now, "The Galloper" was a rollicking good comedy, replete with genuinely funny situations, quaintly acted and prettily photographed. Clifton Crawford is a whimsical comedian who does not require a slapstick or pail of dishwater or belligerent pie. His impersonation of "The Galloper" was like an Irvin Cobb story, so natural one can't help laughing.

"Playing Dead" and "The Galloper" were both written by Richard Harding Davis. The stories were good to begin with, and Clifton Crawford and Sidney Drew, the latter of whom played the leading role in "Playing Dead," are legitimate comedians. Their restrained, naive humor is the sort that gets under the vest and carries appeal as well as mirth.

Sidney Drew, as the meditative, self-sacrificing husband of "Playing Dead," was so natural Sidney Drew—and nothing else—that he might have been any one of a number of men you know in your own community.

But if the theater in which both pictures are shown had depended upon their patronage for a livelihood the management and house staff would have gone hungry both days.

Now if they had borne such titles as, "The Temptress Tempted" or "Wife, Woman and Woe," or "Divorced, But Undamaged," and had these titles been displayed in lavish screaming out-front, it might have been a different story.

Where is the fame that once surrounded Charley Chaplin and Mary Pickford? We hear of them but every-once-in-a-while. Both of them are artists as good as they ever were, and we, like millions of other fans, that go to make up the dear public, still cherish them.

We were once pleased to see the faces of Mary and Charles adorn the magazine covers and screens; now we see them seldom on either. Is Mary growing fat and Chawley lame? We are wont to speculate, but having nothing on which to speculate except their mere absence, we must, perforce, take up other mental exertions.

A New Helen.

We had a hunch that when J. P. McGowan, her husband, quit directing Helen Holmes in her "Hazards of Helen," something would begin to happen. Well, here it is, fresh from the Kalem weekly, "Klip Sheet:"

"Of Paramount importance is the announcement that Miss Helen Gibson has been engaged to succeed Helen Holmes as the heroine of the "Hazards of Helen" series. Miss Gibson is said to be admirably suited for the role. It is because of her absolute lack of fear—the positive delight she seems to take in performing the most hazardous feats—together with her protean ability, which caused her to be added to the Kalem's galaxy of stars."

Aleck Nininger, who runs the Alamo theater in Gainesville, has been endowned with distinction, indeed. He was formerly on the stage before he went into a money-making business. Last week he received a letter from a former fellow-performer in Chicago, who is now a Universal director, in which the writer concludes:

"And my mother asks me to send her regards to the only actor who ever paid his board."

Damaged locomotives
In the cabs of which I sat.
There was naught of cataclysm

Calamity and I

No chance I wouldn't take,
No peril I'd evade.
I even married young.
Superwoman. Yes!
Thus they called me
Once

But, alas! Alack!
The time has come
When I must drop
My hold on fame.
Superwoman no longer,
Heroine no more.
I climb from where

Neglected by the public,
Unemployed by the film folks,

On my fate.

And in anger quit my job,
Just like any other

Of this squalid
Mundane sphere.

Pictures and the Press.

The Constitution is the south's pioneer in picture exploitation. It's big double-page devoted each Sunday to the phantom drama has excited comment everywhere it is read, and has elicited the approval of such trade mediums as The Motion Picture News.

Last week The Constitution introduced its bi-weekly picture page, another step along the highway of picture progress. This is in keeping with the mighty advances made by the picture game. Soon we will see moving picture occupying the same position in public tastes and demands as the legitimate stage.

The press will then devote daily criticisms to the big picture features, and there will develop a cult of picture critics and experts just as in the dramatic field. This the newspaper patrons will demand. The thousands who go to see the pictures daily in Atlanta have the same right to journalistic guidance as the hundreds who pay higher prices to attend legitimate performances.

Picture lovers have long reached the discriminatory state. Pictures is no longer a mere fad, where the patron drops in indifferently to pass away a few moments. The mother, the wife, the daughter, nowadays, is prepared before she leaves home for downtown to witness the picture attraction she has been informed to be the most meritorious.

Farrar in "Carmen," Coming to Lyric Week of Oct. 4

Geraldine Farrar, the greatest star of grand opera, will be seen in motion pictures in Atlanta for the first time at the Lyric the week of October 4 in her favorite, "Carmen."

At a private exhibition of "Carmen," when the picture was completed by the Jesse L. Lasky company, it was said by critics to be the last word in motion pictures—a really de luxe production.

In addition to the fact that this is the first appearance of Miss Farrar in pictures and that "Carmen" is one of the greatest productions of the stage, an orchestra of twelve musicians has been engaged for the showing in Atlanta. While the music in "Carmen" is familiar to those who have seen and heard grand opera in Atlanta, a special arrangement by a noted composer makes the music fit the pictures.

Two of the latest motion picture machines made have been purchased for the showing of the big feature, and every detail has been cared for to make it the event of the year.

C. E. Tandy, general manager of the Southern Paramount Pictures corporation, secured this big production for its first showing in Atlanta. He spent several days in New York and Chicago in his fight for the first showing, and he was successful beyond his expectations, for he secured not only the first showing in the south, but in the world, his nearest competitor being Boston, which may get it for the same date.

One of the advantages of the "movies" has been the possibility of showing easterners the beauties of the west. Especially are such stories as "In the Sunset Country," depicting life in the open when a gun was the chief law. Bret Harte introduced us to these hardy pioneers, and now the pictures show us what previously our imagination conjured. In this new Bison film are introduced two new Universal players, Luella Maxams and Walter Rogers, both late of the Eclair company. Sherman Bainbridge, who played heavy roles in the Bison company formerly directed by Henry McRae, also does some splendid work in this interesting and appealing picture.

AT THE GEORGIAN.
"The Chalice of Courage" an Unusual Photoplay.

The first offering for the week at the Georgian will be comedy, and good comedy at that. Charley Chaplin will be seen in "The Mix Up." Wednesday and Thursday the bill is Myrtle Gonsales in "The Chalice of Courage." Friday comes Grace Darbmond in "The House of a Thousand Candles." Saturday Mary Pickford will be presented in "The Dawn of Tomorrow."

Cyrus Townsend Brady utilized a keen portrayal of human emotions as a foundation for "The Chalice of Courage," one of the most potent of the Vitagraph's blue ribbon features yet released through the V-L-S-E. Seldom do films act so upon their audiences as does this wonderful photoplay, by reason of its human theme, a theme realistic and effective.

As the nucleus for the major plot is given a man, Newbold, who when his wife is mortally injured by a terrific fall, has the strength of courage to kill her at her own request. Later the dead woman's old lover becomes passionately fond of another girl. The girl becomes lost in the mountains, is found and cared for through the long winter by Newbold. A sacred love springs up between them, but for three months they live as brother and sister, fighting, each in their own way, to live according to the traditions. At length the lover appears and is recognized by Newbold as the man undeniably responsible, although in an indirect way, as the cause of his wife's death. After a terrific battle, in which outside interference saves the man's life, he shortly afterward goes out in the snow and commits suicide, leaving his old enemy and the girl he loves to live together, their union being sanctioned by the girl's father.

Situations unusual in photoplays are the order in "The Chalice of Courage," situations that are of enormous appeal. Their strength and dramatic power are nearly immeasurable, their effect on the spectator are awe-inspiring. The scenes of the picture are laid in the expansive mountains of the west, exceptional scenes having been taken in the very heart of the untouched country. Photographically, the picture is a supreme achievement, every setting being ideal for the story.

Rollin S. Sturgeon, who produced "The Chalice of Courage," demonstrated his ability as a masterly director in the handling of this film. On the cast, each player is satisfyingly successful in the fulfillment of his duty. William Duncan appears as Newbold, Natalie De Lontan as his wife, George Holt as the other man, Myrtle Gonsales as the girl, besides George Kunkel, William V. Ranous, Otto Lederer and Anne Schaefer in exceptional parts.

MYRTLE STEDMAN STILL WITH MOROSCO COMPANY

The New York offices of the Oliver Morosco Photoplay company most emphatically deny the report printed in various papers that Myrtle Stedman, the poplar star who has been appearing under this banner since its inception, has left to join the forces of another producing company.

Miss Stedman is at present actively engaged at the studios of the Oliver Morosco Photoplay company in Los Angeles, with whom she has a long-term contract. A telegraphic dispatch from Los Anglees states that Miss Stedman has never had any dealings whatever with the company with which she is supposed to have signed.

Patrons of Paramount theaters all over the country will be glad to learn that there is no truth to the story which has been printed affecting the future activities of Miss Stedman, and this star has become an immense favorite among the fans. Many unusual demonstrations of her popularity have been most evident recently. In one instance an admirer from far-away New Zealand, who had never seen the pretty star in person, presented her with a magnificent diamond ring of unique setting, the like of which has never been seen before. The latest tribute paid Miss Stedman is in appreciation of her work was in the form of a letter received from a wealthy San Francisco lover, who wrote that her portrayal of the jealous wife in "Kilmeny" stirred in him entirely new traits of thought in his mind and gave him the solution of a case upon which he was working. The lawyer was so high in his praise over her efforts, and said that after he had seen her in "Kilmeny" he was enabled to win a complete victory for his client. The attorney's name, which is withheld, would be quickly recognized on the Pacific coast.

Miss Stedman's success, particularly since she joined the Oliver Morosco forces, has resulted in her receiving many tempting offers from competitive producers, but in the case of the most recent announcement in connection with her acceptance of another contract, she states that she does not even know the company involved.

Some of Miss Stedman's later triumphs on the screen have been evident in such productions as "The Wild Olive," "Kilmeny," "Peer Gynt" and others of equal merit. The next production in which this splendid actress will appear for Oliver Morosco will be "Jane," a comedy by W. H. Lestonne, in which Charlotte Greenwood and Sydney Grant make their screen debut.

AT THE VAUDETTE.
"The Price of Silence," With Florence La Badie.

The program at the Vaudette for this week includes Monday the latest Pathe story, "Neal of the Navy," featuring Lillian Lorraine; Tuesday, a two-reel American, "The Terror of Twin Mountain," in which Helen Rossen will play the leading part. "Seeing America First" will also be on the program for that day. This week the views will be Niagara Falls. Tuesday is also the day for the clever cartoon pictures, "Keeping Up With Jones." Wednesday a three-reel Centaur with Marguerite Gibson and Crane Wilbur will be on the bill. The title of this picture is "The Protest."

One of the best pictures to be shown during the week at the Vaudette will be on Thursday, "The Price of Silence," in which popular Florence La Badie will play the star part.

Florence La Badie is an exceptionally popular young woman. She unquestionably boasts of a larger following than most players in picture work. This is best attested by the great number of letters she receives daily from admiring fans in all sections of the two hemispheres.

A large number of comunications are from young girls and young women, who are desirous of entering motion picture work. And, to be honest, a number of letters are forwarded her by would-be screen stars of the opposite sex. Of recent months, the demands on Miss La Badie have become so large that she has had written and printed a circular letter, reciting her own experiences, the best methods for winning success and so on.

One of these letters is forwarded to each of the writers with Miss La Badie's best wishes for their success.

Snap Shots.

Nat Goodwin assures us that "Business Is Business" in the big Universal feature.

King Herbert I. (Herbert Rawlinson), recently proclaimed king of Universal City, rules "The Queen of Hearts," in a Gold Seal drama in three reels.

A remarkable story of love and intrigue leading to crime through the extravagance of a wife and her worthless brother is "Crime's Triangle," produced and written by King Baggot, the Universal star. Mr. Baggot also plays the leading role in this play. It is a role in which the distinguished screen artist is seen to best advantage and needless to say, he has taken every opportunity to portray the character in his perfect manner.

At the Lake Tahoe branch of the Universal's Pacific Const studios, J. Warren Kerrigan, under the direction of Jacques Jaccard, is this week being featured in a three-reel Indian drama, written by Jaccard under the title, "Son o' the Stars." In this offering, Mr. Kerrigan appears in a dual role with Norbert Myles, Ethel Phillips, Helen Leslie and May Talbot supporting him.

Robert Leonard this week started production on a five-reel film adaptation of Frances Hodgson Burnett's novel, "That Lass o' Lowries," in which Helen Ware is to be featured. The story is one of the Lancastershire coal mines, and is expected to result in an exceptionally acceptable production. Some of the most elaborate sets ever constructed at Universal City are being built for this production.

"The Deficit," featuring Hobart Henley, is this week occupying the attention of Leon Kent at the Universal City studios. The story was written by Peter B. Kyne and H. G. Stafford especially for the Kent company. Agnes Vernon, Ray Hanford, P. Machete, William Quin and Jack Wells make up the remainder of the cast.

Recital by Mrs. MacDowell To Be Noted Artistic Event

Mrs. Edward MacDowell, wife of the late composer and herself a musician and lecturer of no small reputation, will appear in lecture recital in Atlanta November 26, the home of Mr. and Mrs. Milton Arrowood on Linden street to be the scene of the distinguished occasion.

The announcement will be received with interest by all music lovers, primarily on account of the reverence in which they hold all that concerns the great MacDowell and his works. The earnestness with which his widow has endeavored to carry out the plans he had formulated in the interest of music and musicians add sentimental interest to her public work, and finally the lecture interpretations are in themselves musically and educationally worth while.

Her theme will be the "Effect of Race on the MacDowell Music," and the proceeds of the evening will be devoted, as are the fruits of all the recitals given by Mrs. MacDowell, to the MacDowell Memorial association fund, which provides a home at Peterboro, N. H., for artists who need its comfort.

Mrs. MacDowell will make Atlanta her headquarters from November 14 to 27, and during that time will give lecture recitals at colleges and schools in this section.

The 1913 Embroidery Club.

On last Wednesday evening, September 15, at 7 o'clock, at the Presbyterian church in Covington, Ga., Miss Bessie Cowan and Mr. Fletcher Hill were united in marriage in the presence of friends.

BLUE VETERANS IN 49TH REUNION

Annual Encampment of the G. A. R. Begins in Washington—President Wilson to Greet Veterans.

Washington, September 25.—Thousands of veterans of the union army are here on the eve of the forty-ninth annual encampment of the Grand Army of the Republic.

Fifty years after the last shot was fired survivors of the union host, which marched in review from the capitol to the white house, are to retrace their steps next Wednesday.

In the court of honor, where President Johnson stood, September 25, 1865, President Wilson will stand to greet the remnant of the victorious armies of Grant and Sherman. Elaborate plans have been made to assure the success of the encampment and the city is in holiday array. Pennsylvania avenue, through which the military pageant will pass, is walled with the national colors, and flags flutter from windows and housetops.

By tomorrow it is expected 30,000 veterans, many of them survivors of the 150,000 who participated in the grand review of 1865, will have reached the city. Preparations for entertaining 100,000 visitors have been made. On the opening day of the encampment various informal receptions will be held and much of the time given over to registration under a system whereby veterans can easily find old comrades.

President Wilson will attend the first formal reception in a huge auditorium adapted for the purpose in the old Census building near the capitol, which also will contain headquarters of the various departments and army court of the Grand Army and allied organizations during the encampment. The following day the military review will be held.

General Nelson A. Miles, who will act as marshal of the review, taking the place General Sherman occupied in 1865, and David J. Palmer, commander-in-chief of the G. A. R., already have arrived. Among others who are here or expected by tomorrow are the following noted veterans:

General James H. Wilson, of Wilmington, Del., and General Granville M. Dodge, of Council Bluffs, Iowa, the only two living corps commanders of the union army; division commanders, General Adelbert Ames, of Minneapolis; General D. McM. Gregg, of Pennsylvania; General Lewis A. Grant, Minnesota; General J. Warren Keifter, of Ohio, and Brigadier General John T. Wilder, of Knoxville, Tenn. Nearly all the veterans who marched with Sherman and Grant are enrolled for the line of march Wednesday have passed 70 years of age and it is probable that another commemoration of the event never will be held.

The line of march for the parade will be from Peace monument, at the entrance of the capitol grounds, up Pennsylvania avenue and through a court of honor erected in front of the white house. With the president, when he reviews the procession, will be members of the cabinet, other distinguished officers of the United States, justices of the supreme court and members of congress. Besides the veterans in line there will be Sons of Veterans, various military organizations, troops of the regular army, marine corps and sailors from the fleet.

The parade, it is estimated, will require about three hours in passing. General Miles, as honorary grand marshal of the parade, will have army and navy officers as his aides. Colonel Holsey, chief of staff to the commander-in-chief of the G. A. R., will be the active marshal. A special guard to Commander-in-Chief Palmer will be the U. S. Grant post, of Brooklyn, N. Y. Veterans will march in their respective Grand Army departments, the line being headed by the department of Illinois, which was the first to be organized after the war.

On Thursday and Friday business sessions of the encampment, with sessions of allied organizations will be held. After the election of grand officers Friday the veterans will proceed to Arlington National cemetery, where President Wilson will lay the cornerstone of a new national ampitheater. Another feature will be a public reception in the capitol Thursday evening under the auspices of the Women's Relief Corps. This organization, cooperating with the women of the G. A. R., will plant two trees, one on each side of the boulevard leading to the Lincoln memorial in Potomac park. The first spadeful of earth in planting the first tree will be turned by Commander-in-Chief David J. Palmer, while Mrs. Sarah E. Fulton, president of the Women's Relief Corps, will have that honor in planting the second tree.

Greeting From Wilson.

One of the events on tomorrow will be the wig-wagging of a message of greeting and good will to visiting veterans from President Wilson. The message will be signaled by men familiar with the old Myer code which was part of the system established by Washington by survivors of the signal corps of fifty years ago.

Signaling features of the encampment will continue throughout the week under charge of Lieutenant George Carr Round, president of the United States Veteran Signal Corps association. The main station of the signaling corps will be on the heights of Georgetown in the extreme western section of Washington and upon the approval of the government had its signal instruction camps during the war. The Tabor Methodist church, which stands there, will be its headquarters. From that point welcomes will be wig-wagged and messages of peace and good will to the world are to be sent. Other stations are established at Fort Stevens, Fort De Russy, the National Soldiers' Home, Fort Richardson and some of the capitol.

Secretary Garrison and Secretary Daniels have co-operated with the committees to entertain the veterans. Regular troops will participate, as to give daily drill exhibitions on the Washington monument grounds, while submarines, torpedo boats and other small naval craft unknown to civil war times are to be on exhibition in Washington harbor in the Potomac.

Mingling in the throngs of wearers of the blue who have reached the age wearers of the confederate gray, who were especially invited to attend the encampment. The invitations were extended as a result of the union of the Blue and the Gray at Gettysburg two years ago.

Corn Limpers! Use "Gets-It" and Smile!

Corns Come Right Off, Clean and Quick! You Needn't Limp, or Fuss With Your Corns Any More!

What's the use of spoiling a good time for yourself by limping around with corns? "Gets-It" is one of the easiest things in the world, now, to get rid of them. "Gets-It" does it, the new way. That's why "Gets-It" has become the corn remedy of America, the biggest selling corn remedy in the world, preferred by millions. Do you remember that toe-eating salve you tried, that sticky tape that you bundling bandage, the gouging you've done with knives, razors and scissors? Well now, forget them all. No more fussing, no more pain. Whenever you use simple, easy "Gets-It," the corn is doomed, sure. So is every callus, wart or bunion. Never cut corns or calluses, it makes them grow fast much faster and increases the danger or blood poison. No cutting is necessary by using "Gets-It." Use it tonight and end your corny existence.

Expect 20,000 People To Attend One-Day Fair At Decatur November 10

Arrangements for the one-day fair which will be held in Decatur, November 10, and which fully 20,000 people are expected to attend, will be made at meetings of the general committee this week. This fair will represent the interests of DeKalb.

More than 20 floats have been pledged for the pageant within the last few days and it is believed that there will be more than 100 exhibits in the line of the parade. A number of Atlanta concerns have promised to take part in the parade also.

Tuesday afternoon at 2 o'clock the Parent-Teacher association will hold a special meeting in the McDonough street school to discuss plans with the chairman of the entertainment committee, George H. Jones. A joint meeting of all committees will be held at 8 o'clock Thursday evening at the courthouse. Agent R. S. Hester and others will address the members of the district committees in the courthouse Saturday morning at 10 o'clock.

URIC ACID POISONS THE WHOLE BODY

It Should Be Dissolved and Flushed From the System

Jacobs' Liver Salt is a gentle but effective tonic stimulant of liver and bowels, which dissolves and eliminates Uric Acid and other poisons, at the same time it flushes and physically cleanses the system.

Fermentation of meat and other heavy foods, produces two things: Waste that clogs and poisonous toxines that attack and gradually break down the vital organs so that they fall in their functions.

By removing both the waste matter and the poisonous products at the same time, Jacobs' Liver Salt prevents disease of the vital organs, giving them opportunity to perform their functions normally and to keep the body vigorous and healthy.

Calomel habitues know, often to their sorrow, the effect of this drastic drug which always leaves its cracks and scars, like the dynamite blast in the mountain of rock.

Is the Old-Fashioned Family Extinct? Not by a Long Shot, Says Fond Father

J. B. PITTMAN, FORMER GEORGIAN, HIS WIFE AND TEN CHILDREN.

In reply to a query appearing in a recent issue of The Constitution asking about the welfare and whereabouts of the old-fashioned family, which, it was claimed, had disappeared from modern society, J. B. Pittman, of Alexandria, La., a former Georgian, sends the above picture of himself, his wife and ten children to prove that that somewhat necessary institution has not completely vanished. Mr. Pittman writes: "In regard to the welfare and whereabouts of the family, I want to say that I am here with the goods—ten children ranging in age from 23 years to five months. All are at home, all are well and doing fine. I want The Constitution to know this honored institution is not entirely extinct. I was born in Georgia in 1869 and in 1889 when 21 years old. I live in the country, farm for a living and my children have been reared in the old school."

WORSHAM PLANS FIGHT AGAINST BOLL WEEVIL

would stick to its leisurely gait of about 25 to 50 miles a year.

About a month ago, however, the boll weevil most unexpectedly girded up its loins and began to gad about, with the result that he has not now "squatted" in thirty Georgia counties and is making most serious inroads into the present cotton crop. And, it is said, the damage which the weevil will do on this year's crop is but a drop in the bucket compared to the havoc which it will work next year unless a prompt and effective stop is put to the bug's activities.

Lee Worsham has been sitting up nights with this unwelcome visitor in his midst ever since its arrival. He's got it figured out now, and his plans are all laid to put a stop not only to the weevil's activities, but to the weevil itself, insofar as Georgia is concerned.

All he asks is a little co-operation on the part of the farmers and business men of south Georgia, and particularly in the affected and expected-to-be-affected sections.

But co-operation he must have.

Counties Affected.

Here are the counties affected:

Brooks, Calhoun, Early, Worth, Quitman, Chattahoochee, Troupe, Carroll, Thomas, Baker, Clay, Lee, Stewart, Marion, Coweta, Harralson, Grady, Mitchell, Calhoun, Terrell, Webster, Muscogee, Campbell, Decatur, Miller, Dougherty, Randolph, Sumter, Harris and Douglas.

There are three things of tremendous immediate importance which must be done if the farmers hope to defeat the plans of the boll weevil.

They are:

1. The immediate clearing of all the fields of the present cotton crop at the earliest possible moment and the destruction of the cotton stalks.

2. The co-operation of every county in the infested district in the fight now going on and the co-operation of all other counties in preparatory work for the fight when the weevil reaches them.

3. The attendance, as a real duty, in every county upon the meetings which have been arranged throughout the infested district, and at which the best experts in the country will speak and assist in a campaign to put an effectual stop to the weevil.

Fight Against Weevil.

Detail methods for conducting the fight against the weevil will be given in carefully prepared form at meetings to be conducted in each of the counties, and at these meetings the instruction work will be framed to apply both to the farmers and to the business men, and they are both expected to take the same interest in it.

There will be a force from the United States bureau of entomology to discuss the boll weevil and its habits, and this force will be present at meetings.

There will be a prominent business man and banker from one of the most heavily infested districts in the cotton belt to discuss the business effect of the weevil troubles and the business interest in the fight.

There will be a man from the United States government's extension forces to discuss diversification and the methods to be applied.

A man will be sent by the state department of agriculture to discuss live stock.

Will Increase Force.

This force will be joined at various places along a scheduled route by the commissioner of agriculture, the president of the state agricultural society, the president of the state horticultural society and the state entomologist.

On account of the limited time to reach all of the infested territory it will be necessary to hold two meetings a day, except in a few instances where it is impossible to get about rapidly over the country.

One meeting will be held at 10 o'clock in the morning and the next one at 2 o'clock in the afternoon, and it must be particularly urged, says Mr. Worsham, that the business people and every farmer in the community where a meeting is to be held arrange to attend the meeting. It is for their benefit and the results cannot obtain unless they go to the meetings.

The schedule of the campaign, which is to be conducted by two parties or forces in automobiles, has been arranged as follows:

Campaign Party No. 1.

October 4—Fairburn, 10 a. m.; LaGrange, 2 p. m. (The same order of time applies throughout the list.)
October 5—Jones Cross Roads; Cataula.

October 12—Bainbridge, Cairo.
October 13—Valdosta, Sparks.
October 14—Quitman, Moultrie.
October 15—Camilla, Newton.
October 16—Albany, Sylvester.

Campaign Party No. 2.

October 4—Douglasville.
October 5—Buchanan.
October 6—Carrollton.
October 7—Newnan, Franklin.
October 8—Greenville, Talbotton.
October 9—Buena Vista, Preston.
October 10—Ellaville, Oglethorpe.
October 12—Americus, Leesburg.
October 13—Cordele, Vienna.
October 14—Rochelle.
October 15—Ashburn, Tifton.
October 16—Fitzgerald, Ocilla.

Campaign Carefully Laid.

The campaign has been carefully and thoroughly laid out by the state board of entomology, and in it that board has, up to this time, been given an unlimited co-operation by the department of agriculture, the State Chamber of Commerce, the college of Agriculture, the Farmers' union and many of the county organizations in those counties where the fight against the weevil is already under way. It needs and desires the further co-operation of all other organizations and agencies throughout the state that are interested in, directly or remotely, the preservation of the agricultural enterprise of the state, particularly in carrying out its propaganda and in encouraging the farmers to stick to the plans based upon scientific research and practical study. In all of this the direct and active aid of the development and extension departments of the federal government has already been given, and will be continued as long as the weevil war lasts.

An early cotton crop, proper seed selection, diversification and attention to some other things than solely cotton as a farm crop are the basic ideas to be developed.

The south border territory in Florida and Alabama is infested, as is indicated by following the Georgia line along those counties on the north named, and in Alabama the spread is clear across the state and into no new territory as is covered in Georgia. Over the Florida border the infested territory extends about 40 miles below the Florida line, where the spread will be virtually stopped by the sand hills below that point there is no cotton for the bug to feed on.

Serious Situation.

The point in this state which the weevil has reached at the present time is not to be taken lightly. Before the first frost is—beyond the point scientific calculation had expected it to reach by the end of next season, or by the first frost of 1916. The practical effect of this is that the territory now infested is confronted with the really serious problem of conditions two full years ahead of the time it had been expected.

However, while the weevil is a serious problem, indeed, the most serious to the agricultural people of the state they have ever had to face, there is no reason for high alarm anywhere. Dr. W. D. Hunter and Dr. W. D. Pierce, of the United States board of entomology, who have made a survey of the situation in Georgia, as well as other states, have announced that over the situation, express strongly the opinion that Georgia is in better condition right now to fight the boll weevil than directly through the campaign heretofore made by the state and the federal state board of entomology, than any section which has had to go through a battle with the weevil. The work of the co-operation demonstration agents, through the federal government, the methods and activity of the state college of agriculture and others who have constantly preached to the farmers of the state the ideas of diversification.

AIN'T NO SUCH BUG, SAY SOME FARMERS ABOUT BOLL WEEVIL

Thomasville, Ga., September 25.—(Special.)—The question as to how the farmers of south Georgia look upon the reported coming of the boll weevil to this territory and the advice of the experts in regard to the work to be done in guarding against its inroads has been often asked since the holding of the conference here last week, and the reply to that question is necessarily somewhat involved. It is due to south Georgia to say that this section has up-to-date farmers who employ all of the most improved methods of scientific farming and are ready to adopt all improvements and the advice of those testing new plans.

On the other hand, there are many still left of the old-time farmers who are of the opinion that a man has to be born and reared on a farm to know anything about it, and they haven't a very high opinion of these "book farmers" and their advice. They are not at all sure that the boll weevil is actually here anyway.

While they feel this way in the matter, however, they are men of solid common sense and they are not going to take many chances in spite of their expressed skepticism, and next year will see them planting more diversified crops than ever before, and they are going to follow the plans laid before them for planting their cotton, too, for they don't intend to lose their valuable crop, and that weevil "jes' might slip up on us," as one of them expressed it in discussing the matter.

On the whole, in spite of all expressed doubts, south Georgia is going to prepare to meet the weevil and he will be fought with all of the weapons available.

EMORY CLASS OFFICERS.

Lane, Walker and Saffold New Leaders.

Emory College, Oxford, Ga., September 25.—(Special.)—The various classes at Emory have elected the following officers:

Junior—F. R. Lane, of Roanoke, Ala., dux; Halsey Garland, of Griffin, secretary and treasurer; Percy A. Bray, of Norwood, historian; T. M. Morgan, of Ashburn, poet; G. H. Boyd, of Fairburn, prophet; L. P. Rogers, of Gibson, chaplain; Collin Langdon, of Ala., Pla., manager football team.

Freshman—Walter H. Saffold, of Booklet, dux; P. N. Harley, of Waycross, secretary and treasurer; William Sattles, of Atlanta, historian; W. T. Irvine, Jr., of Cartersville, prophet; J. W. Shearouse, of Brooklet, poet; Kelly Melton, of Oxford, manager football team.

The junior officers of last season are the officers of the present senior class, with the exception of P. C. Ivey, Jr., of Boston, manager football team.

The enrollment of college and academy combined shows a gratifying gain beyond the total enrollment of last year. In addition to the considerable number of new men, over seventy-five per cent all but forty-nine of the 215 students enrolled last session have returned.

SHRINERS WILL MEET IN BRUNSWICK OCT. 12

Brunswick, Ga., September 25.—(Special.)—Shriners from all sections of south Georgia will gather in Brunswick on October 12, when a big meeting will be held by Alee Temple. Brunswick Shriners are making elaborate preparations for the meeting, as it is expected that there will be approximately 500 Shriners and a large number of other visitors in the city. A class of candidates will be put on at the Shriner parade during the afternoon.

Sixty-four or fifty candidates will be initiated, and the degree work will be done by a team from Savannah, and a big delegation from that city and number of members of Alee Temple will come over from that city in a special train, leaving Savannah early on the morning of October 12 and returning the following day. Brunswick will furnish twenty candidates to be initiated, and they will be accompanied present from Waycross, Valdosta, Thomasville, Fitzgerald and other south Georgia cities.

MAN AND WIFE KILLED AND THEIR HOME FIRED

Princeton, Wis., September 25.—Captain Robert Mueller, former banker of Princeton, and a member of the governor's staff of the national guard, and his wife were found today in the smoldering ruins of their summer cottage at Puckaway lake, Wis.

Their skulls were crushed and the cottage fired in an evident attempt to hide the crime.

The motive for the murder is a mystery. Not a trace of the slayers or a clue of any kind has been found.

KAISER IS REJOICING OVER NEW WAR LOAN

He Says It Is Equal to Splendid Victory Achieved Upon Battlefield.

Berlin, September 25.—(By Wireless to Tuckerton.)—Lengthy editorials congratulating the nation on the success of the third war loan are printed by the German newspapers today, says the Overseas News agency. Emperor William supplemented his first congratulatory telegram to Dr. Karl Helfferich, secretary of the imperial treasury, with another message, which read:

"The result is beyond all expectations. It is equal to a splendid victory achieved upon the battlefield, and without the loss of human life."

The Lokal Anzeiger speaks of the loan as a "triumphant demonstration of the confidence and determination of the nation, whose single purpose is to place strong weapons of gold in the hands of the government.

"It carries a message to the enemy," adds this newspaper, "proclaiming that Germany's economic system is able to stand the strain of war, and that the nation is by no means down to its last billion. The German nation has remained true to itself and surprised even financial experts. Its new achievement in raising 12,000,000,000 marks is not a mere matter of figures, but proof of the indissoluble bond connecting all classes of the nation. The feat is one of political and historical significance, such a feat as has not been accomplished by any other belligerent power."

The Vossische Zeitung alludes to the success of the loan as emphasizing the fact that it is a people's loan in the truest sense of the word.

"The subscriptions of foreign capitalists," it says, "proved that they regarded the loan as a good investment, while financial leaders declare that they themselves did not know until now how great was Germany's financial strength. The efforts of Germany's enemies to isolate her have necessitated economy. Into the great collection have flowed savings of the soldiers at the front and the addition to the wares of the whole kingdom of the nation due to war conditions."

The Tages Zeitung points out that in fourteen months the nation "has placed 26,000,000,000 marks at the disposal of the government, to be given back again in the form of business profits and increased earnings. The money remains in the country and moving in an endless circle will enable Germany to float still other loans, while her enemies are obliged to enrich neutral countries."

It is pointed out that there were 219 subscribers of 1,000,000 marks or more to the first loan and 1,106 to the second, while the third loan shows a notable increase over the latter number.

The Berliner Tageblatt looks for the loan as a proof of Germany's strength and thorough organization.

"England," it says, "the only land called upon to give a similar proof of financial strength, failed to equal Germany's achievement. The success of the German loan is due not only to the nation's financial strength and the ability of her financial leaders, but also to the unanimous determination of the people to make the loan a success. It is therefore considered it a matter of course that he places his available capital at the disposal of the government."

Chicago, September 25.—Jim Lavender, acting as relief pitcher, was wild and Philadelphia won out over Chicago, 5 to 4, in the eleventh inning today, making it four out of five for the series.

The locals came from behind and after the visitors had scored in the inning with McCarthy's homer, following Williams' double. Lavender was settled down after the assault and held Chicago safe.

Manager Bresnahan used a recruit pitcher named J. Hogg, who came from the Mobile club of the Southern league, and his wildness gave Philadelphia an early lead.

Today's defeat put Chicago in last place again.

(From September Travel.)

Among the Walwai tribe of the Amazon basin, as among several others, the curious custom of the couvade prevails; that is, when a child is born, the father takes to his hammock and remains there for a month. During this time he refrains from all strong food and the women wait upon him as an invalid. Meantime the mother of the child goes about her work.

ship over Boston. Of course, they all did their best against us in the games. In the last series we played in Cleveland on the way east five Cleveland players came to the clubhouse afterwards and told me they were sorry we had lost a tough game against their club.

"Of course, we had to put all we had into it," declared one man, "but we hated to beat you." The fight in the subway to the clubhouse between Cleveland and Boston players some time ago is still remembered in Cleveland. I know what the cause of that was, but I don't care to discuss it here. It would not be right. That is dead now.

Now, in justice to many Boston fans, I want to say that thousands in the "City of Kultur" are fair and criticized the actions of those who stormed on the field and surrounded me after that game. These fair-minded followers of the game also criticised the actions of the reporters who staged the disgraceful reception to the Tigers in Boston.

The Red Sox were treated fair and square in Detroit on their last trip there, as always. Shore pitched a wonderful game against our club in that series, and he was liberally applauded by the fans in the stands for his fine work on that occasion. He won. There was no feeling shown, no cops, no rabid fans mobbing players, etc., such as we met in Boston. I can say that the Boston reporters' well laid scheme was successful against both the White Sox and Tigers if that is any consolation to them, and these two men have a great deal to do with Boston winning the pennant and should share in the world's series receipts with the players.

"Bean" Ball Disgusts.

The tactics of the Boston club in 1912, both during the season and the world's series, kept the crowd from the last game of that thrilling set for the championship. The fans became disgusted at their treatment. It is a shame. I don't call a pitcher "pegging" at me once in awhile, and I will take my chances on getting "beaned," but when he tries to do it with pitch after pitch it is too much.

I'll admit it looks now as if the Tigers had blown the championship. We had all worked hard to win it, and we all had our hearts in the bout. If we would have to win by the tactics used in Boston I am just as well satisfied we lost. None of us wants to win that way. Their pitchers have been "pegging" at batters all season. In 1914 Leonard was always aiming at the best hitters on the Athletics when he was in the box against Mack's team.

We had a good chance to win the flag when we went to Boston for that last series. If we had taken a majority of games, the Red Sox would have curled up, I really believe. If we had split even we would have given them a battle all the way to the wire. They knew this, and they prepared for us. They gave us some reception. I myself don't mind playing before hostile, hollering crowds. It makes any man go harder, but when a fellow has to dodge pitched balls aimed at his head and pop bottles aimed at his head, too, it is too much of a handicap. I think the pennant, but, in gaining it, the town has accumulated a baseball reputation that will not do it any good.

Perhaps some fans think I am trying to alibi our defeat. I am not. It is a tough strain in a long race to fight all the way up to one critical series and then be forced to play it under the conditions we faced in Boston. It seems to me it was a very bad way for Mr. Lannin to handle his club.

There is no interest in the rest of the race now. The teams are just playing out their schedule. In my next article I will take up the outlook for the world's series and try to show what I think of the Red Sox chances. I am in no mood to do it at this time.

It is a big disappointment to me not to be in the world's series again before I get through in baseball. I acknowledge that. This was a good chance this year. It may not come again in my time. That last Boston series has left a bad taste in my mouth. It is bound to do it when the players on the visiting club in a strange town agree to stick around the hotel together throughout the period of playing the series—not because they fear anything, but because they prefer it to mingling.

New Atlanta Automobile Truck Attracts Favorable Attention

The first models of trucks being turned out by Atlanta's new automobile firm, D. Willingham's Sons, appeared on the streets Friday and attracted favorable comment from all who have examined them. A shop force of nearly 100 men will be at work in the firm's new assembling plant, corner of Whitehall and Stewart avenue.

"Our trucks are just a little ahead of the time," said E. M. Willingham. "Our engineer and designer has spent months in working out the details of these motor trucks. They have the latest designs and all the 1916 improvements and equipments. We will not begin the delivery of orders until November 1. At that time we shall appear aggressively on the market, which we intend to confine to the southern states. We have built these trucks with the single eye on the demands of southern trucking conditions and we feel that we have been eminently successful in producing a truck which will please in every way."

The Willingham trucks will be of two types—one-ton and two-ton capacity. One of their distinguishing features is that they will weigh from 500 to 1,200 pounds less than any other trucks of the same capacities now on the market. They are supplied with a valve in the head motor, which is considered the best in use, and they also have an internal gear drive.

The engineer and designer of the Willingham trucks is George Whiteside. For seven years he was with the Thomas Motor company and was also associated with the truck designing department of the American Locomotive works.

The large assembling plant of E. G. Willingham's Sons is rapidly nearing completion. It will be a three-story structure in its design and detail will be one of the up-to-date plants of the south. The firm is gradually disposing of their lumber stock, as they intend to discard this line altogether.

"SMOKY JOE" IS STILL ON TOP

Although Out of the Game for Some Time, His Record Is Still the Best—Boston Pitchers Hold First Six Places in Standing.

"Smoky Joe" Wood, of the Red Sox continues to lead the American league pitchers in games won and lost. Wood has won thirteen games to date, and has dropped but four. He has been out of the game for quite a while, due to a lame wing, but it is expected he will be in shape to participate in the world series with the Phillies. Boston continues to have the best pitching staff in the league. Their six starters are holding the first six places. Pitchers with averages better than .570 through the games of Wednesday, September 22, are:

The Housekeeper's Council Table

A Page of Practical Talks On the Home, Conducted by Dorothy Dolan

Artificial Flower, Glorified and Improved, Returns as Latest Fad

DAME NATURE'S work shop has a rival.

The gorgeous colorings of the rose and the gladiola, the rich autumn yellows of the crysanthemums, and the browns and greens of the falling leaves have all been stolen and perpetuated in less perishable form by the nimble fingers of the nature fakers who have revived the craze for artificial flowers.

So expert have these nature plagiarists become that the home and the office, the church and the dinner table are likely to bloom this winter with all the luxuriant foliage of the hot house or the June garden even when the mercury is trifling around the zero mark.

Years ago the craze for paper flowers was an institution which met the fate of similar fads. Recently it has been revived, but so improved and glorified that the dinner guest cannot possibly tell when he is sitting down to a prettily decorated table whether the crimson ramblers acting as a centerpiece are those that nature made or a flawless imitation.

The resurrected artificial flower is a brilliant and dashing thing. It may fill the interior of a graceful wicker vase, the hollow of an ornate window box of marble or birch bark, or twine over the trellis of a cleverly arranged flower pot. Sometimes it blooms in milady's fur neck band and again disguised as an old-fashioned bouquet it nestles in her muff. More and more the debutante and the society belle are selecting the artificial bouquet for the dance or the wedding, as its freshness is not injured by the heat of crowded rooms.

You can buy any kind of rose from the dealer in artificial flowers. All of the favorites in red, pink, white and yellow are used in the decorative schemes which are seen everywhere. There is the rose in baskets, on a trellis, in a pot or a tub.

For large church of social affairs the artificial vines answer a number of purposes. Some have fruit clusters and others berries and others are simply colorful leaves. Beech branches, colored artificially in green, red or brown, are used mostly for large spaces and in strands or garlands.

Nothing is more effective in the decoration of a garden, porch or sun parlor than the boxes of marble or bark filed with

The possibilities of the wicker basket are unlimited and it comes in all shapes and sizes as a receptacle for the real as well as the artificial blooms. Some are low, long and shallow, others tall and tapering and many are simply the round bowls with high arched handles.

Most of the materials used in the artificial flowers are paper and a special linen which is often treated with wax to give it a sort of natural bloom. There is much of nature's art, however, which still defies the clever fingers of the maker of artificial flowers. Many ferns and grasses, air plants and palms are treated chemically to keep their natural beauty alive and they are frequently colored as well.

Now Is the Season of the Harvest Moon When Comes Corn Roast's Call

By DAME CURTSEY.

OUR amusements are greatly governed by the season of the year, and right now the popular thing is a "corn roast." Of course they are not new, but there is something decidedly alluring in a moonlight night, a big bonfire, just the right crowd, and plenty of nice, sweet roasting ears, not forgetting sweet potatoes, bacon, coffee and the delicious sandwiches the girls know how to make.

Even the effete East is having corn roasts with the smartest of the smart set as host and hostess. Motor cars are often discarded and hayracks with four horses call for the guests. If a colored man who knows "just how" is available, he may be called upon to superintend the broiling of the bacon, roasting the potatoes and corn, and making the coffee; if not, the men of the party will be found quite capable. Banjos, guitars and the cushions from the wagon add to the enjoyment after the repast, then the affair usually winds up with an informal dance at the home of the hostess. These are delightfully informal affairs. Here is a list of sandwiches that the girls tell me are especially nice for such occasions. I cannot give the rules, but I am sure you all will know how to go about making them, just from the names. They should be wrapped separately in waxed paper:

Stuffed olive and egg sandwich.

Olive and English walnut sandwich.

Sardine sandwich, made with mayonnaise dressing.

Minced ham and chicken sandwich.

An Aster Luncheon.

Asters in their prime are a most decorative flower for table use. An aster luncheon given last year was so pretty that I am sure a description will be very welcome to our readers.

As aster means a "star" the centerpiece was a star-shaped form made of tin; it was filled with delicate pink and lavender asters. Ribbons of pinkish lavender radiated to each place, where they were attached to star-shaped cards cut from lavender cardboard and the names were written in white ink. There was a corsage bouquet at each plate with a long violet headed pin. Pinkish lavender is a charming day-time color, but it does not light up well, so as the day was hot no artificial light was used, not even candles. There was no attempt made to carry out the color scheme in the food, except candied violets were sprinkled over the top of the pineapple ice, which was served in tall glasses with pink lace paper doilies underneath; the plates were decorated in violets and the effect was lovely.

For diversion the hostess provided easy chairs, hammocks and cushions, a box of delicious candy, a bowl of iced tea made strong, with lemon and pineapple juice, and then she proceeded to read aloud the most fascinating story, entitled, "Her Ladyship's Elephant." It was time to depart all too soon, and one of the guests facetiously remarked that "she was so glad the hostess 'aster,'" and every one was kind enough to forgive the horrible pun, as it voiced the sentiments of all present.

Questions and Answers.

Dear Dame Curtsey: I have a dear girl friend who is soon going away to college. I should like to give some sort of a farewell for her, but I am undecided as to what would be best. Do you think a luncheon with some of our other friends would be better than a party in the evening, or what do you suggest? I shall be very grateful for any suggestions that you may give. Would it be too much trouble for you to answer in the Sunday paper? Thank you.

M. E. H.

A luncheon with the girl's most intimate friends would be nice, I am sure. For favors you can get cunning little suitcases or wee trunks. Perhaps you can get pennants of the school to which she is going and put up in the dining room. An evening party would also be enjoyable, as you could have more guests. You will have to decide which would be the best.

Reply to B. V. N.

How my heart aches for girls without homes and real mothers. I am so glad you have friends who are kind and want you with them and I am sure they fully understand how impossible it is for you to entertain. Would it be possible to arrange a picnic for them? You could prepare the luncheon at your sister's and all meet at some central place. This would be good fun.

Reply to D. D.

You sent me a stamped envelope with no address on it and your letter signed simply "D. D.," so you see how simply impossible it was for me to reply personally. I cannot tell you name or price of "Etiquette," in this column, as it is not permissible to give such information. Having sent back your ring and terminated the engagement I would advise you to consider the matter closed. If the man does not choose to speak let it pass.

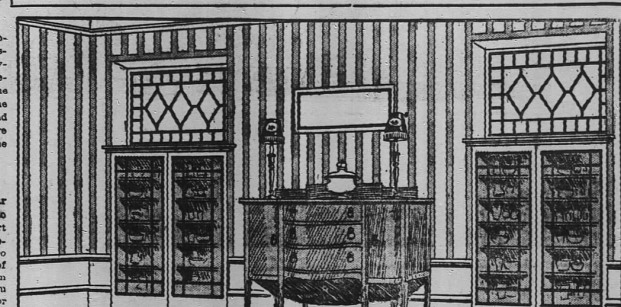
Time for a Luncheon.

Will you kindly state what hour is best for a formal luncheon and how does it differ from a breakfast?

HELEN.

One o'clock or half after is the usual hour for a luncheon and 12 for a breakfast. Soup is served at the former and not at the latter, fruit being the first course.

FOR the small flat, a light, airy appearing dining-room is just the type which "wears" best. Yellow and white, rose and white, gray and white, are excellent color schemes. Care must be taken to have furniture which will be as compact as possible and yet fulfill the needs of your household.



By MME. MAISON.

IN a dining-room that has ceilings eight, eight and a half or even nine feet, a striped paper is very attractive, running to the chair rail of ivory enameled wood and up to the ceiling, which should be of plain ivory white. Yellow and white, rose and white, gray and white are all excellent, or stripes of two tones in any of the shades mentioned. Plain or figured draperies may be used, preferably the former with a touch of black, which is now used with pleasing effect when carefully handled.

As many dining-rooms, especially in apartments, are rather small, great care must be taken to purchase furniture that will look as if it belonged in the spaces occupied. With this in mind, the dealers of late have been showing some very good reproductions built on small lines, which are just what we have been wanting for a long time. A charming arrangement is to have a sideboard of the desired style with a mirror over it framed either in dull gilt or silver and on either side built in cabinets for the best china and glassware. Over these closets casement windows will give the necessary light on this side of the room. Many housekeepers are selecting square tables and some choose the oval, though I think a round table seats more people to better advantage than any other, especially if a small chair is used rather than one with a very wide seat, or with a high back. Much thought must be exercised to suit our belongings to the space we have for them.

There is one style of sideboard that measures just four feet two inches in length and has a panel of natural cane in the back that matches the seats and backs of the chairs. There is a velvet-lined drawer for the flat silver and a roomy cupboard at each end. Do not make the mistake of overloading a sideboard or serving table with a miscellaneous assortment of silver; put out very few pieces. A pair of candle sticks, a handsome coffee or tea service on a tray, or a bowl or basket for fruit is quite sufficient.

If You Would Be Famed As Chef Look Well to Your Talent in Salads

BEFORE the summer slips into fall and your fresh fruits and vegetables are gone, make the most of them. This means more than to preserve them. Have plenty of fruits and vegetables on your table each meal. There is no better way to serve them than as salads. French women are extremely fond of salads because they know that salads are nutritious and wholesome and are not filling. It is not unusual to find a Parisian woman satisfying herself in the middle of the day with a fresh and delicious salad, a bit of toast and a small glass of wine. The salad is never omitted from the formal luncheon or dinner. Though the average French woman is a good cook and an economical one, she is especially proud of her salad dishes.

The French chef gages his skill as a cook by the excellency of his roasts and the delicacy of his salads. In preparing a formal dinner or luncheon some unusually fine salad prepared with a master's stroke is his piece de resistance. He knows perfectly well that a salad cannot be made of a lot of miscellaneous materials. The salad dresser must have good materials to achieve success. When the materials are limited then his skill is shown in concocting a good salad from whatever is available.

In preparing salads remember it is variety in materials and in flavoring that gives taste to food. Salads of all kinds should be handled carefully. That is, they should not be put into shape by heavy pressure. They should be mixed by running the fork and the spoon down the sides of the mixing bowl and then gently tossing the salad with an upward movement, thus allowing it to mix as it falls back.

In mixing a plain lettuce or other green salad it is well to put the oil on first and then carefully toss the leaves about until all are covered in every part with a thin coating of the oil. Then add other ingredients and toss again.

Though most salads have plenty of lettuce leaves and olive oil, a good chef is careful not to accentuate these ingredients until the salad is deprived of its flavor. In using oil, have a good quality and use enough to cut the taste of the vinegar and the other sharp condiments. The vinegar should also be fresh and not too sharp.

The amount of salt, pepper and mustard that are used depends largely on the nature of the salad and individual taste. It is well to mix the condiments together, stirring them well, and then pour them over the salad and mix the dressing with the salad by means of a large mixing spoon. When you are dining alone it is the easiest thing to serve the salad in a large bowl. For company it should always be served on individual plates. As a side dish you can serve toasted crackers, bread and butter sandwiches, Boston brown bread, nasturtium or herb sandwiches.

Some simple salad dishes are:

POTATO SALAD WITH MUSHROOMS—Slice cold, boiled potatoes fine and put in a dish. Cover with fresh mushrooms, stewed and minced, using also the liquor in which they are stewed. The liquid from minced pickles, chow chow or sweet pickles may be used if preferred to the mushrooms. The potatoes will be greatly improved by dropping a little oil on each piece and letting it be absorbed before putting on the other seasoning. Let it stand in a cold place before serving.

PEAR SALAD—Peel and slice or divide pears into sections lengthwise. Sprinkle fine sugar over them and add a little ginger sirip. Serve with a little cream.

FIG SALAD—Quarter twenty-five ripe figs and put into a dainty bowl. As soon as you put them in pour over a cupful of clear strained honey. Let them stand on ice. When ready to serve pour over two cupfuls of rich cream.

CHIFFONADE SALAD—It is a green salad, commonly of lettuce or cresses, with a liberal sprinkling of cold minced vegetables over the top—beets, carrots, string beans, chives or other herbs. A French dressing is usually preferred, though others are good with it.

FROZEN FRUIT SALADS—The juice of nearly all our acid fruits can be slightly salted and sweetened, frozen and served as salads. When the first green apples come, nothing is better liked than a thin apple sauce frozen and served as a salad with lettuce and dressing.

ORANGE SALAD — Cut rind of orange in the form of a basket with a handle. Remove the orange meat, cut in half-inch pieces and add to the meat of each orange one-fourth cupful of broken English walnut meats, one-fourth cupful fresh grated coconnut and one-half tablespoonful of sugar. Mix well and fill orange baskets with this salad. Serve on dainty plates.

CABBAGE SALAD—One and one-half quarts of finely shaved cabbage, one pint of finely chopped celery, four hard-boiled eggs minced well, one and a half cupfuls of English walnuts, one cup of sugar, one-half teaspoonful of salt, one-half teaspoonful of white pepper, one cupful of cider vinegar, and two cupfuls of very thick sweet cream. Stir the cream in after other ingredients have been thoroughly mixed.

CUCUMBER SALAD—Peel and slice very thin five large cucumbers which are just turning yellow. Add a little salt and cook ten minutes. Pour into colander to drain. Make a yellow dressing with four beaten eggs, one-half cup butter, one-half cup sugar, one-fourth cup vinegar, one-fourth cup water, two tablespoonfuls flour, one-half cup ground nut meats, and the minced yolks of four hard-boiled eggs. Cook in a pan of water until thick. Cut up the whites of the four eggs and mix with cucumbers. Serve on lettuce and cover with yellow sauce.

Latest Recipes for the Housewife

SALMON AND BROWN BREAD.

Cut the brown bread in thin slices. Flake one cupful of cold boiled salmon and mix it to a paste with one tablespoonful of mayonnaise dressing. Add more salt and cayenne if desired. Spread it on the bread, cover with a layer of chopped cucumber pickles, then another round of bread, press lightly, and arrange them in an overlapping circle around a few sprigs of parsley.

VEGETABLE SALAD.

The remains of cooked vegetables of almost every kind may be advantageously served as a salad. The vegetables should be sliced or minced according to their nature, seasoned with pepper and salt, and worked lightly together with oil and vinegar in the proportion of two tablespoonfuls of the former and one of the latter. Vegetable salads should be prepared an hour or two before they are wanted, so that the vegetables may become thoroughly impregnated with the sauce. By way of variety cold meat or fish may be substituted, and hard-boiled eggs, sliced beetroot, etc., may be used for garnish.

FLAVORING FOR SANDWICHES.

To beef sandwiches a thin slice of cucumber gives a nice flavor if judiciously seasoned with salt, pepper and lemon juice. Sliced tomatoes are another popular addition. Pickles of any kind, chopped fine and added to the filling, will be found suitable for veal or lamb. Celery goes well with chicken sandwiches. Only the very small heart is used, and this must be finely minced. Fish sandwiches may have anchovy sauce or a little chutney or capers pounded smooth.

RHUBARB AND ORANGE JAM.

Take five pounds of rhubarb, four and a half pounds of sugar, six oranges. Cut up the rhubarb, lay it out on a dish and sprinkle half the sugar over it. Pare the oranges very thinly, chop up half the rind, put with the rhubarb and sugar, leave this till the next day. Now place in a preserving pan with the rest of the sugar and the pulp of the oranges cut up small, and salt.

stir till it boils, then boil quickly for about one hour. If a bitter flavor is liked, the pips of some of the oranges may be tied in a muslin bag and boiled with the jam, or perhaps half an ounce or so of bitter almonds cut in strips may be preferred. The former are removed; the latter of course should be left in.

RHUBARB, FIG, PINEAPPLE JAM.

Seven pounds of rhubarb, a one-pound tin of pineapple chunks and one pound of figs. Cut the rhubarb into small pieces and the pineapple and figs very small. Add to the fruit weight for weight of sugar and allow it to stand all night. Bring up to boiling point and boil for forty minutes.

POTATO SCONES.

Mash boiled potatoes until quite smooth, adding a little salt; then knead out with flour to thickness required. Toast on a griddle, pricking with a fork to prevent blistering. They should be eten with butter, pepper and salt.

A BIGGER, BETTER CITY.

Atlanta has many civic organizations which devote themselves periodically and spasmodically to city improvement; but this is rather incidental than a great and single purpose. What Atlanta really needs is an improvement club devoted solely to city building, city beauty and city health. Why not start it?

Willing, ready, enthusiastic men and women are plentiful to lend strength and bring success to an organization which, eliminating all sectional and ward lines, shall build for beauty, health and efficiency wherever building is needed—and the places are many. This organization should be independent, but combine in its membership those from Atlanta's other civic organizations, from the chamber of commerce, the federation of trades, the Ad Men, the Rotary club, all the others, and, most important of all, from the Atlanta Federation of Women's Clubs, and the other strong and efficient women's organizations of the city.

There is a work, a big work, in Atlanta for an organization like this. Years ago we began to talk about the "city beautiful;" we have done nothing except such haphazard jobs as one or two ward clubs have been able to bring about, or such as individuals have done about their own premises.

We have "Cleaning Up day," and advertise and agitate it. City and citizens do a little spasmodic work, cutting weeds, sweeping streets and whitewashing fences; after that it is all forgotten until another periodic cleaning day comes around.

What Atlanta needs is cleaners, beautifiers and builders who shall be constantly on the job. More than that, she needs organized, systematic effort that shall give attention to details, and keep on attending to them until results are attained.

It is generally recognized that Atlanta needs better streets. Perhaps an agitate general street improvement until lungs are hoarse or they are checked by writer's paralysis. But if we center on a specific street, full of holes, or a block or two blocks on a particular street, that need quick attention, and go to it persistently, ultimate results are certain. It is the same with any other feature—parks, schools, public comforts, better police protection, more adequate sewer and water service, everything where improvement is needed, whether to satisfy the eye, conserve the public convenience and comfort, or preserve the health of its citizens.

Only recently a splendid illustration was given of what can be accomplished in the direction of civic betterment when we center upon a specific purpose, a particular municipal institution that needs attention. Atlanta's schools were at the lowest ebb they had known in years. Thousands of dollars were needed to restore their equipment and efficiency. It was claimed there was no use to try to get it; that there was not an available dollar. Nevertheless, The Constitution took up the school problem and kept hammering at it. It lent its whole influence to the Atlanta School Improvement association, organized by the women of Atlanta, the federation of trades and other civic organizations, in their efforts to get the remedy. They were successful, all because they kept at it. In the end council appropriated $35,000 and the schools were saved.

Atlanta needs an organization which will devote its unceasing and untiring attention to just such situations as this. They need not and will not always demand the expenditure of large sums of money; sometimes only a little work is necessary to turn an eyesore into a beauty spot. But it often requires effort, and plenty of it, to get the wheels set in motion and the work done. That is where an active improvement club would come in.

There are many things it could and should do. School yards should be converted into beauty spots, with trees and shrubs and flowers. This need not in any sense interfere with playgrounds. It would teach the children the value of beauty and harmony in growing things, an important feature of education. There are unsightly holes and ruts in many streets which should be given immediate attention; in most instances a little work is all that is needed. Atlanta needs more parks, more playgrounds, more public comforts and many other things which would add to city beauty and lend pleasure to living here. This city's garbage wagons are one of the most unsightly things upon her streets; in up-to-date cities the country over garbage wagons are covered and kept clean, and there is no exposed, unsightly mess to offend nostrils and eyes at the same time.

These are only a few suggestions. There are many other things Atlanta could and should get, and there isn't a question that organization of the right kind will bring them. With their attainment comes the better city which, as it impresses and attracts the stranger, continues to grow bigger and bigger.

There is no need of elaborate plan involving tremendous expenditure that staggers on the threshold. That is not what Atlanta wants. But she does want the simple and practical things that can be done with little effort and generally at small expense, but which are not done because there is no one to take hold of them and push them to success.

These are the kind of things that count most. They are the things that well directed organization can often easily get.

Let's have an improvement club combining all lines of city activities, and get to work now for the bigger and better city.

THE BOLL WEEVIL AS A FRIEND.

The boll weevil may prove more of a friend than enemy to Georgia.

If his coming should have the effect of spreading the practice of crop diversification and animal husbandry where heretofore we have had little more than the theory, he will prove a blessing perhaps more than equal in value to the damage wrought.

The Georgia farmer can, if he will, make the boll weevil pay his way and that payment may mean ultimate independence for the producer.

The Georgia department of agriculture, commercial bodies all over the state which take an interest in farming, and the newspapers, have long preached the doctrine of the animal on the farm as the first and best step towards agricultural independence.

If any confirmation were needed as to the soundness of this doctrine it may be had in a brief consideration of Georgia's agricultural statistics. Some of these are presented in a communication from W. H. Manss, vice president and general manager of the Southern Settlement and Development organization, published in The Constitution today. Georgia is all right when it comes to the division of her agricultural lands into comparatively small farms, and she is doing pretty well as to farm values. But when we get down to horses, mules, cows, hogs, poultry and dairy products, it is evident we are way behind the times. With comparatively few exceptions the southern states lead the country in the scarcity of the live stock and poultry industry. Mr. Manss quotes the statement, which has been frequently made, that "What we need in Georgia is one cow, two pigs and a dozen chickens or more on every farm."

There isn't a doubt about it. Thorough realization of this fact and action upon it would bring us nearer true agricultural independence than any step we could possibly take. There is enough annual waste on the average Georgia farm to provide for and maintain even more animals than this. The cow, pigs and chickens could be turned to absolutely clear profit.

Take the case of an energetic and hard-working renter who may make fifteen bales of cotton and a little corn on his twenty-five acres. After he has paid his rent, fed and clothed himself and family during the growing season, taken care of his mule and paid other essential farm expenses, he winds up the year with barely enough to sustain himself through the winter. If he does that he is doing better than the average. Now that the boll weevil is upon him in 25 to 30 counties, with a probability of its spreading all over the state within the next two years, the chances are even against his doing that. This renter is the man above all others who must arrange to meet the new conditions; for his will be the greater suffering if he fails to do it.

The boll weevil did not affect this year's crops. It came too late. The crop had ripened and was practically ready for harvest before the insects got into it. That was Georgia's good fortune. But everybody knows now what the condition is and what they must do to meet it.

The best way in which they can prepare to meet it is to plan to live in spite of it. A cow on the farm means milk and butter; a couple of pigs means meat for the winter; a little poultry will provide food far and above the expense of keeping it. Every farm can have these without materially added expense. The waste will practically take care of them. The farmer who continues to spend good cotton money for something which he throws away every year is a poor business manager. With the boll weevil eating at his crop he may not have the money to spend. But if he has a cow and pigs and chickens he has food in plenty to meet any emergency.

If the farmers of Georgia will only realize what they can do and how they can protect themselves at comparatively small expense they will forget that the boll weevil is an enemy and live the better in spite of his coming.

FIFTY YEARS OF SERVICE.

Fifty years ago tomorrow the Atlanta National bank opened its doors to the Atlanta public and began a service to this community which has rounded out into half a century of splendid achievement.

Since its establishment there has not been a day when it has not continued to grow. Beginning business immediately following the close of the civil war and amidst general devastation, it successfully weathered the stormy period of reconstruction, and laid the foundation of an institution in whose career is largely written the history of the city.

The solidity of the institution always proverbial among Atlantans has rested in the exceptional character, ability and integrity of the men at the head of it.

Atlanta will be glad to felicitate this institution not alone upon the attainment of its fiftieth birthday, but upon the magnificent success it has achieved in these years of effort. It is an institution of which both city and state are proud. May another fifty years carry it even further ahead of where it has built today than today has brought it ahead of its humble but determined beginning.

THE GASOLINE TRUST.

We publish elsewhere on this page today an interesting statement from Councilman Jesse B. Lee, who is not only active in city politics, as the representative of the fifth ward, but who, in addition to his other business activities, retails gasoline.

Mr. Lee, in speaking for himself and, as he believes, for all the retail dealers of the city, agrees with The Constitution that something is fundamentally wrong where 16 cents is charged for gasoline in Atlanta when the sale price is less than 10 cents in Chicago and Kansas City.

But Mr. Lee thinks that the local retail dealers are in nowise responsible for this condition. They are given the rate at which they must pay by wholesale, and they have no alternative than to pay as demanded and satisfy themselves with the margin to which the retail dealer is entitled.

Mr. Lee indorses the position taken by The Constitution that gasoline, like other commodities in general use, such as cotton, wheat, corn or any other common product, should sell at a uniform price the country over, plus only such difference as is created through additional cost of transportation.

Just now the cities of the south seem to be the bright and particular field for plucking by the gasoline trust, and it is just a question of how long the people are going to permit the process to continue.

It is a situation which the anti-trust laws of the federal government ought to be able to reach.

Commissioner of Agriculture J. D. Price, whose department has charge of state gasoline inspection, suggests a state investigation. This would be valuable in bringing to light important facts bearing on the situation. But we need more than that; we need remedy.

The federal department of justice could and should go to the bottom of it, for the trouble undoubtedly comes under the provisions of the anti-trust laws.

FIELDS OF SCARLET.

The red rain of the battlefields of Europe would make the harvests grow if Europe did not have more time for blood than bread. The Manchester (England) Guardian says that the battlefields of northern France, where blood ran in rivers last year, are all aflame with red poppies, which grow everywhere, giving a scarlet fringe to the roads, and that while scientific men maintain that it is merely the natural result of the fields being out of cultivation, the peasants, having tradition on their side, take a different view. They say it is the aftermath of the blood shed in the battles of a year ago.

It is no wonder that such a war should breed all sorts of superstitions.

The Guardian is inclined to stand with the peasants, citing for precedent the battle of Landen, fought in 1693, which, it says, produced a similar phenomenon, the field "breaking forth into millions of poppies."

However it may be, the pity of it all is that the blood which has been shed already will be as nothing to that which will probably flow from the slaughter of the final struggle.

An exchange speaks of prosperity "waving its banners." It hasn't time for that, but it has called in the storm-flag.

John D. Rockefeller says he "feels like a prodigal son." But with so much fatted calf he has no kick coming.

The czar pardoned 100,000 political prisoners in one day. He needs food for powder.

The czar is short on generals, and there's little old Mexico with regiments of 'em to spare!

Pretty soon there will be work for the Red Cross ambulance corps on the football field.

Kitchener ceased to fight like a soldier when he learned to talk like a statesman.

Dealer Jesse B. Lee Makes a Statement On Gasoline Situation

Editor Constitution: I am a local dealer in gasoline and in behalf of not only myself, but of the other retail dealers, I wish to make a statement that I am sure will commend itself to the public.

Much has been said about an increase in the price of gasoline in Atlanta to a figure far above the difference in freight rates between cities where it is sold cheaper and Atlanta.

Let me say that I fully agree with your argument that something is wrong where gasoline can be sold in Chicago or in Kansas City, for less than 10 cents, while the charge in Atlanta is 16 cents. But whatever is the cause of this, the local gasoline dealers cannot be held responsible. We are furnished our rates by those from whom we buy at wholesale and we must pay those rates or quit the business.

So what alternative have we but to take our medicine just as it is given to us? We may strain at the dose, and wonder why it is that we are charged 14 cents at wholesale when gasoline is being sold at retail in Chicago and Kansas City at less than 10 cents, but that does not relieve the situation as far as we are concerned. While as it is simply a question of paying the wholesale rate as designated or not getting the gasoline.

The local retail dealers of Atlanta ask only a reasonable profit—the same as in every other city—even as in Chicago and Kansas City, where gasoline is retailed at less than 10 cents.

Now, if there is anything wrong, and there certainly is some discrimination somewhere, the responsibility should be placed where it belongs and we should be relieved of the suspicion of bringing about a condition for which we are in nowise responsible and which is very distasteful to us, for it makes us happy to please those who patronize us, and we know they cannot be pleased at this apparent discrimination in favor of other cities.

This is a fair, conservative, straightforward presentation of the situation. Now, if anything can be done to relieve the pressure overhead, and to put this responsibility where it belongs, no one will be better pleased than the Atlanta retail dealers in gasoline.

JESSE B. LEE.

Let City Work Together To Some Definite End

Editor Constitution: After reading what has been said about the wonderful improvements in the west, and wherein we are lacking in some respects, my impulse is to say something along the same line, but am reminded of the minister who had a very wealthy and fashionable, but rather worldly congregation. He felt that he must say something along spiritual lines, and not wishing to offend, went at them something like this: "You must repent, all were, and be converted, in a measure, or you will be damned to some extent." However, I am glad the question has been raised and hope the agitation will continue until some man will rise to the occasion and put the necessary machinery in working order.

Now we consider the fact that cities all over the west, half the size of Atlanta, and nothing like her resources, have perfectly paved streets, good roads leading in every direction, parks without number, million-dollar school buildings, playgrounds and other improvements; working systematically to beautify the city as a whole; everything permanent, while we resort to a makeshift, there is something wrong somewhere.

As a general proposition, we get what we go after in earnest, and surely we have as much enterprise as other cities, and have men who are just as honest and capable, and if we can create a desire for better public improvements, we will find a way to get them.

I am told that the city of Portland is so imbued with the civic improvement idea they are negotiating with a civil engineer—a man who knows whose reputation is an asset of international value—to come and show them how. The city will then issue bonds and work under his direction to some definite purpose. Why can't we do likewise? It's all right to talk about birds of a feather, and so forth, but it takes a stork to deliver the goods.

Some Striking Figures About Georgia Farms

Editor Constitution: I have been working out some figures which I thought might be of interest to you.

Georgia has 291,027 farms, ranking second of the forty-eight states in the union in the number of farms, being surpassed by one state, the state of Texas, which has 417,770 farms.

Georgia averages 92.6 acres in all farm lands per farm, with 42.3 acres in improved land.
The value of land per farm is	$1,273
The value of buildings	474
The value of implements	72
The value of live stock	276
There are 1.4 horses and mules per farm, in value	$198.32
There are 1.4 milch cows per farm, in value	28.82
There are 6.2 swine per farm, in value	18.65
There are 18.8 head poultry per farm, in value	7.18
Income for all crops, per farm	$75.61
Value of animals slaughtered or killed	54.53
Value of dairy products per farm	28.54
Value of eggs and poultry	27.39
Value of live stock products per acre improved land	2.64

I have compiled a statement showing these figures for the various states. It is interesting to note that with the exception of the state of Connecticut, Maine and Massachusetts, the southern states have the smallest number of horses and mules, milch cows and in poultry rank lowest with the exception of some of the south central states. As our good friend Mr. W. H. White, of the White Provision company, said, "What we need in Georgia is one cow, two pigs and a dozen chickens or more to every farm."

IN HARVEST LAND

By FRANK L. STANTON.

SEEM to hear a message from the windows of the blue:
"Angels from the hill-clouds are waving hands to you!"

Life a glad Thanksgiving,—
Read your dreams of bliss;
Thank the Lord we're living
In a world as sweet as this!

BLUE smoke upward curling from happy hut and home;
Earth the great rewarder—Heaven itself your friend;
Try to count your blessings and you never reach the end!

Sun and soil seem singing—
Happy time an' chance
Where Joy himself is swinging
Gray Trouble, in the dance.

SUMMER'S toil is over—Life's bright goal we win:
Farewell to the shadows. The living light streams in!
With remembered roses of summer on his breast.

What is earth-crowned glory?
Ho! Wanderers who roam,
Here's a sweeter story
Of Love, with hearts at home.

THANKSGIVING for the blessing of summer sun and sod,
Where once, in bending lilies, we read the thoughts of God;
Thanksgiving for the harvest—the glimmer of its gold,
And all the joys of living the arms of Life can hold.

No sorrow now befalls you
And never storm of strife;
Enter: The glad earth calls you
To harvest lands of Life.

EX-GOVERNOR JOSEPH M. BROWN ANSWERS JUDGE S. B. ADAMS

The Constitution published on the first Sunday in September an extensive communication from Judge Samuel B. Adams defending ex-Governor Slaton, and incidentally criticising ex-Governor Joseph M. Brown, who replies in the following communication.

With this the controversy over the matter referred to ends, so far as The Constitution is concerned. We believe that no good purpose can be served by a continued discussion of the issues involved. The sentence in the whole of this dark chapter of Georgia history is consigned to the realm of the past the better it will be for the state.

EX-GOVERNOR BROWN'S REPLY TO CRITICISM OF JUDGE ADAMS

Editor Constitution: Returning home after an absence of several weeks, I note in your issue of September 5, a communication from Judge Samuel B. Adams, defending Governor Slaton's act in commuting the sentence of Leo M. Frank, and making some pointed remarks about myself.

In that communication Judge Adams says: "Governor Slaton had the power and the discretion to commute the sentence. The constitution of the state provides (section 6481 of the present code) as follows: 'He (referring to the governor) shall have power to grant reprieves and pardons, to commute penalties,' etc. . . . The commutation of the Frank sentence was, therefore, strictly lawful and regular. There was no action taken, or attack, upon the courts, or the regular and orderly administration of law, than would be the grant of a new trial by a judge."

Now, in answer to the above, let me say that the constitution of Georgia also says: The legislative, judicial and executive powers shall forever remain separate and distinct, and no person discharging the duties of one shall at the same time exercise the functions of either of the others, except as herein provided."

None of the sections give the governor the power to veto a court record. Judge Adams has been a member of the supreme court, and he knows that that court holds that all parts of the constitution should be so construed as to put no one of them in conflict with others. He knows that after the courts have adjudicated a criminal case and sent a man to the penitentiary or sentenced him to be hung they have no power to reconsider their action, even though newsbonds and work under his direction to some definite purpose. Why can't we do likewise? It's all right to talk about birds of a feather, and so forth, but it takes a stork to deliver the goods.

Baltimore, Md., September 22, 1915.

Editor Constitution: One is as much a lawful punishment as the other.

Now, let me see about that. The code of Georgia (Vol. II., sec. 63) says: "The punishment of murder, murder by poison, shall be death, but may be confinement in the penitentiary for life in the following cases: If the jury trying the case shall so recommend, or if the conviction is founded solely on circumstantial testimony, the presiding judge may sentence to confinement in the penitentiary for life. In the former case it is not discretionary with the judge; in the latter it is."

I quoted the foregoing to Governor Slaton for the purpose of impressing upon him the fact that on the one hand the constitution limits clearly the contingencies upon which imprisonment in the penitentiary for life may be made the punishment of those convicted of murder, and argued that the Frank case did not come under either of these contingencies. The unmistakable inference from my argument and from the code of Georgia is that the Governor, if a man, should conform his acts to the spirit as well as the letter of the constitution.

But Judge Adams must excuse me for saying that in his defense of Governor Slaton he has rather overdone the thing when he goes into detail about the governor's law partnership with Rosser and contends that as the governor received none of the partnership income from the Frank case it is out of order for anyone to hold that he blended the gubernatorial action with the partnership interest or influence.

Now, money is by no means the only persuasive power in the controlling or shaping human action. Environment is far more frequently the controlling factor. Take two examples: The average man in Vermont, in 1860, sincerely believed slavery ought to be abolished; the average man in South Carolina the same year sincerely believed exactly the opposite. In Germany today, the average man hates England, whereas in England the average man is sincere in the opinion that Germany is the blood of all brassiness.

Hence, Governor Slaton, in a law partnership with Luther Rosser, naturally held a sympathy for Rosser in his law cases. They were friends, with a common interest in general legal affairs and by association imbibed common preferences and judgments. Another of the partners was a Jew, and, no doubt, for reasons of that race, the Jew is in general felt kindly to the governor, both in business matters and in politics. These considerations were based upon human nature, hence, what was more logical than that, having entered the partnership in the conditions

Washing Won't Rid Head Of Dandruff

The only sure way to get rid of dandruff is to dissolve it, then you destroy it entirely. To do this, get about four ounces of ordinary liquid arvon; apply it at night when retiring; use enough to moisten the scalp and rub it in gently with the finger tips.

Do this tonight, and by morning, most if not all of your dandruff will be gone, and three or four more applications will completely dissolve and entirely destroy every single sign and trace of it, no matter how much dandruff you have.

You will find, too, that all itching and digging of the scalp will stop at once, and your hair will be fluffy, lustrous, glossy, silky and soft, and look and feel a hundred times better.

You can get liquid arvon at any drug store. It is inexpensive and never fails to do the work.—(adv.)

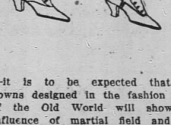
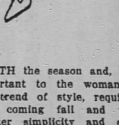
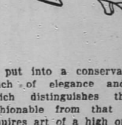
WE BEG TO ANNOUNCE THE

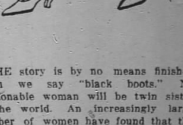
Fall and Winter Styles for 1915-16

WE are pleased to invite you to our display of the newest models in footwear for the coming fall and winter. Here are many new things—many pretty things. The trend of Fashion is away from the odd and fantastic. Good taste, as well as charm, must characterize the whole toilette of the really well-dressed woman. But the short, rather full skirts of the smart costumes for fall and winter require an increasing attention to the elegance of that final detail of the fashionable woman's costume—her shoe. And seldom has any season offered such a range of charming novelties from which the woman of taste may choose her shoe wardrobe. Every dainty model shown is fresh from New York—bearing the cachet of the smartest Fashion. Whatever the occasion — the boudoir, the street, the golf green, the opera, the dance, whatever — here you will find just the proper shoe, in just the size to give you perfect comfort. We can assure you of perfection in fit as confidently as authenticity of style. Made in New York, Cousins Shoes dictate fashion changes. And a reputation for excellent workmanship for three generations of shoemaking insures the quality of any shoe bearing the Cousins name.









—It is to be expected that many gowns designed in the fashion centers of the Old World will show some influence of martial field and camp. As the finishing touch to the trim military costume we are showing, among the more ultra models, several boots of a distinctly military character—new button effects of the most distinguished appearance.

BOTH the season and, perhaps more important to the woman of fashion, the trend of style, requires a return this coming fall and winter to a greater simplicity and elegance and more sombre, richer color in dress. Black boots will be in vogue. A dress boot will be more often buttoned than laced, but short skirts and the need for trim ankles will mean laced boots for many well-dressed women. We are showing some of the newest and smartest patterns in both lace and button effects.

THE return to black boots will not mean a return to the conservative footwear of Grandmother's time, by any means. The very simplicity of black demands a smartness and grace of line and pattern. To express the latest whim of fashion in black and to put into a conservative shoe that touch of elegance and of newness which distinguishes that which is fashionable from that which is not, requires art of a high order. The new black boots—button and lace, kid and patent, cloth and leather include many new patterns which combine with perfect taste that novelty and exclusiveness which the leader of fashion desires.

THE story is by no means finished when we say "black boots." No fashionable woman will be twin sister to the world. An increasingly large number of women have found that the secret of the art of dressing lies in the expression of one's own individuality, in dress boots judiciously chosen to complete a certain toilette or to harmonize with a certain gown, colored leathers and cloths will hold their high favor—especially in the more tasteful combinations. We are showing some beautiful new models in color combinations, cloth and leather and two leathers, in the newest shades and patterns.

AND color runs riot, if you please, when it comes to slippers for the tea, the opera, the dance, the dinner, the gaieties of life. In dress slippers it is our task to please the prettiest fancy. Slippers that belong with the pretty gowns, with the glint of silver and glass, with sparkling lights and color and chat and motion and music. The new slippers are new. The discerning Cinderella will find that they all express the newest New York has to offer. There is less ornament and more charm—more simplicity with no loss of coquetry. And always wider choice.

FASHION never leaves us. Rain and snow and sleet must find the well-dressed woman still well-dressed. In the saddle, over the stretches of the green, on the courts, she must appear no less well-dressed because she is heartily enjoying herself. Storm boots, riding boots and shoes for every sport show many patterns that make for smart style as well as comfort.

We are pleased to invite you to our display of the newest fall and winter models in

Cousins Shoes for women

IT has been customary with us at the beginning of the fall and spring seasons to make an announcement of the "Authoritative Fashions in Footwear." We particularly wish you to read this announcement, then come in and let us show you the shoes.

JUDGE FITE ISSUES MORE INJUNCTIONS

Murray Courthouse Case Further Complicated by Restraining Orders Against County Officials.

Chatsworth, Ga., September 25.—(Special)—News today that Judge A. W. Fite, recently reversed by the supreme court in the Murray county courthouse case, has issued three additional injunctions further complicating the matter, caused much surprise and considerable excitement here, where feelings had already been aroused by the imprisonment of the three county commissioners and the county attorney on a contempt charge growing out of the case.

The restraining orders were issued at Trenton, Ga., and based upon petitions signed by citizens of Spring Place and Eton, former rivals of Chatsworth for the county seat.

Tax Collector Enjoined.

One of the orders is against the tax collector of Murray county, prohibiting him from collecting any part of the tax levied for courthouse purposes, another against the county treasurer to prevent that official from paying out attorney's fees for services rendered by County Attorney Jesse M. Sellers in the previous litigation growing out of the courthouse controversy, and a third against the county commissioners, D. R. Dunn, T. M. Hemphill and J. A. McGee, wherein the contractor is made a party defendant, setting forth substantially the same grounds embraced in the tax levy case now in the supreme court and not yet decided by that court.

The officials were served today at Chatsworth and the hearing set for October 5 as to whether or not the injunctions shall be made permanent.

Commissioners Still Jailed.

The county commissioners and their attorney are still in jail, and unless released by the supreme court or by Judge Fite prior to October 5, will not be able to attend the hearing on the last named injunction suits. The contempt matter, however, is to be heard on October 4.

In reversing Judge Fite's injunction restraining the county commissioners from proceeding with the erection of the courthouse, the headnote of the supreme court's decision read:

"In the administration of county affairs county commissioners are vested by law with a broad discretion, and the revising power of a judge of the superior court should be exercised with caution and no interference had unless it is clear and manifest that the county authorities are abusing the discretion vested in them by law. In the instant case such abuse of discretion by them was not made to appear, and the court erred in enjoining the erection of the courthouse as proposed by the county commissioners."

GOVERNOR WILL INCLUDE PROHIBITION IN THE CALL

The fact that the appropriations bill is set at the head of the list in the governor's call for the extra session does not necessarily mean that it will be the first to reach a vote in the general assembly.

This bill, as all other bills, must be referred to a committee and be recommended back to the assembly by the committee before it can be read the second and third time and be placed upon its passage. Therefore, if it should happen that the prohibition bills or other matters are recommended back from a committee before the appropriations bill they would precede this measure upon the calendar.

The question of what the committees may do also brings up another possibility which would be a fight on the part of the majority wing to have prohibition measures referred to a committee other than the temperance committee.

CHANGE OF RULES.

It seems highly probable, however, that there will be a very strenuous fight on the floor of the house before any matters of legislation ever come up. This fight will likely be precipitated on the first day of the session and will be for a change of the rules of the house, abolishing the rules under which the minority held sway at the last session and adopting the rules of the national house which put in effect prior to the wiling and of "Uncle Joe" Cannon. The minority will hold tenaciously to the view that the house in extra session is working under the same rules as the regular session and that, therefore, a three-fourths majority is necessary to change the rules of the house.

Any resolution to change the rules of the house would be referred to the rules committee by the speaker, upon which referment there would be a fight by the majority, for the chances are that any resolution to change the house rules when it once got into the hands of the rules committee might enjoy protracted repose.

There is considerable discussion on the point of an appeal from the decision of the chair on a motion touching the change of the rules or on a resolution premised upon the house in extra session being without rules. There are authorities which hold that such action on the part of the house would be revolutionary and would jeopardize the validity of any legislation the assembly might enact.

The possibilities of impeachment proceedings have been mentioned, which would entirely lift the time limit from the extra session.

There are also other whispers of things to be doing early in the session which will furnish dynamics enough to keep things moving.

Taken all in all, there seems to be a bright prospect for a session of length and activity.

GOVERNOR'S STATEMENT.

Governor's Statement.

September 25, 1915.

To the Public:

The call for the extraordinary session of the legislature will include the following subjects, and the proclamation convoking the same will be issued on the 27th or 28th instant:

1. Appropriations, general, special and deficiency.
2. Prohibition legislation.
3. Disposition of Western and Atlantic railroad, at termination of present lease.
4. State warehouse system.
5. Amendment to the fish and game law.
6. Amendment to the automobile license tax provisions.

I have been asked to include a vast number of other subjects in the call, but I have proceeded upon the idea that the business of the session should be made as short as practicable, and only those matters which are, in a sense, emergency matters, have been included.

First—Appropriations of course must be made in order to run the government; this goes without further argument.

Second—I have included the prohibition legislation because of the fact that I have been asked by fully two-thirds of the legislators, and a vast number of the citizens outside to do so. The legislators believed that this is emergency legislation, and the adjournment was forced in order to secure it. Its consideration, therefore, will be submitted to the extraordinary session, inasmuch as a large majority of the people's representatives have demanded it.

Third—A commission to look after the leasing of the state's property, known as the Western and Atlantic railroad, ought to be at work as soon as practicable for obvious reasons. I have felt, therefore, that this is a proper matter to be included in the call, and I am confident that it will not occupy any long time, as there is very little difference of opinion concerning what should be done with the road. It is the most valuable asset of the state, and is directly pledged for the payment of the state's indebtedness.

Fourth—The inclusion of the state warehouse system in the call is at the earnest request of the farmers of Georgia, who have spoken through their organizations. It is believed that this legislation will not challenge any serious discussion, nor cause any great difference of opinion, as the proposition intended to be enacted will be strictly just and without discrimination as far as the warehouses of the state are concerned. The system cannot be put in operation before next season, unless the legislation is secured at the coming session.

Fifth—The amendment to the fish and game laws is put in, because of the strong demand from the seacoast touching this matter, and it has been contended before me that the enactment of the law which passed the senate, and would have been acted on favorably in the house, will create no discussion. The amendment is intended to carry out what has been heretofore the course of the game department, touching the taking of shrimp and prawn—with some additional regulations concerning the oyster business. It is believed that the license taxes from this business, realized by the state annually, will be much more than the cost of passing the bill at this session.

Sixth—The automobile tax I have included at the earnest request of the secretary of state, who is fearful that the whole tax may be lost unless there is an amendment made to the existing law. This tax amounts to $116,000, and the state could ill afford to lose it. Some of the courts are holding that the tax, as it stands, is not collectible.

It is believed that with the above enumeration of subjects in the call, the session of the legislature can be brought to an end in from fifteen to twenty days, unless, of course, some obstructive tactics touching any one of the subjects should be employed. Respectfully submitted,

N. E. HARRIS,
Governor of Georgia.

Kraft's Last Concert Today; Sheldon to Play Next Sunday

C. A. Sheldon, Jr., new organist, and Edwin Arthur Kraft, who has resigned to take attractive new position.

Dr. Edwin Arthur Kraft, Atlanta city organist, plays his 76th and last free organ concert at the Auditorium-Armory this afternoon, and leaves Monday for Cleveland, Ohio, where he will be the organist of Trinity cathedral, one of the most notable posts of its kind in America.

Charles A. Sheldon, Jr., of Atlanta, immediately succeeds Dr. Kraft as city organist by action of the Atlanta Music Festival association, of which Colonel W. L. Peel is president, and Mr. Sheldon will begin his free concerts next week, the first Sunday in October. Mr. Sheldon is a native Georgian, who has won for himself an eminent standing as a musician here and elsewhere where he has given concerts. He studied under the best masters in New York, and has been the organist at Trinity church, Atlanta, for eleven years. Three years preceding that he was the organist at St. Luke's and has also been organist at the Jewish temple for about four years.

In addition to being a finished player, he has composed many pieces of organ music, a recent one of which was dedicated to Dr. Kraft and played for the first time at a free organ concert. Mr. Sheldon has played frequently on the great organ at the Auditorium, and is thoroughly familiar with the instrument. Among the occasions on which he has played was with the Metropolitan orchestra in connection with the great cathedral scene in "Tosca."

Dr. Kraft came to Atlanta in January, 1914, from Trinity cathedral, Cleveland, the same distinguished position to which he now returns. He has been in Atlanta nearly two years, and has given 76 free concerts under Music Festival auspices. Dr. Kraft amply justified in Atlanta the reputation which preceded him of being one of the leading American organists of the modern school. He studied in Berlin and Paris under Vidor and Guilmant, and has done notable concert work in Europe and all over the United States. His departure from Atlanta will be greatly regretted both for musical and personal reasons.

Dd. Kraft's last concert, which will be played this afternoon at 4 o'clock, is composed of the following program:

Richard Wagner...Overture to "Tannhauser"
Gaston M. Dethier...Caprice (The Brook")
Will C. MacFarlane...
Tschaikowsky.....
"Andante Cantabile from Fifth Symphony"
Gaston M. Dethier.....Scherzo"
J. A. Meale, "The Magic Harp (Pedal Etude)
Richard Wagner, "Ride of the Valkyries"

Sheldon's Tribute.

Paying tribute to Mr. Kraft, Charles Sheldon, Jr., has furnished The Constitution the following statement:

"I wish to pay a tribute to Mr. Kraft, not only as a musician, for all who have heard him acknowledge him to be a great organist that has played the Auditorium, and that he stands in the foremost rank of the musicians in the United States, but rather to the man, his excellent character and sterling worth, his kind disposition and sunny nature, his true heart with his helping hand, extended in his retiring manner to all who will heed him. These qualities have touched a vibrant cord within me and moved me to express my appreciation of him and my regret at his departure and to extend to him my best wishes."

Chauffeur Responsible For Injuries if Door Of Auto Is Left Open

If an auto driver leaves the door of his car open and it strikes a pedestrian it is reckless running of an auto, according to the ruling of Recorder Johnson Saturday afternoon in a case against Paul Hughes, the driver of a jitney.

Hughes left the door of his car open and at the corner of Mitchell and Pryor streets it struck and injured Claiborne Maynor, a youth of 1615 Davis street.

"You must keep the doors of your car closed," the recorder said to Hughes as he fined him $5.75.

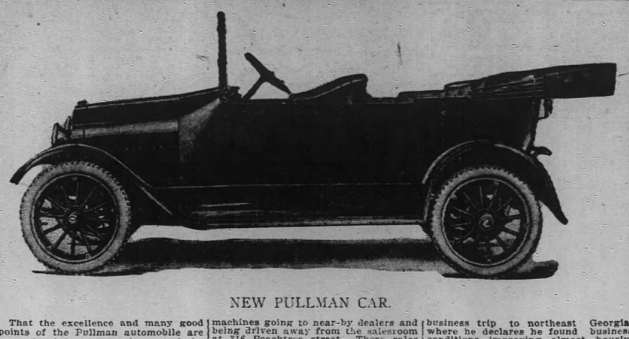
DEALERS ARE ENTHUSIASTIC OVER PULLMANS; SALES ARE AVERAGING OVER CARLOAD A DAY



NEW PULLMAN CAR.

That the excellence and many good points of the Pullman automobile are appreciated by the car buyers of the south, and that they are taking advantage of the opportunity offered them to secure a machine high in value, yet moderate in price, is amply evidenced by the superb record being made by the Pullman agency since it opened offices in this city less than three months ago.

For the past week or ten days the sales of this popular car have averaged more than a full carload a day, these machines going to near-by dealers and being driven away from the salesroom at 216 Peachtree street. These sales are recorded in addition to the daily orders which go out to dealers over the southern states, and which are shipped direct from the factory. This record is considered remarkable, especially in view of the fact that this car has had representation in this section for only a very short time, and is highly gratifying to the local as well as the factory management.

E. W. Van Duzen, wholesale manager in Atlanta, has just returned from a business trip to northeast Georgia, where he declares he found business conditions improving almost hourly, and where he made many new converts for the Pullman by the demonstrations and publicity given it.

One of the hardest tests on a roadway in the state is said to be at what is known as the "test hill," in or near Athens. Mr. Van Duzen declares that from a standing start he easily climbed this hill on "high," and adds that his trip from Athens was made in the time of three hours and twenty minutes without a change of gear.

Red Sox 3, Browns 2.

Boston, September 25.—It was not until the eighth inning that the Boston Red Sox, 3 to 2 victors over St. Louis today, scored the tieing and winning runs. Then two scratch hits, a sacrifice, Severoid's error in failing to catch a third strike and the error of Agnew, his successor, in dropping Walker's perfect throw, gave Boston two runs. Severoid was ordered from the game for arguments.

Foster held St. Louis to four hits, one of which, a double by Lavan, turned two previous passes into runs in the sixth inning.

Chattanooga, Tenn., September 25.—Manager Elberfeld was today reappointed manager of the Chattanooga team for 1916, and will begin at once to lay plans to strengthen his team next season. He will stand pat on his infield and catchers, but is in the market for an outfielder or two and has only two pitchers left on his staff.

Advantages — For Your Wife

Many a car that looks good from a superficial examination is often found to be very incomplete and lacking in many conveniences, after it has been purchased.

Nowadays all cars run but some run with considerably less bother than others.

In this respect the Overland has many desirable advantages — advantages that will appeal particularly to your wife.

All electric controls are located on the steering column — within natural reach. Nothing could be simpler or more convenient.

The clutch and brake pedals are adjustable to any angle. Another convenience.

Also, they "give" with practically no effort. One does not have to strain in order to apply the brake or disengage the clutch.

The steering wheel is large and turns very easily. Strength is not a bit necessary. A young girl can handle it.

The shifting lever is handy and shifts readily. It is placed so that it in no way interferes with either the driver or other occupant of the front seat.

All storm curtains can be put on in a few minutes, without getting out of the car. They are arranged so that they almost fall in place.

These few things are indicative of Overland comforts and conveniences. Your wife will appreciate them.

Compared with other popular-priced cars, the Overland has many decided advantages.

Our dealer will be glad to go into detail.

The Wet Weather Romance of the "Girl who was on the Square"

It Wasn't Mr. Reese Who Gave Mrs. Reese the Happy Title Printed on the Other Side of This Page—Oh, No! It Was the Man Who Wrote of Fond Memories and the Weather! Now There's a Divorce Suit and a Cross-Suit, With Mrs. Reese the First Aggressor.

Mrs. Effie Reese, Who Says Her Husband Had Too Much of an Eye for the Beauties of a Chorus. Mr. Reese Retaliates by Declaring His Wife's Eyes Were Not Blind to the Handsome Features of a Certain Artist.

Uncle Sam Says "This Weather" Was Wet!

THE "On the Square" letter from "Milton H. Trigg" to "My Dear Effie," written on the stationery of the Te-a-Kun-Kah Canoe Club of Rockford, Ill., is dated August 21, 1913.

One sentence of the missive reads: "This weather brings back some of our little times last year and makes me long to get back to 'Chi.'"

Naturally the question: "What kind of weather was 'this weather' that it should recall romance long since past?

Uncle Sam answers that question by turning to the records of the Chicago weather office for the above date. He says the same weather prevailed over the greater part of Illinois.

Here is an extract from the record:

"Maximum temperature, 87; minimum, 73; mean for day, 80; precipitation, .11 inch; partly cloudy all day; lightning observed from the station at 7 p. m., followed by thunder."

Wet weather, of course.

IT WAS long after midnight. Charles Wilbur Reese, his feet snugly encased in a pair of slippers, leaned back in a comfortable old arm chair and puffed away on his French briar. Charles Wilbur Reese was wont to woo the fragrant weed when confronted with a vexing problem. And one stared him in the face now.

Where was Effie Reese?

The perplexed husband, failing for the first time to find an answer in the oracle of smoke rings, laid aside his pipe and picked up a book. He would read until his wife put in an appearance, and then—well, he didn't know exactly what he would do then. Ask for an explanation, of course, and—— But the type danced before his eyes. He could not put the strange circumstance from his mind.

Where COULD his wife be?

"Movie" Mystery.

A short while later he heard footsteps. Tossing the book on a table Reese went to the front window and peered into the dark street. There in front of the apartment stood Mrs. Reese and a young woman friend—yes, and a man! Of that Reese was sure.

A key in the lock—enter Mrs. Reese.

"Effie!"

"Yes, Wilbur."

"Effie, where have you been so late?"

"Why, to a moving picture show."

"What theater?"

Mrs. Reese tried to think of the name, but couldn't—for a moment.

"Why, it was—let me see—yes, it was the——" and she designated the place. "You are so cross, Wilbur, that it confuses me."

"Is that theater open all night?" asked Reese.

Rain Brings Trouble.

"No, but you see I have on my new hat and champagne-colored shoes," replied the wife. "It was raining and I didn't want to get them wet—so I waited in the 'L' station."

"That man—who was he?"

Emphatic denial on the part of Mrs. Reese that she had been in the company of any man.

"Good night, Effie."

"Good night, Wilbur."

That, in brief, was the opening chapter in the divorce court story, "Troubles of the Reese Domicile; or, The Girl Who Was Always on the Square." The why of the subtitle you will learn in subsequent chapters.

To go on with the story:

Reese, a Chicago theatrical man, says he was not quite satisfied with his wife's explanation on the night (or early morning) above mentioned, and so hired a private detective to "periscope" her movements.

"Soon afterward," declares Reese, "the detective came to the theater and told me to put on my hat and coat. 'Mrs. Reese,' he said, 'is in the company of a handsome-looking man.' I was dumfounded—couldn't believe it. You see, I had been hoping against hope that my suspicions were groundless. But I went, and sure enough—well, I caught them spooning."

It was Mrs. Reese's next move in the domestic game of checkers. She filed suit for divorce, charging unfaithfulness, non-support and cruelty against her husband. Then Reese moved again. He filed a cross-bill, in which he alleged that two others had shared with him in the affections of his wife.

It is the court's next move, but in the meantime let us consider a bit of the evidence which promises to make the trial one of lively interest to the parties involved.

Is He a Pirate Bold?

In the vault of Michael Koch, attorney for Reese, are some letters which Reese says he found in his wife's dresser drawer soon after she had filed suit for divorce. Memories of "happy days" and "good old times together," of little trips in the enjoyable company of the girl "who was always on the square," are recalled in these missives. Some are signed "M. H. T." and others "Milton H. Trigg."

The reputed author of the letters is a designer and builder of mausoleums, and one time commodore of the Te-a-Kun Kah Canoe Club of Rockford, Ill. He is a bachelor and central figure in Rockford social circles and is well known in Chicago. Trigg and C. O. Longabaugh, a Chicago artist, are the men mentioned in the cross-bill. The latter is the alleged "handsome-looking" fellow found in the company of Mrs. Reese.

To return to the letters. One dated at Chicago on Nov. 25, 1912, seeks to explain why the writer did not meet "Effie" as per agreement.

My Dear Effie: Received your letter of Nov. 20, and was very much surprised to learn that you were at ——— drug store Wednesday night. When I returned from Rockford Mr. Longabaugh told me that he had made a date with you for me at 8:30 p. m. So on Wednesday night I went out there and waited from 8:25 to 8:50, but you didn't show up, so I thought perhaps you were not coming, inasmuch as I didn't call you up to confirm date.

One passage of this letter refers to Longabaugh in the familiar term of "Longy."

"It is a quadrangular affair instead of the conventional 'triangle of hearts,'" said Attorney Koch in exhibiting the letter. "Strangely enough, both men who find themselves entangled in the domestic affairs of the Reeses were aids to each other in their alleged clandestine associations with Mrs. Reese."

The writer of the above missive refers to "Effie's" letter of Nov. 20. In the dresser drawer where Reese says he found the Trigg letters he also ran across some which he declares are in the handwriting of his wife—copies, he believes, of those mailed to Trigg. One dated Nov. 20, 1912, reads as follows:

My Dear Mr. Trigg: Just a line to inform you of the way I feel in regards to your treatment of me.

Now, I don't know, but it seems to me I would not treat my friends as you seem to have occasion to do. (The letter seems unconnected here.) Therefore the request that you call me on on Saturday at my mother's home. You also requested me not to forget to keep Saturday open for you, and I consented. When Saturday arrived you had a gentleman friend of yours call up and inform me that you had received a telegram in the morning and had to hurry right home to your parents.

He further stated that you desired to see me some evening through the week. So, using him as a go-between, I made an appointment for Wednesday at 6 p. m. sharp. Now I went down there at 9 sharp on said evening and you were not there, and I waited till 9:05 and then started toward home again.

Now, my time is valuable, just as well as yours, and I have already wasted two evenings in one week thinking I was going to have the pleasure of your company for the evening, but it is very evident to me now that it is a very one-sided affair.

Had I not previously been made gratefully happy by your frank cordiality toward me I should unquestionably accept your present manners as indicative of your wishes to me. But as it is, I don't understand you, and I am sure you don't understand me. If I have offended you in any way, it has been unknowingly, and it would be a privilege to be allowed to explain or apologize.

With this in view would you give me the pleasure of an answer at once, or if it is a matter of perfect indifference (the next few lines are missing) to make an excuse in consideration of my feelings. As ever, yours truly,

EFFIE G. R.

"On the Square," Says Builder.

The "on the square" letter from "Milton H. Trigg," written on Te-a-Kun-Kah Canoe Club stationery, is dated Aug. 21, 1913. It reads in part:

My Dear Effie: Just a few lines to see whether you've forgotten me as yet. Have been going to write you for a long time, but just put it off and off.

Did you get my letters a while ago, girlie? If so, you didn't answer—maybe you are sore at me, but I hope not. I was at drug store both nights, but you didn't show up.

This weather brings back some of our little times last year and makes me long to get back to "Chi" again. I sure did enjoy your company—more so than any girl I ever associated with in there. I ALWAYS FOUND YOU TO BE ON THE SQUARE.

Expect to go back and open an office again pretty soon and will run in Aug. 25 for a few days. Will you meet me somewhere, Effie, Monday night? Or, better still, reserve a couple of the best seats at some good show for Monday night. Let me know where to meet you and name of show, and I'll get the tickets Monday a. m., when I get in. Or, if you'd rather, we'll go across the lake or out to one of the amusement parks—in fact, anywhere you wish.

I certainly would like to see you again, and will assure you a good time this winter if you see fit. Must close and get busy. With hopes of hearing from you by return mail, sincerely,

MILTON H. TRIGG.

"This weather" also brought back memories to "Effie," according to a letter which Reese says is in the handwriting of his wife and which he believes is a copy. It is dated July 18, 1914, and reads in part:

My Dear Milton: Just a line to see whether you have forgotten me as yet. Have been going to write for a long time.

This weather brings back some of our good times and makes me long to see you again. I sure did enjoy your company and have wished to see you time and again, but I was afraid to write you.

Do you remember saying the last time I met you that should I ever wish to write to do so, even if it happened to be ten years hence? Well, I have done so, but I am afraid of the reception I may receive after this length of time. Well, here's hoping to receive a reply. Sincerely, EFFIE.

That Horrid Weather Again.

A letter from "M. H. T." is dated at Rockford, Aug. 14, 1914. Again recalling "old times, especially during this weather," it reads in part:

My Dear Girl: Received your letter some few days ago. It came like a bolt from a clear sky. Really, I thought that domestic tranquillity was your lot by this time, but I, like you, cannot help but recall our happy little times, especially during this weather.

I intended to write long before, and really was surprised to open your letter this a. m. and see that it had been neglected this long—since July 29. Presume you have been enjoying life since last I saw you—at any rate, I hope so.

Expect to be in Milwaukee from Monday a. m. until Thursday p. m., Aug. 17-20, and will run down to Chicago and meet you any of those days or nights just to bring back old times. Write me, girlie, and set time and place and I'll be there promptly; or if you could arrange to come to Milwaukee I'll meet you—either way suits me to a "T."

I surely hope that you can meet me. I think we'd have some time—in fact, I know it. Well, dear, think it over and write me. I may not get time to reply before our date, but bank on it—I'll be there to meet you at the time set. Hastily, M. H. T.

Mrs. Reese vigorously denies that she received the "Girl on the Square" letters which her husband claims to have found—letters which hint audaciously of good times departed and which breathe scented hopes of similar cuttings-up in future. Likewise does she deny authorship of the supposed "copied" letters which Reese says are in her handwriting.

"Wilbur needn't think people will be so foolish as to believe that trash," declares pretty Mrs. Reese. "It is he who has broken the marriage vow. As a theatrical man he had a fine opportunity to eye the beauty of the dancing girls in the front row of a chorus. Why, he even used to boast to me of his affairs with women of the stage. He would come home and say: 'I'm some heart-breaker, I am! A classy sort of fellow—and don't you forget it! I travel with swell dolls!'"

Wilbur stands pat on the letters.

Destroying Germs

CHEMISTS employed by hospitals have found that disease germs die quickly on certain building materials. It has been found by the tests made that the strongest or most resistant germs perish within a day when placed on the surface of linoleum. This is due to the large quantity of linseed oil used with the cork in making linoleum.

Tests have also shown that it is the use of linseed oil as a binding medium which gives to many wall paints their claim of being effective for hospital use. It is claimed that as the oil leaves the paints they lose their powers of sterilization.

In the Atlanta Theaters

"A Pair of Sixes."

(At the Atlanta.)

"A Pair of Sixes," the farce which New York critics declared to be the funniest play ever seen on the New York stage and which ran for an entire year at the Longacre theater, New York, will be presented at the Atlanta Monday, Tuesday and Wednesday, with a Wednesday matinee, by a company of well-known actors. It is in three acts. The author is Edward Peple, who has already wo na high place among American dramatists by his other great successes, "The Prince Chap," and "The Littlest Rebel."

The plot deals with two partners, who disagree as to the relative importance in the conduct of a prosperous patent medicine business, and they decide, after much squabbling and recrimination, to sever their business interests. But their partnership agreement does not provide for any method by which they can end their relations.

Their lawyer is called in, but they decline the various business ideas and he finally suggests the inexpensive method of playing a show-down poker hand to see which of the partners will have control of the business, as well as the direction of the other partner's affaire. "A Pair of Sixes" wins, and the winner obtains the services of his partner as a butler in his household for one year, under an ironclad agreement by which not a word of explanation shall be made nor an order violated, without the payment of so many fines that the loser would be bankrupt.

After the butler is installed in his menial duties, he is almost driven frantic by a homely old cockney housemaid, who pursues him with her attentions. To make matters worse, his sweetheart arrives as a guest in the house. He cannot explain for fear of the fines which would sacrifice his interest in the business, and the wife of the winner sympathizes so openly with the unlucky partner that her husband becomes jealous. This amusing condition of affairs develops the most hilarious fun and twisted situation, which are finally straightened out through the cleverness of the loser's sweet heart, who ultimately plays the winning hand.

Field's Minstrels.

Bryan and Roosevelt are the characters, the Mexican situation the motif and side thrusts are taken at the war in Europe, in "Autumn Rhinehart's Chicken Dinner Party," Al G. Field's Greater Minstrels, which will be seen at the Atlanta Thursday, Friday and Saturday, with a Saturday matinee.

This section of the minstrel show is a three-scene satire, garnished with music and bursting with broad fun, and hot shots at the national events of the hour. Bryan appears with his dove of peace and his jug of grape juice, wanting to know why an investigation hasn't been started, and wanting to tell all how universal peace can be obtained. He is hardly upon the scene before Roosevelt makes an appearance literally weighed down with guns and snorting his policies and beliefs.

These dignitaries, together with ambassadors from all nations, have accepted the invitation of Auntie Skinner, an amiable old colored lady, who wishes to entertain them with a chicken dinner. The gathering has been for the purpose of settling the trouble in Mexico, but, when it is discovered that the chickens have been stolen, General Bluffins (played by Bert Swor), is held to account, and is tried. After a mock legal proceeding, full of bright repartee, the prisoner is allowed to go free.

Then Bryan, advocate of peace, becomes a combat fighter and Roosevelt, exponent of strenuousity, makes a plea for peace. The fun goes on to a remarkable climax. This is when a bull rushes on, and Bryan, erstwhile chautauqua speaker, is shown in the guise of a matadore.

"Damaged Goods."

(At the Atlanta.)

The Atlanta, on October 4, for three nights, will present Richard Bennett's cowerful play, Eugene Brieux's startling drama, "Damaged Goods," which proved so successful at the Fulton theater, New York, for over two hundred performances. "Damaged Goods" is strong and its presentation of truths, which, although not always welcome, cannot be denied. It strips the veil of secrecy from the most vital sex problem of the day.

"The Only Girl."

(At the Atlanta.)

In writing "The Only Girl," which is to be produced at the Atlanta October 7, 8 and 9, by Joe Weber, the author of the book, Henry Blossom, evidently bore in mind that theater-goers, while wishing to be amused also desire to have their amusements served up in a form fashion as far as, therefore, so it is admitted, provided a libretto that contains a story, both consistent and plausible, and has been to some pains to draw his characters so that they resemble human beings. Added to this, that the lines are witty and that the lyrics mean something, it was not so difficult for Victor Herbert, the composer, to provide a score that the critics have declared to be admirable in every respect.

Keith Vaudeville.

(At the Forsyth.)

Artists who are known wherever there is vaudeville will feature this week's bill at the Forsyth, with a great variety of offerings, from farce comedy to acrobatic stunts.

There is Flo Irwin, for instance, sister of May Irwin, and very much like her in method and character of offering. Miss Irwin will appear in "A Business Woman," a vehicle provided for her by Edgar Allan Woolf, when she returned to America from England. Miss Irwin is fresh from her European success. In England, for three years, she drew packed houses in honor in George Ade's clever farce, "Mrs. Pekham's Carouse."

Miss Clara Morton, one of the famous Four Mortons, will also be in the bill. Assisted by Frank Sheen, she will appear in a musical diversion by Jamie McCree, in which there will be dancing and plenty of catchy music. Also on the bill are Hayes and Thatcher, who will appear in a clever comedy act.

Lovers of good dancing will be glad to learn that the Metropolitan dancers, composed of six pretty girls from the Metropolitan Opera House ballet, will be seen at the Forsyth next week. They will present the Hungarian dance, valse caprice, Gipsy Tarantella and the Bacchanale of Saint Saens, and others, amid gorgeous settings. George and May LeVere will be in the company.

Harry Breen composes a lyric while he audience waits and adapts it to any occasion. The most trival happenings by him are converted into song, and always with a touch of comedy.

The three Hickey brothers present a lovely and very strenuous acrobatic dance, among other specialities. Opening with songs and a lively line of talk they follow with dances and acrobatic stunts.

The Reed brothers, gymnasts, are just as clever as comedians and pantomimists, and under their handling "The Eccentric Waiter" becomes a character comedy, so well they veil their real work. Those who are bored with a gymnastic act are entertained by the comedy in this one.

And there is, besides, the ever-popular Bray animated cartoons and the Pathe motion pictures. It will be a bill for every taste.

Jewell Kelley.

(At the Bijou.)

The Jewell Kelley Stock company begins its fourth week of their present engagement at the Bijou theater, tomorrow matinee and night, offering for the week the western comedy in four acts, entitled "Hunted Down," a play dealing with the days of '49—the scenes laid in California and in the Sierras.

The play calls for beautiful scenic environments and Artist Powell has prepared one of the most stupendous productions ever seen on the Bijou stage. The first act is up in the Sierra' mountains on a jutted cliff of the peaks, where a violent electrical and rain storm will be introduced. Another scene in the play will be in one of the notorious gambling and dance halls of the earlier days of '49. No expense has been spared to make these stage settings historically correct, and beautiful to the eye.

Jewell Kelley will have the leading role this week, a heroic westerner of the west, a country from which he originally hails and which he is admirably fitted to portray. Miss Rose Morris will have the leading feminine role. Mr. Blackaller will have a comedy part in which he will excel, and Mr. Rose, Mr. Bennett, Mr. Williams, Miss McCraney, Miss Bowman, and all the cast will be seen in congenial roles. Ladies will be admitted free each Monday night, upon the usual conditions, provided tickets are purchased before 6 p. m. Monday at the box office.

The Jewell Kelley company played to packed houses all last week and the play, "Was She to Blame?" made a most favorable impression upon the audience. The company is the best Mr. Kelley has ever brought to Atlanta, and all members are making many friends. This will be the seventy-seventh week for the Jewell Kelley company in Atlanta, the longest run ever known in the south for any stock organization.

Matinees are given daily at the Bijou, with the curtain at 2:30, while the curtain rises on the evening performance at 8:30. Seats may be secured one week in advance for any performance. Phone Main 2451.

FINANCE COMMITTEE WILL MEET MONDAY

Chairman Farlinger Hopes to Decrease Materially Present Deficit of $100,000.

The finance committee of council did not meet Saturday morning as contemplated, the members of the committee wishing to take a day off. The next meeting will be held Monday morning at 10 o'clock, when the preparation of the October apportionment sheet will be resumed.

Nym Hurt, chief of construction, says he will do all within his power to curtail the expenses of his department for the balance of the year to help the finance committee meet the deficit which is now a little more than $100,000.

Chairman Farlinger, of the committee, says that by cutting a little here and there he hopes to materially decrease the deficit, and at the same time take care of the necessary added expenses.

MAY ORGANIZE A BOYS' BUGLE AND DRUM CORPS

Colonel Orville H. Hall is planning to organize a boys' bugle and drum corps for the Fifth regiment of the Georgia national guards. Colonel Hall says that something must be done to awaken interest in the military, and he hopes to have the co-operation of the citizens of Atlanta. He thinks a boys' bugle and drum corps, to be composed of twelve buglers and twelve drummers, would help to make the members of the command take more interest in the drills.

Colonel Hall says he hopes to secure the drums for the bugle and drum corps from the Kibla lodge of the Knights of Khorassan, which had such a corps, that was disbanded.

NORTH AVENUE CHURCH WILL HOLD RALLY OCT. 3

Sunday, October 3, will be the annual rally day for the Sunday school of North Avenue Presbyterian church, and it is expected that the attendance on this day will break all previous records.

Last year the capacity of the school was taxed with 998 present; but 1,201 has been set as the attendance goal for next Sunday and accommodations for that number will be provided.

Dr. Marion Hull, the superintendent, has arranged a unique plan of campaign to cover the coming week, preceding the first Sunday in October, and the co-operation of the entire school, as well as officers and teachers, has been enlisted for the publicity feature of the movement.

ANNEX TO RATHSKELLER OF ANSLEY IS OPENED

Hundreds of Guests Amazed and Delighted With Transformation Achieved.

The fall gastronomic season may be said to have been fully, if not formally, opened Saturday night at Hotel Ansley, when every chair around every table of the large rathskeller and in the beautiful new annex was occupied from early in the evening until late at night with many of Atlanta's epicures.

When the business men of Atlanta decided to hold the fall carnival Manager Secker, who had tentative plans for the annex under way, promptly decided to push his plans to an early conclusion, and the result of his declsion was thrown open to the patrons last night, and it proved an instantaneous success from every point of view. Hundreds admired the much-needed addition. The twelve panels of the room have been artistically treated, by the brush of a noted New York mural and scenic artist, with exquisite landscapes such as may be seen in the mountains of north Georgia. The overhead is liberally grilled with neat pergolas, over which are intertwined abundant vines and wistaria blossoms, and here and there are to be found multi-colored butterflies waving their silken wings to the freshly blown breezes of the cool air plant below. At regular intervals mellow moonlight, shimmering sunlight and soft sunset glows are diffused over the scenes by a system of 216 slow automatic flashlights.

Manager Secker has been catering to the cultured taste of Georgians for the past two years, and has been careful to note their likes, and to that end has imported an Italian chef, who graduated from the Hotel Royal, in Naples, where for several years he was the "autocrat of the culinary." Musical Director Karl von Lawrenz is just back from New York, where this week he assembled another concert orchestra for the Ansley. Both orchestras will be put into immediate commission for the winter and spring. A noted vocalist has been engaged, and daily concerts will be given both on the mezzanine and in the rathskeller. The convention hall has been redecorated and painted for the coming of the national convention of the Daughters of America, which assembles here October 3-8. There will be two hundred delegates, nearly all of whom have engaged rooms. It promises to be one of the notable gatherings of the year.

COLUMBUS WALTONS NOW BAITING HOOKS WITH MUSCADINES

Columbus, Ga., September 25.—(Special.)—Are fish fond of muscadines? In the opinion of Chief J. T. Moore and fellow-fishermen they are.

Chief Moore, Sergeant Henry Voight and two or three other members of the force spent two days and a night on the Uchee creek, a stream a few miles west of Columbus noted for its pictorial wonders, and with its natural charm considerably enhanced by the periodical reports of A. Howard Bickerstaff, president of the William Bickerstaff Brick company and the Bickerstaff Brick company, who is the recognized spokesman for the Uchee.

One of the shrewd policemen, who was a member of the bluecoat fishing party, noticed that a large muscadine vine was suspended over the creek at a certain point, and forthwith a theory occurred to him. He quietly set out a set-hook at that point, and slipping back quietly to the police launch found that he had caught a fish weighing six or seven pounds and which churned the water at a terrific rate when he approached. When the fish was cut open about a quart of muscadines was found inside. The officer's theory had worked out.

Among the fishes captured on this official foray into the Uchee swamps was a turtle weighing 25 pounds. It was caught with hook and line.

HARRIS HUNTERS GIVE SIR REYNARD ANOTHER CHASE

Columbus, Ga., September 25.—(Special.)—The water that runs through the mill may be gone forever, but the fox that is caught in the chase need not necessarily doubt that his days of usefulness are over.

A number of Columbus people attended a big fox hunt in Harris county, and Sir Reynard was finally bagged after a long and strenuous pursuit over the hills and through the creek bottoms of that picturesque section.

It was very fine sport and the participants were eager for another just like it. But foxes are getting scarce and can't always be scared up to make an occasion like this complete, and a fox hunt without a fox is a rather lobsided affair.

So it was decided to retain the captured fox, treat him with kindness and chivalry, give him a position of honor in the community for a few days and then release him and have another hunt, giving him, of course, a decent start. It is the general belief that the fox on this second trial will make a record that will even surpass the recent achievements in the vicinity of the Privet marshes.

Perpetual Youth.

(From The Louisville Courier-Journal.)

The fountain of mermaids are pleasing,
A lot of fair sea nymphs you're seeing,
They always look lissome and tensing
And not ever sweet seventeen.
The fountain of true youth, by thunder,
Must spring from the sea waters cold.
We gaze at those picture and wonder

Boils and Pimples Dangerous S. S. S. Your Remedy

Standard For Fifty Years

Modern science has proven that boils and carbuncles, pimples and unsightly skin blotches, are the danger signals of diseased blood. Scaly skin and itching of Eczema, Scrofula, rashes—all skin diseases are aggravated by bad blood—it's the infected blood that's dangerous. Don't wait for the boils. If you have pimples and blotches, take instant action. Pimples tell you that your blood is filled with impurities. You must wash out your blood, strengthen and stimulate it to healthy action with Nature's own blood tonic, S. S. S. It is the standard blood purifier of the world. Don't use any drugs, don't use ointments and salves. S. S. S. reaches the blood, drives out the impurities. It makes healthy perspiration—the poison is literally sweated out through the skin. Boils, blotches, Eczema and the Scrofula indications disappear. It does what salves and lotions can never do—it goes to the very root of the trouble by reaching the blood. Your skin becomes clear and you soon feel the vigor of the return of perfect health. S. S. S. is purely vegetable. You can get it at any druggist's, but you must take S. S. S. Let us tell you about blood diseases. Write for book of facts, "What the Mirror Tells." If yours is a long standing case, write for expert advice to S. S. S. Co., Atlanta, Ga.

"Carmen," With Farrar in Leading Role, Will Be Shown at the Lyric Week of October 4

"Carmen," with Geraldine Farrar in the leading role, one of the greatest pictures ever produced, will be shown in Atlanta the week beginning October 4.

And this will be the first showing of the big production.

In order to secure the big feature for his program Mr. Tandy made several trips to New York and Chicago. He succeeded not only in getting the picture, but conceived the idea of showing it first in Atlanta, and in this he was also successful.

A London syndicate sent a representative to America with a proposition of $100,000 profit on the cost of production and 25 per cent of the receipts for the privilege of showing it. On account of the fact that the Paramount had a contract with the Lasky company for the entire output, this offer was declined, and will be released through the Atlanta office in the south.

An agreement has been reached with the management of the Lyric for the showing of the big feature for an entire week. In order to give it the very best possible projection, two of the latest and most expensive motion picture machines have been ordered from New York, and every other detail has been perfected to make this the event of the motion picture world in Atlanta.

A large symphony orchestra will furnish the music for the picture, this music having been arranged expressly for this purpose by a composer of national reputation. Of course, a large majority of Atlantans are familiar with "Carmen," but this music has been arranged in such a manner as to just fit the actions on the screen, and the effect is remarkable as well as highly pleasing.

SHORT CROP OF CANE REPORTED IN CAIRO

Thomasville, Ga., September 25.—(Special.)—Fears over the shortage of the south Georgia sugarcane crop continue to be expressed, and from all sections come the reports of crops being injured by the dry weather. It is said that Cairo, which is the largest syrup market east of the Mississippi river and which receives from 25,000 to 30,000 barrels a season, is not expecting more than 10,000 barrels this year. Meigs in this county, which always counts upon 4,000 barrels, is not expecting more than a thousand, and other points are reporting equally as poor an outlook. The prices are expected to be pretty high, too, and the farmer who has anything of a crop can look for fine returns from the sale of his syrup this season.

The bridal party entered the church to Mendelssohn's wedding march, played by Miss Dora Haynes. The ushers were Messrs. W. M. Sheats, Leonville Parker, Leonard Davidson and Albert Wood.

Miss Kate White, the maid of honor, entered alone and was beautifully gowned in white crepe de chine and Georgette crepe. She carried pink roses.

The bride entered with her brother, Mr. Fred White, and was met at the altar by the groom and his best man, Mr. Fred Sheats. She was a picture of girlish loveliness in her wedding gown of crepe meteor combined with Georgette crepe and trimmed with pearls. Her veil was caught to her hair with a wreath of valley lilies and she carried a shower bouquet of bride roses and valley lilies.

She was attended to the altar by her little niece, Margaret Howell, who wore a beautiful white dress with pink ribbons, and carried the ring in a rose.

As a matter of preparedness

Let us suggest that you dry clean your winter wear while the sun shines—while you can afford these friends a leave of absence.

Pretty soon it is going to get cold, and you'd feel mighty good if all the heavy things were ready--looking fine and dandy--when you called.

Practice preparedness.

Holstein Cows' Milk for Nursing Mothers

HOLSTEIN MILK Health Vitality Nutrition REG. U. S. PAT. OFF.

Success in feeding infants with Holstein Cows' Milk emphasizes the health possibilities of this milk also.

By ordering it for nursing mothers, physicians are able to build up exhausted women and prolong the nursing period.

The same reasons that make Holstein Milk the only suitable milk for the bottle-fed baby make it an ideal milk for anyone with impaired digestion and for those who find ordinary milk distasteful. The butter-fat is not excessive and is in the form of small, even globules less than half the size of those in ordinary milk. That means more rapid digestion.

LAGRANGE COLLEGE NOTES.

LaGrange college held opening exercises with an unusually full enrollment, and a great enthusiastic audience of patrons and friends. A delightful program had been prepared, and all the numbers were thoroughly enjoyed. Among those who made short, live talks were Dr. R. P. Stokes, Mr. W. S. Witham, Colonel A. J. Thompson and Miss Daisy Davies. New students are coming in daily, and the prospects for the year are bright and encouraging.

Misses Annie Sutton, of Woodbury; Florence Blanton, of Griffin, and Nellie Park, of Moreland, are among the new girls enrolled this week.

The Mezzofantian and Irenian Literary societies have both held enthusiastic meetings. The programs were interesting, powerful and splendid credit upon these organizations.

The tennis courts, basketball field and swimming pool are gay with students. During the hot days of last week the swimming pool was a favorite resort at all recreation periods. The new physical director, Miss Hilda Threlkeld, of Kentucky, has won the confidence and admiration of the entire student body, and is the leading spirit in all athletic sports.

SHORTER COLLEGE NOTES.

The opening of the college on Thursday morning, September 16, was gratifying to the trustees, faculty and students. Shorter never had a larger attendance; the interest manifested by the people of Rome was very pleasing to President Vandiver, the great address of Dr. F. C. McConnell, of Atlanta, was an inspiration to all who heard it.

The interest in the regular courses was never so great at Shorter as at present; a very large majority of the students have registered for the full A. B. course; the literary courses have all desks taken, and the college has assumed the proportions for which the literary faculty has been striving since the institution passed under the control of the present administration.

Mrs. Albert Fendig, of Brunswick, Ga., was a very pleasant visitor at Shorter last week. She came with her daughter, Miss Selma, who entered the college for a full A. B. course.

Mrs. R. L. Shipp, of Moultrie, Ga., visited Shorter on Friday last. Her daughter, Miss Mary Kline, will doubtless make a fine record during the year.

Mrs. J. S. Simpson, of Chicago, Ill., entered her daughter, Miss Ruth, and Miss Frances Schmidt as students on the opening day. Mrs. Simpson remained at the college several days, and motored to Atlanta with Dr. and Mrs. Van Hoose on Tuesday last.

Misses Virginia, Bernice and Evangeline Neal, of Oreana, Idaho, are among our new girls.

Many improvements were made at the college during the summer, and the old girls are rejoicing over the many things that have been done for their comfort and pleasure.

G. N. & I. COLLEGE.

The first reception given was, as usual, on Saturday evening following the opening of school, at which time the Y. W. C. A. was hostess to the new students and faculty. The receiving line stood on the broad colonial porch of Parks hall, and in it were the cabinet of the Y. W. C. A. and the advisory members of the faculty. The cabinet is as follows: President, Katherine Tigner, of White Sulphur Springs; vice president, Madian Moran, Linton; treasurer, Ruby Dula Clanton; secretary, Olive Moran, Linton, and chairmen of various committees—Annie Lee, Oxford; Georgia McKay, Thomasville; Grace Hillhouse, Sylvester; Rose Dillard, Robertstown; Minnie Smith, Greenville; Ann Dillard, Augusta, and Ellen Huff, Walden. A most interesting and enjoyable program was given, consisting of readings by Mildred Wright and Inez Lord, vocal solos by Miss Tucker, head of the music department, and Miss Leonora Ivey, and piano solo by Miss Bishop, the new member of our music faculty. A warm and hearty welcome was accorded the new girls especially.

A most delightful occasion was a reception given on Monday evening at the teachers' home by Misses Alice Tucker and Mamie Pearl in honor of Miss Helen Hoover, who was once a member of our faculty, and Miss Florence Bishop, our new teacher of piano. The receiving line stood on the porch, at one end of which several pretty girls served a cooling punch. Besides the hostesses and guests of honor, Mrs. Ora Hart Avery assisted. After an hour spent in laughter and conversation, a program was given. A piano solo, by Mrs. E. R. Hines, and reading by Mrs. Avery, a vocal solo by Miss Leonora Avery, a reading by Professor Stell and a piano solo by Miss Bishop.

The first "big walk" took place on Thursday afternoon, at which time, on the invitation of President Parks, the entire school and faculty were invited to go on a picnic across the river and spend an hour or so on the beautiful Treanor meadow. Several of these enjoyable affairs are given each year, and are looked forward to from one to the other.

The entire corps was in the receiving line and received a large number of Sparks residents.

The faculty recital on last Friday evening at the college auditorium was well attended and highly appreciated. Miss Sarah Kinnon, piano; Miss Frances Waddell, voice, and Miss Frances Holden, expression, proved themselves delightful entertainers, and stimulated added interest among the audience in the work of the fine arts departments.

Saturday afternoon and evening the Athenian Literary society of the school entertained in commemoration of its fourth anniversary. The afternoon's attraction was an informal gathering on the college campus, when progressive conversation was enjoyed. The evening was taken up with an address of rare interest and inspiration by Rev. John D. Smith, of Morven, Ga.

Atlanta National Bank

Celebrates Its

Fiftieth Anniversary

To Our Friends And Patrons---

IN COMMEMORATION of our Fiftieth Anniversary, we are going to hold "Open House," so to speak, on MONDAY and TUESDAY, September 27 and 28, and we are pleased to extend a cordial and especial invitation to our friends and patrons to "drop in" socially on us during these two days.

We believe we are more than justified in the sincere pride we feel in the growth and strength of the Atlanta National Bank—and we are quite sure scores and scores of our friends share this pride with us, and will take advantage of the opportunity to drop by and at least wish us "many happy returns of the day."

Since the organization of this institution—in 1865—up to this good hour, it has been the aim and purpose of its officers and management to accord to every patron that uniform courtesy which makes transactions with a bank a real pleasure. We believe we have lived up to that purpose. We believe thousands of our patrons feel the same way about it.

So, on MONDAY and TUESDAY next, if you feel like it, come in with a smile and a hearty handshake—you will be met with a like hearty welcome. Come in—get better acquainted with our corps of more than half a hundred active workers—ask as many questions as you like about our system and method of doing business.

We will be glad to see you—and will try to make you feel at home.

Our Service and Our Departments

THE HISTORY of the Atlanta National Bank affords an object lesson in sound, conservative management. It has, in its fifty years of service as a financial institution, never failed for a day to open its doors for business, nor failed to meet its every obligation without delay or embarrassment. Even during the dark years of '73, '93, and 1907, nor during its processes of removal from time to time to larger quarters, has there ever been a day when it was not ready and eager for business.

In May, 1903, owing to demands for larger quarters, its business and effects were moved into its present handsome home, the property of the bank, at the corner of Whitehall and Alabama streets, in the very heart of the shopping and business district.

During the past half century the bank has handled many of the most important banking transactions that have ever been developed in the south. And it can truly be said that the same unvarying conservatism and painstaking care exercised in these important interests is characteristic of the handling of each separate account intrusted to the care of this institution.

At present there are sixteen distinct departments to the bank.

The Ladies' Department and the Savings Department are conveniently located in the front of the main banking room. In the Savings Department interest is allowed on deposits at the rate of 3½ per cent, compounded semi-annually.

Foreign and Domestic Exchange bought and sold.

Interest is allowed on Certificates of Deposit at the rate of 3 per cent per annum from date of issue.

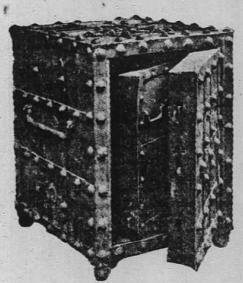
1865 : Our Deposit Vault



Here is reproduced a picture of the first safe used by General Alfred Austell, as a deposit vault, when the First National bank was started. It received the first deposit in the cotton states. It is now an object of unusual interest, with its two great keys, which unlocked the combination safe. This safe, with its keys, as well as the old and original ledger used by the bank, will be on exhibit in the lobby of the bank Monday and Tuesday.

ALABAMA ELEVEN POINTING TO TECH

Yellow Jackets Are One Team the Alabamians Are Set on Defeating--Sewanee the Other.

By Asa Rountree, Jr.

Tuscaloosa, Ala., September 25.—(Special.)—On next Saturday Coach Kelly will make his initial bow to southern football society when the remodeled Crimson eleven meets on the campus the offsprings of Eugene L. Cstoe, the old autovenson center, who this year is directing the destinies of the Howard college Baptists at Birmingham. Much is expected of Kelly and favorable, very favorable, has been the impression he has made through his systematic, thorough and earnest training program. And the opening bout will somewhat reveal the exact line of improvement wrought by the Irishman from the middle west. It will not be a fair test, coming as it does so early in the season, but it will afford evidence of the latent ability amassed on this year's team.

In preparation for the opening of hostilities Kelly has been pushing his varsity squad the past week. Five scrimmages have been listed on the program and yesterday a regulation affair was staged in order to test the stamina of those composing the tentative varsity.

Two complete elevens, in addition to a number of substitutes, will be carried throughout the season and efforts are being made by Coach Noojin to arrange a schedule for the reserves.

Stevenson a Find.

The remarkable showing of Halfback Stevenson, a student at Tech two years ago, who matriculated last week, has strengthened the backfield, and at the same time has complicated matters in this department. Before the advent of Stevenson it appeared as if Taylor and Bill Harsh, halfbacks; Brannon, fullback, and Hagan, quarterback, would comprise the varsity plunging brigade for the time being, but the unexpected strength of this new candidate cannot be overlooked and should he continue without faltering a place will assuredly have to be cleared for him.

Including Stevenson four more players were added to the training table, these being Grisham, end, a substitute of last season; Ervin, of Mobile, halfback; Whittlesly, tackle, another substitute of last fall, and Stevenson.

The return of Tubby Barnette, varsity center for three years, and Love, varsity end for a like period, has brightened up things from a Crimson viewpoint. Barnette resumed his old place at center on the varsity squad Thursday, but Love, who has been down with malaria, is having to take things easy for the time being. This means that Maynor, who was shifted from guard to fill the shoes of Barnette, will either act as understudy or will be tried again at guard in case he fails to make good. Basil Burke, who injured his ankle in scrimmage two weeks ago, is hobbling about the field and in another week will be able to get back into the line.

Grooming for Tech.

Although the Crimson will meet eight teams this fall, there are only two that are being looked forward to with any great anticipation, and these are the frolics with Georgia Tech and Sewanee, traditional rivals and conquerors of Alabama. The games with Howard, Birmingham college, Tulane and Mississippi college are not causing any great concern, while the University of Mississippi, a new addition to the schedule, does not vie with Tech and Sewanee on this account. The game with Austin college is being undertaken because of the financial benefit resulting therefrom.

But it is with Sewanee and Tech strongly in mind that the Crimson squad is being groomed. Last year Alabama was successful against Tech in Birmingham for the first time in more than ten years and in Atlanta this November Kelly is anxious to repeat.

And Sewanee is the other on the Crimson blacklist. Not since 1896, or thereabouts, have the Crimson waved in exultation over the Purple, although a draw was gleaned three years back, and a victory over Sewanee will alone make the season a success. So with these two games in mind, Kelly is priming his first Alabama football machine and it is to him and the regenerated eleven that the Crimson students and alumni are looking for the establishment of a long line of humiliations.

Here Is the "So-Sha-Belle" Roadster

HERE IS A UNIQUE NEW CAR.

What the Haynes Auto Co. call their "So-Sha-Belle" roadster is now on exhibition at 229 Peachtree street, the new headquarters of the dealership department. It is of very original design, seating five people, but in a unique way. The front seat is divided, with a third seat just behind the division. All passengers are enclosed within the top, when up, making a very sociable arrangement.

This design seems ideal for a touring roadster, for in addition to the large storage compartment at the rear, there is space at each side of the third seat for considerable luggage.

This is the first of this model to come south, the demand having been so great as to prevent early delivery. It is built on the standard 55-horsepower, 6-cylinder chassis, and, judging from the attention it is attracting, it should be a popular model in the south. A speed of 55 miles per hour is claimed for this model, as regularly equipped, with top down.

FIRESTONE CONVENTION HELD AT THE FACTORY

Wylie West and Eight Salesmen Leave Atlanta Tonight for Annual Conference.

Wylie West, of the Atlanta branch, Firestone Tire and Rubber company, accompanied by the following salesmen, who cover the southern states for the Atlanta branch, W. R. Stroupe, F. M. Bailey, H. Bilsby, R. D. Williams, T. L. Moore, W. E. Ellis, R. D. Caldwell and H. C. Buchanan, will leave tonight for the annual sales conference at the factory.

Salesmen of the Firestone Tire and Rubber company hold a big convention once each year at the home office in Akron, Ohio. A few years ago, at the first annual meeting, about thirty men were present, but this year's meeting, on September 28, 29 and 30, there will be more than 300 representatives from all over the world.

These men will attend general conferences at which they will be addressed by company executives, branch managers and salesmen. Each man will spend a generous amount of time in the factory studying most thoroughly the construction and manufacture of Firestone tires.

These men will see at the home plant five large additions under construction. These additions will provide over seven acres of additional floor space, and will allow an increase in the output of Firestone pneumatic tires from 7,500 to 12,000 a day. These 4,500 additional tires per day is a larger output than that permitted by the original new Firestone plant erected on its present site four years ago.

These hundreds of men with mutual interests through the daily conferences will gain abundant and valuable information. It is intended that each man will use this information to the advantage of the customers in his territory.

A large investment is represented by these days of study and exchanging of ideas. First it will be adequate dividends in better service for tire users. Moreover, it means a more up-to-date and better informed organization. The real reason for it all is that satisfied customers constitute the cornerstone of any great business.

NEWBERRY SWAMPED BY GEORGIA ELEVEN

Athena, Ga., September 25.—(Special.)—Georgia's first football game, a victory over Newberry college, South Carolina, 76 to 0, revealed fair promise for Red and Black strength in some respects. The first touchdown was made in less than four minutes and in the first ten-minute quarter 32 points were scored. Newberry spent little time on Georgia territory and never got a first down, while Georgia was forced to punt but once. The lighter team offered little resistance, Georgia piercing the line, circling the ends and forward passing easily. Captain Henderson did not play. Many substitutes were used by Cunningham. Powell was easily the star, getting long gains through the line, as much as twenty yards at a time. Dezendorff, Holzendorff and Davis did good work also.

"KING," ON 800-MILE RUN, MAKES A PERFECT SCORE

The local agency of the King Motor Car company has just received a telegram from San Francisco, announcing that the "King Eight," seated in high by Mayor Sebastian and County Sealer Fuller, had made an absolutely perfect score on a run of 800 miles from Santa Barbara to San Diego, from Venice by the Sea to Mount Arrowhead. The run was under the supervision of the automobile club officials and carried a full load over mountain grade. The King officials here are elated over the fine showing of their car.

Mercer 6, Gordon 0.

Macon, Ga., September 25.—(Special.)—Mercer downed Gordon by the score of 6 to 0 in the first game of the season at Central City park this afternoon. The first half passed without a score. Gordon received the kick and the struggle went on through the first two quarters without any features except the constant fumbling of the Mercer men and the inability of Gordon to make substantial gains.

The third quarter began with more pegs and Mercer soon had the ball within five yards of goal, on a fourth down.

Mercer lost the ball and Gordon kicked out of danger. The scoring came in the fourth quarter, when Newton made the sensational run of the game, taking the ball within nine yards of goal. Mercer made her touchdown on the next play. Swann, Wockley, Dorsey and Newton did star work for Mercer.

Princeton 15, Georgetown 0.

Princeton, N. J., September 25.—Princeton's eleven took advantage of Georgetown's weakness in fundamentals today and defeated the visitors 15 to 0 in the first football game of the season here. Disastrous fumbles enabled Princeton to score the first tally, while flashing runs by Ames and Moore, coupled with forward passes, gave the home eleven the second. The weather was warm for football.

Penn 7, West Virginia 0.

Philadelphia, September 25.—A touchdown following a forward pass gave the University of Pennsylvania a victory over West Virginia university today in the first football game of the season on Franklin field, 7 to 0. The only score of the contest came early in the first period on a forward pass from Fullback Berry to Left Halfback Ross.

Harvard 39, Colby 6.

Cambridge, Mass., September 25.—After the first and second Harvard elevens had beaten Colby decisively in the initial game of the season in the stadium today, the Maine players marched 53 yards through the third Crimson string for a touchdown in the fourth period. The final score was Harvard 39, Colby 6.

The Colby sweep down the field was accomplished in ten rushes. Harvard reinforcements arrived too late to stop the score.

The Crimson offense was lacking in the spectacular. No forward passes were even threatened.

Yale 27, Maine 0.

New Haven, Conn., September 25.—Yale easily defeated the University of Maine, 27 to 0, in the opening football game of the season here today. Under Thompson, a second string man, at quarter, the Blue played consistently in the first two periods, rolling up 20 points by old-fashioned line plunging and triple and forward passes. With Bentley and Watt at quarter in the last two periods, Yale's play became ragged.

VIRGINIA PROSPECTS ARE BRIGHTEST EVER

Ninety Candidates Out for the Team—Coach Varner Having Trouble Picking Best.

By W. R. Pate.

Charlottesville, Va., September 28.—(Special.)—The football season of 1915 bids fair to be the best ever in the history of the University of Virginia, that is, judging by early indications. Coach Varner, however, is suspicious over flattering outlooks, and says he won't make any boast that might go amiss, as they did in 1912, but that the Virginia team of 1915 bears watching.

There are 90 candidates out for the team, divided into six squads, twelve of the number being 'Varsity men. So the task confronting Coach Varner is not as difficult as the one that faces either Joe Wood. Still, filling the places of such men as Bobby Gooch, Pat Evans, Jim Gillette and Billy Ward is by no means an easy job for Coach Varner.

Last year there was a scarcity of line men, but this year there is a wealth of line material, and no reason why Virginia shouldn't have a strong aggressive line. It is true there is no veteran back in the east and quite a few of Gillette, end, and Evans, center, not returning, and the same by Bobby Gooch, ing of Rube Barker, all-southern tackle, to halfback, to fill Billy Ward's place.

Good Line Nucleus.

That leaves White, E. E. Ward, L. T. Coleman, L. G. Moore, R. G., of last year's team, thus forming a good nucleus for Varner to build on. Then at center there is Brown, of the 1913 team, a tall, 205-pounder. George Anderson, of last year's subs, who got in several of the games last season, and Tom Coleman (brother of the captain), who was barred the first part of last season by an unfortunate accident. At present it looks almost like a toss of the coin as to who will get the job, for all three are good men, and a merry fight is on between them.

For tackle to take place there is Stillwell and Stuart, of last year's scrubs, both big, rangy fellows; Blakey, of Charlottesville High school; Thurmond, of Mercersburg, one of the best punters in the east and quite a husky fellow, and Calvert, who played a star game for a prep school in Maine last year. McKay, of Davidson, is in college, but ineligible this year. At present Stillwell has the edge, but there has been only two or three scrimmages. So as to who will win out it is hard to predict, and no one envies Coach Varner of the job of selecting the right tackle.

Bus Flannigan seems to have nailed Jimmy Gillette's place at right end. Bus made a 'V' last year, and, though small, is full of grit and pluck. Godwin and Kingsolving, of last year's scrubs, are showing up well in practice at end, and either will fill the place. Poindexter, a tall 172-pounder, who played last year on the Missouri freshman team, is also out for end.

Backfield Is Fast.

As for the backfield, it looks like it will be close on to last years. Gooch will be missed, of course, and his place hard to fill. Bunny Berkerly, of last year's subs, is slated for the place. Berkerly played some in the Varsity and Yale games last year, and made a 'V.' He is small and light, but quick and a good field general. Other applicants for the position of Gooch's brother of Bobby Gooch, all-Virginia prep quarter. He played at Fishburne last year, Carrington, of Hampden-Sidney; Luck, sub at Vanderbilt in 1912 and star basketball man, and Wagenright, of Philadelphia high school.

Mayer will be back at left half, and Barker will take Ward's place at right half. Speight, of last year's scrubs, Ed Anderson, Fuller, Haux and Thornton are making fine showings. Tippett, of Johns Hopkins, is also out for position of half back. He was ineligible last year. He is a well-built fellow and an excellent punter and drop-kicker.

Coleman, of Stanford, Ky., is captain of this season's squad. He is occupant of the position of left end, and was pronounced the best guard in the United States by Emmons, himself an all-American guard. Simmons may him in action against North Carolina last year.

Dr. H. H. Varner is the coach of the Old Dominion boys this year, succeeding Joe Wood under the Virginia plan of alumni coaches. "Harry" is a student of the game, and in touch with every phase of it. His practical football training was received at Virginia Polytechnic institute several years ago, where he played a wonderful tackle and gained a position on the all-S. I. A. A. team. He only played one year at Virginia. Varner was assistant coach in 1912. He is being assisted by Rice Warren, Dave Wilson, Todd, Billy Gloth, Dr. Crawford, Dr. Neff, Pat Evans and Marden, all old Virginia stars.

TAYLOR EXPLAINS "BREAKER STRIP" TIRES TO MOTORISTS

"Many motorists ask me about the breaker strip in tires," says J. E. Taylor, branch manager of the Goodyear Tire and Rubber company.

"This is put in the tire to take the shocks before they can reach the organic part of the tire," he stated. "It is not designed to add to the strength or efficiency of the casing, but is simply an armor belt running around the casing to protect it from injury. The body of the tire is made of close-woven fabric placed at an angle of 45 degrees. The tread rubber is made thick and tough, and exerts a grip on the fabric, tending to pull it loose. By placing the breaker strip with the threads running around the circumference of the casing, this drag on the tread which pulls it away from the tire fabric is resisted.

When sharp stones or glass cut the tread rubber, according to Mr. Taylor, in many cases the abrasion is stopped at the breaker strip, preventing the water and dirt from working down to the main fabric. This helps to prevent water-soaking and sand blistering.

Mr. Taylor stated that the breaker strip is the nearest fabric to the road, receiving all the cuts, water, dirt and sand. It must be made, as far as possible, to resist the damage caused by them. To combat this we use a fabric of closely twisted yarn, tightly woven to make it waterproof, with rubber rivets extending through it at intervals. This allows a fabric which is more closely united to the rubber than the ordinary loose fabric, and has better waterproof qualities after the tread is cut.

"When the motorist has breaker strips," continued Mr. Taylor, "it is safe to say that undoubtedly this strip has saved the tire much more serious injury at a more vital point in its construction. To obtain the highest results we also maintain a cushion of rubber between this strip and the main fabric of the tire.

"The importance of this feature to combat tread separation and at the same time protect the main fabric from injury can hardly be overestimated."

How Magneto Ignition Gives Increased Power

Power, in a motor car, depends largely on ignition.

In many cars the old form of battery ignition is still used, because it lowers the cost of manufacture.

Practically all high priced cars have magneto ignition.

High tension magneto ignition is used on all Overland cars because—

And due to this hot spark, which increases in heat as the motor increases speed, magneto ignition develops more power.

PAIGE
The Standard of Value and Quality

The FAIRFIELD Seven Passenger "Six-46" 1295

And The Verdict Is Unanimous— A Greater, Finer Paige Than Ever

History repeats occasionally.

When the 1916 Paige "Six-46" was announced recently and the price was quoted at $1295—a full $100 less than the first "Six-48"—but a greater, finer Paige than its predecessor—

Some doubters said: "It can't be done. They can't sweep the country as they did with the first big Paige Six."

But here is where history is again repeating. The newest and greatest Paige "Six-46" is a triumph and is again dominating the field.

And it is achieving the victory from the standpoint of quality alone.

The first Paige "Six-46" was an amazing success because of its extraordinary value combined with exclusive and distinctive beauty.

The demand was so great that the capacity of the great Paige plant—a new plant—was insufficient. It had to be doubled at once.

And the Paige—since the advent of the first "Six-46"—has never caught up on its orders.

So with greater capacity and double the former production it is now possible to offer at $1295 a greater, a finer "Six-46" than last season. There has not been a compromise on a single point. On the contrary, add to all the vital qualities of the former model these—

Additional Values

A genuine Pantasote top; the best body finish money and time can achieve—a Richelieu blue, taking 24 days to complete by the air-drying process; genuine French glaze handbuffed leather upholstery.

Such is the Paige policy—to give the utmost—in producing the seven-passenger Six at $1295.

The same policy is responsible for the remarkable values in the new Paige Light Six—a five-passenger Six at $1095.

DIFFICULTIES OF ORGANIZATION.

IT was easier for Washington to play his own part of quiet authority and matter-of-course precedence than to fill the new offices of federal administration with men who could lend a like flavor to the conduct of affairs.

Ambitious men looked askance upon the new government: preferred the service of their states, if they wished political office at all; had to be persuaded to take federal office, and were asked to say nothing of the offer and refusal if they declined it.

Fortunately, there were not many offices to be filled, and for these efficient men were found.

The congress created but three administrative departments at the outset: the department of state, the department of the treasury and the department of war, though it provided also for the appointment of an attorney general.

Washington chose Thomas Jefferson to be secretary of state, Alexander Hamilton to be secretary of the treasury, General Henry Knox to be secretary of war, and Edmund Randolph to be attorney general.

Mr. John Jay he made chief justice of the supreme court of the United States.

His strong desire was to join parties in a common support of the general government—join them at the outset, when their formation was but foreshadowed, not yet hardened to a definite purpose.

Alexander Hamilton the whole country knew to be one of the chief advocates of the new and stronger government; General Knox, too, was an avowed "federalist," as well as a close personal friend of General Washington's, but Mr. Jefferson, who had been in France when the constitution was framed and adopted, came rather lukewarmly to its support, and Mr. Randolph, though he had stood for its adoption, with Mr. Madison, in the Virginian convention, had favored it rather as a sensible politician than as an earnest friend.

Mr. Jay was known to be a federalist.

When parties formed it would be in congress; and the elements there were not difficult to reckon.

There were but eighty-one members, all told; in the senate twenty-two, in the house forty-nine, until Rhode Island and North Carolina should come into the union.

It gave weight to the administration that John Adams had been chosen vice president, and stood with all his sturdy frankness for federalism, and represented, besides, distinguished national service, both at home and abroad.

He had been the first minister of the new republic at the court of St. James, and had made himself and his country respected there, alike for statesmanship and for integrity. He had been at Paris and at The Hague, but, always serviceable, always efficient, if never quite genial or attractive, and brought with him to his new duties in New York the excellent traditions of his state in politics and morals.

There were marked differences of opinion in the houses from the first; some were inclined to a very liberal construction of their new powers under the constitution; others cried a warning against it, and pressed very earnestly for methods which should above all be conservative, and hold all things to a moderate course.

It was easy to see how parties could form—were forming; but as yet they revealed themselves only vaguely, and legislation moved unembarrassed.

HAMILTON'S INFLUENCE.

By an act of the 24th of September, 1789, it definitely set up the supreme court for which the constitution had provided; giving it a membership of six justices, of whom one should be chief justice.

Its statutes erected the departments of state, war, and the treasury; created the office and functions of attorney general; put the military establishment upon a modest peace footing, and confirmed the regulations which the congress of the confederation had made with regard to the government of the Northwest Territory ceded by the states to the general government.

Its measures of policy affected the whole action of the government in the matters most likely to give it strength and credit; and even the operation of the constitution itself.

Virginia was not the only state which had given its assent to the constitution upon the virtual condition that so soon as the government went into operation amendments should be adopted which should explicitly safeguard the more essential rights of individuals and of states.

North Carolina, South Carolina, New York, Massachusetts, and New Hampshire had also urged amendments; and those who had been the chief advocates of the constitution in their several conventions had virtually promised that amendment should be undertaken at the earliest practicable moment.

The congress therefore promptly proposed twelve amendments, and of these twelve the states accepted ten.

Eight of them ran in the phrases of Magna Charta, the Petition of Right, the Declaration of Independence, and the Virginia Bill of Rights, the principles they embodied had come out of the long processes of English constitutional history, out of the precedents of English courts and the practice of English justice; out of the charters and constitutions and ancient parliamentary protests.

They made secure against federal encroachment the rights of individuals in respect of religion, freedom of speech, military service and the use and maintenance of armies, search warrants, trial in accordance with fixed law and by the judgment of juries, criminal accusations, the inflicting of punishments and the exaction of bail.

The ninth provided that "the enumeration in the constitution of certain rights should not be construed to deny or disparage others retained by the people."

The tenth declared that "powers not delegated to the United States by the constitution, nor prohibited by it to the states, were reserved to the states respectively or to the people."

So much congress did to keep faith with the country and to clear the constitution of even the suspicion of a character unfavorable to liberty.

Its other measures were intended, not to justify or excuse the new government, but to give it efficiency.

It was by common consent the chief business of the session to set the finances of the country effectually to rights and to regulate commerce; to give the new union unquestionable standing in the markets and the banks of the world.

Congress put itself in these matters under the guidance of Hamilton.

The advice given by the young secretary was characteristic alike of his capacity and of the purposes which he entertained with regard to the government. And he declared his views with characteristic candor and directness.

"To justify and preserve the confidence of the most enlightened friends of good government; to promote the increasing respectability of the American name; to answer the calls of justice; to restore landed property to its due value; to furnish new resources both to agriculture and commerce; to cement more closely the union of the states; to add to their security against foreign attacks; to establish public order on the basis of an upright and liberal policy; these," he said, "are the great and invaluable ends to be secured by a proper and adequate provision at the present period for the support of the public credit."

In a series of carefully considered reports in which he showed himself, as always, a consummate master of constructive argument and of that sort of exposition which itself convinces—reports on the public credit, on the excise ,on the establishment of a national bank, on manufactures—he proposed that a tariff act be passed which should incidentally protect and encourage domestic manufacturers; that the foreign debt of the confederation should be assumed and paid in full; that the domestic debt of the confederation also, though it had long ago fallen below par and had largely passed into the hands of speculators at an enormous discount, should nevertheless be paid at its face value; that even the debts which the several states had incurred during the revolution should be assumed and paid by the federal treasury; and that a national bank should be established to serve as the fiscal agent of the government.

CREATING PARTY LINES.

EACH of Hamilton's proposals in turn congress acted upon and adopted—not, of course, at once and without debate; only after severe and even bitter contests, indeed, which ran through two annual sessions and by majorities which grew narrower and narrower with each vote until they dwindled and were lost altogether, to be regained only by an adroit parliamentary bargain—but adopted, nevertheless, and made the deliberate policy of the government.

Here was more than conservative men could digest.

Mr. Madison, who in most things led the houses, as he had led the constitutional convention, hesitated and drew back.

Jefferson protested, with rising heat, in the cabinet and out of it.

Parties began to gather definite creed and purpose, and divided upon lines which grew more and more fixed and clear.

It was undoubtedly Hamilton's purpose to draw men of wealth and property to the support of the government by means of his financial measures; to give them definite reason for wishing it to succeed, and for determining to stand by it until it did succeed, building for the government a great backing of interest; and that of itself condemned what he did in the eyes of some.

It seemed to make what he proposed legislation for a class; for a class which did not always prefer the interests of communities to its own.

More than that, some of the measure which congress had adopted, notably that which established a national bank, involved a doctrine of powers implied, as well as of powers explicitly granted, by the constitution.

The new government had looked formidable enough with the powers explicitly granted; who should say where the elaboration of its powers would end if still others were to be drawn forth by implication?

The constitution nowhere explicitly gave congress the right to create a corporation, like the new bank of the United States.

Hamilton argued that that right was included under the clause which gave it power to make all laws which should be "necessary and proper for carrying into execution" the powers specifically granted; because he held that the bank was a necessary financial agent in the handling of federal funds.

But whither would the country be led if men of Hamilton's school of politics were permitted to interpret the word "necessary."

Those who had opposed the constitution because under it the authority of a common government could command the financial policy of the states, and those who had opposed it because it subordinated the states in every chief matter of politics and made of them fractions instead of integers in the political life of the country, had, of course, been ready from the first to stand against Mr. Hamilton and his policy of concentration.

When his whole plan was disclosed many federalists also drew back, with Mr. Madison, fearing whither they should be led by the doctrine of implied powers with the young secretary thus so boldly pressed at the very outset.

Many a sign of sharp reaction gave the federalist leaders plain warning of what they might expect should they persist.

A NEW PARTY LEADER.

MR. JEFFERSON became the real leader of the new party of opposition, even before he left the cabinet; at first covertly, at last openly, giving it the name democratic republican, which savored of the Rights of Man and took men's thoughts over sea to the sharp struggle for liberty then ablaze in France; giving it also organization and the spirit of party; like the master of men he was—philosopher and politician in equal compound.

But Washington accepted the leadership of Hamilton, as congress did, and for a time nothing could withstand the purposes of those who meant to make the new government strong, national and permanent.

When two years had gone by (1791) a new house was chosen, and in part a new senate; but the federalists still kept their ascendency in most of the constitution, and the first policy of the government was not stayed.

Meanwhile North Carolina (November 21, 1789) and Rhode Island (May 29, 1790) had come into the union, and the original roster of the states was complete again.

Two more states were presently added: Vermont—"the New Hampshire grants," territory which New York and New Hampshire both had claimed—in March, 1791, and Kentucky, Virginia's lusty and restive offspring, in June, 1792.

Whatever doubts of policy or contests of party marked those opening days with threat of divided counsels, the union was at least established—was already expected to last.

Kentucky's incorporation within it showed that the hopeful west was turning to it.

Public questions touched its measures, but had already ceased to touch its life. A veritable government had at last been set up to hold the country together.

It had been "a necessity to the history of society," as de Tocqueville said, "to see a great people turn a calm and scrutinizing eye about itself, when apprised that the wheels of government had stopped; to see it carefully examine the extent of the evil, and patiently wait until a remedy was discovered which it voluntarily adopted, without having wrung a tear or a drop of blood from mankind."

But this the people of America had done, under the men who had called upon them to amend the articles of confederation and provide themselves with a real government under the men who, with Washington, had set that government up and given it immediate credit and standing in the world.

General Washington's first administration gave tone, direction and presumption of permanence to the new government.

His second term steadied it amidst its first serious difficulties, and gave the country a wholesome taste of its vigor.

The vote of the electors was unanimous in 1792, as it had been in 1789, in choosing him president, and the seventy-seven votes which they cast for Mr. John Adams made him vice president a second time by a safe majority.

The congressional elections which accomplished the choice of the electors showed, it is true, an unmistakable reaction of opinion against the strong and systematic measures by which the federalists had put Mr. Hamilton's program into execution.

The majority in the new house of representatives consisted of men inclined to follow Mr. Jefferson in the formation of a distinct party of protest, if not of opposition; though the more slowly changing senate showed still a preponderance of federalists.

But General Washington still seemed to all the safest leader in affairs, the only possible guide and member in those first days when all things were yet to be brought to a stable order and a wise way of government.

A FORCEFUL MINORITY.

IT was a notable thing how a minority prevailed in all active policy and managed to keep affairs in its own hands—the same minority whose sagacity and vigor and concert in action had secured the formulation and adoption of the constitution.

The war for independence had been a democratic upheaval, and its processes had seriously discredited all government which was not directly of the people.

It had made local committees of correspondence the real organs of opinion.

Town meetings and the people's representatives in the provincial assemblies had originated policy, while it lasted, with an almost sovereign freedom of choice and had kept their sovereignty when the war closed.

Almost everywhere, except in Virginia, a majority of the leading families and of the professional classes of the colonies had thrown their influence against the separation and independence which the popular leaders demanded; against the trial of an out-and-out people's government without king or parliament or ruling class to moderate and offset the sway of democracy; and when the end of the struggle came those whom the country had been accustomed to see lead in its commonwealths abandoned it in extraordinary numbers forever, preferring Canada and the Indies and the old country over sea, where government still kept the form and dignity and aristocratic flavor to which they were attached.

Men enough of the classes hitherto honored and privileged remained to hand on the old traditions of initiative and service and authority which wealth and training and social influence had formerly secured; but the end of their predominance was plainly at hand.

Aristocratic privilege and the natural precedence of birth and breeding were sadly discredited.

The mass of common men had put their own leaders forward, and accustomed themselves in town meetings and in voluntary organizations of their own, with regard to matters of the greatest moment and consequence.

Power had plainly been leveled; equality had become the cardinal principle of politics, local autonomy and direct elections the standards and models of political organization.

The central government which the constitutional convention of 1787 had devised and to which Washington and Hamilton had given power and authority had plainly been set up as if by reaction, to offset the head autonomy and turbulent democracy of the people's commonwealths.

Many of the cherished ideals of a democratic revolution seemed lost and given up by its successful establishment; and the federalists, with their frank preference for the old vigor of authority, their undissembled contempt for pure democracy, were not likely very long to maintain themselves in the people's favor.

Mr. Jefferson found men eager to put a check upon them and restrict the new government to a more modest scale of power.

The minority were only temporarily in the saddle. They were permitted to rule only because of their vigor and efficiency, and the need to employ them in order to give definite shape to the government which they had orig-

THE RIGHT TO VOTE.

IT was a rural nation which had drawn together into this novel union—a nation without aristocratic example now that the connection with England was cut off; with nothing but its own simple needs, naive preferences, and manifest convenience to consider, now that it was no longer part of an extended and various empire.

It had been obliged, because convinced by the unanswerable arguments of tumults and of ugly reprisals of state upon state, to set up at its center a real government again, to take the place of the government over sea from which it had broken away; a government with an authority of its own which was likely to be even more efficacious in holding themselves together in a co-operative union than the authority of the king and parliament.

But, though opinion had reluctantly consented to that, it by no means followed that it would consent to see the new government given a scope and vigor such as Mr. Hamilton, with his notoriously high notions of prerogative, wished to confer upon it.

The people could not, it is true, of a sudden shake off their life-long habit of following those who had always seemed their natural leaders.

Their society was old; their commonwealths were compact of law that was rooted deep in the past; their thoughts were stiff of old tradition.

Noble gentlemen who were of the gifts and breeding which had so long made the chief families among them seem a sort of privileged and authoritative class, to be looked to as of course for guidance, had endeared themselves to them anew by their cordial espousal of the popular cause and by their indispensable capacity in its successful promotion; had still an unmistakable prestige in affairs.

But their governments had long been in fact democratic, and were now democratic in form also, and the privilege of leading could not much longer be monopolized amongst them.

And that notwithstanding the prescriptions of their law. Under the laws of the colonies only a minority of the adult male residents in each community had been allowed to vote—those who held some not inconsiderable amount of property; and still fewer had been allowed to hold office—the ownership of a still larger amount of property as a qualification for candidates for political office.

Most of the one-time colonies had transferred themselves into states upon their assumption of independence by an entire reformulation of their fundamental law, and some had modified it still further before the new central government over which General Washington was to preside had been set up, but the basis of their suffrage they had in most cases left substantially unaltered.

It was still necessary that every voter should be a freeholder, or the possessor of an estate (say) fifty pounds value, or at least a taxpayer. Rhode Island and Connecticut had kept their colonial charters as their state constitutions and left their law substantially unchanged.

There were probably not more than 120,000 men who had the right to vote out of all the four million inhabitants enumerated in the first census (1790).

Book Reviews in Tabloid

The Enemy. By George Randolph Chester and Lillian Chester.

On the cover wrapper of this charmingly printed and illustrated book the publishers claim the proclama rather too much: "The sanest, the most convincing novel on the drink question—the best argument of temperance that can be put forward."

Mr. and Mrs. Chester have written an entertaining and, in the main, helpful book, and we admit that for the most part it is sane and convincing. That it is a supportive brother of the authors would claim.

The plot of the story is unique. The horrible climax, the crack of a suicide's pistol, would be the "best argument" and the "most convincing against drink, but for the fact that the young man in the story reforms. The authors, or rather Mr. Chester, killed old Harrison Stewart to make the story more striking, to make it the "most convincing." It would have been necessary also to kill the young man, William Lane, but this would never have done. The triumph of the idea would have been the death of the book.

A book with two or more authors is interesting from a psychological study. There is the problem of who wrote this or that. It seems that Mrs. Chester wrote chapters 19, 24, 31, and that Mr. Chester wrote chapters 12, 16, 21, 25, 26, 29, 30, 32 and 33. A painstaking analysis might reveal the individual authorship of other chapters and passages. For example, it is quite certain that Mr. Chester wrote page 180, of women who "were ready full twenty-minutes before time."

Mr. Chester will have to bear the credit or the blame for that horrid chapter 20, which is quite as out of place in the story as is much of Hugo's discussion of the sewers of Paris in "Jean Val-Jean."

Too much of the story is told in the present tense; there are too many asides; the grammar of "when he raised, his eyes were moist," maybe questioned; somebody is either sinful or mechanical for speaking of Davy's neck as a "round column." Collum means neck, but a woman's neck does not need to be called a "column."

Davy and her mother, Jean, are beautiful characters. Geraldine Benning comes near to being "The Enemy." Tommy Tompkins is the clown that his name indicates.

A vivid picture is the little Dresden clock tossing the days of Davy's mother back into eternity.

The philosophy of life of both of the authors is human and refreshing. No one will quarrel with them for saying: "Money is not much of a thing after all. It cannot be altogether bad when it will call the delicate tint of health to pallid cheeks, when it will smooth away lines of worry from careworn brows, when it will bring the expression of renewed anticipation to eyes which have been all too patient." W. F. Melton, Oxford, Ga. Publishers, Hearst's International Library company, New York city.

Economic Aspects of the War.

After a year of economic wear and tear, an inventory shows the nations of the world rather worse for the experience. The United States has had to bear its part of the brunt. To be sure, the wheat farmer and the ammunition manufacturer have profited by the war. But the cotton farmer has a different story to tell. This story has been set forth in a striking manner by Edwin W. Kemp, professor of economics at New York university, whose "Economic Aspects of the War" is just published by the Yale University press. Little more than a frank exposition and collation of the facts, the book is in effect a grave indictment of Great Britain. What answer but the sophistries already advanced by the sinner can England give for having refused to make a distinction in destination of articles of international commerce between the civil and the military population of Germany, and neutral countries as well? Such pressure on German civil users of cotton and grain was designed to force the military to sue for peace. The actual result—the effect upon the cotton-producing states of America—is too well known to call for further comment here. Professor Clapp has given the public an eloquent record of facts. Those who wish to reach their own conclusions, proceeding from a knowledge which facts alone can give, will be grateful for this aid to clear thinking.

Page 129—"Very possibly the country would have stood behind the administration (in its attempt to make good with the ship purchase bill) if it had said:

"The south is prostrate. Cotton is 39 cents in Bremen and 6 cents in Augusta. We are ready to take large quantities off the southern market and relieve the situation. It happens that we can get the cotton through. We propose to buy them, and to buy them where we can get the cheapest and quickest, put them under the American flag and send them right out of cotton to Germany."

Pages 161-2—"What is the military value to England of all this economic pressure that she is exercising in the south? Will the German ammunition makers in the fall of 1915 be embarrassed for material? It is used mainly in the form of gun cotton to make charges for the artillery and torpedoes. Certainly no reports from the front indicate that the German heavy artillery is sinking into a state of inactivity and that it seems to be no excessive economy of torpedoes. Thus any such result will scarcely can be asserted or expected only by those who shut their eyes to the plain facts of the case."

Page 166—"There is a simple solution to the crisis that confronts the south. Another autumn like the last will ruin it. The present and prospective elimination of the German-Austrian market through an unlawful blockade is the heaviest single factor in pressing prices and threatening the future. Nothing would clear the situation like the lifting of that blockade."

Page 185—"All these false remedies for the disease remind us of those proposed in the fall of 1914. Now, as then, the true remedy is the recovery of the closed German-Austrian market. Now, as then, we need to think straight, to ask with all the power at our command and to break a blockade which we declare to be illegal and which threatens with ruin an entire section of the country."

A LETTER AND A REPORT

It is a privilege to devote most of our space this week to two articles—one, a personal letter to Georgia club women; the other, a model club report from the president of a model club.

Dr. Frances Sage Bradley sends her message from San Francisco, where she has been in the employ of the children's bureau of the United States department of labor since March. This year's work at the exposition has eminently fitted Dr. Bradley for the new honor conferred upon her—that of medical inspector of the children's bureau.

Club women and all others will find the letter published today of more than usual interest. The women of the west are so broad and energetic in the splendid work they do it is a real inspiration to have their advanced methods brought to us.

The report of the Rome Woman's club, by the president, Mrs. Van Hoose, while giving a resume of last year's work, should carry helpful suggestions to those clubs that are planning next year's work. The accomplishments of this club and the comprehensive report are just the things our women want to read, and many such accounts in our columns are needed. There will not be time for each club to give a detailed review of its work in the reports for Savannah, but our page is open to every club, and in the beginning of the year's program let us hear from you.

An additional item of interest from Rome comes in the announcement of Mrs. Sproul Fouche as president of the seventh district. We join Mrs. Fitzpatrick in welcoming Mrs. Fouche into the club cabinet of officers.

Remember the board meeting in Atlanta on Thursday, September 30, at the Piedmont hotel, 10 a. m.

If you have not replied to your invitation from Savannah and have not sent in your delegates' names, do so at once.

The date of the annual conference is close at hand—October 26 to 29.

The rates and other particulars were announced last week; keep your Constitution for reference.

Any information required, however, will be gladly given through this department.

Annual Report of President Of Woman's Club of Rome

June 3d marked the close of the second year's work of the reorganized club and without doubt found it more firmly rooted, stronger and a more stable organization than did the close of the preceding year.

That first year was devoted by the departments to establishing themselves in their own special lines of work; in woman's parlance, they spent it in finding themselves. During this second year, while quite as effective in the promotion of their individual interests, they have learned to know, to sympathize with and co-operate with each other, and have established themselves as the diverse units of one very efficient entity, and through their sympathetic co-operation the club "has found herself."

It is gratifying to know that the people have come to realize the fact; that the club is one of the (club) estates to be served, the community, and it is equally as gratifying to know that we have been able to lend a helping hand to some of our civic enterprises.

Recognition of the club as one of Rome's civic bodies, received its first official stamp when it was invited to swell the ranks of workers and feed the tide of enthusiasm for the Dixie Highway. We have also given our moral support, contributing to it what we could of both our funds and our work. We aided the chamber of commerce in entertaining the corn and canning clubs of the seventh district, and in one or two other affairs of public interest. We have exercised our influence to have eliminated from the picture shows such pictures as are either actually or suggestively immoral in their nature, and to have given at least one day in each week a program especially suitable for children. We have seen the managers of the two theaters and secured an expression of their willingness to comply with our request, and in so far as we are able to say, they have done as we wish. The "Children's day" has already been inaugurated.

One of the civic matters that has engaged the attention of the club during the year has been the accumulation of a fund for a club home. Every department has contributed toward this fund, in addition to these departmental contributions, one very successful vaudeville was given by the entire club in November, and netting the fund of $505.67.

Reports of the department chairmen give a recapitulation of much good work done.

Art—The art section feports a class of twenty-five or more members, a sustained interest, throughout the year, in the study of Flemish, Dutch and German art, and of art in general. They have interested in giving to the public two exhibits of pictures and one of pottery can potter. The securing of this last was, perhaps, their most noteworthy enterprise. It is said to be the first exhibit of American pottery given in Georgia.

Civics—The civics department has again been one of the most active in the club. The brilliant talks by views of different divisions of this department calls to mind Kenneth Grahame's definition of the path of a good woman, which, he says, "is indeed strewn with flowers, but they are behind her steps, not before them." Flowers have been planted by this department in and in many of the "waste places" of the town.

The work begun by the City Beautiful committee has gone steadily forward. Now, at the beautiful stadium, is a well-graded and graveled plaza, are two luxuriant grass plots, a fine cement coping, and in the center of one of them has been placed an attractive fountain in the form of a large cement walk.

At the Nashville, Chattanooga and St. Louis station, porch boxes, rockeries and other improvements are in evidence, and plans are now under way for beginning similar work at the North Rome station. The railroad themselves have generously aided the women in this work, and the city gives the water for the fountain.

Clean-Up week in Rome witnessed a remarkable state of activity, set in motion, by this department, and helped along by everybody. The entire sanitary force of the city was detailed to help with the work, and after ten days' cleaning, hauling, burning and disinfecting, Rome was nearly if not quite a typical spotless town.

The work in which this committee is now much interested is the beautifying of the grounds around the reservoir at historic old Fort Jackson.

The park and playgrounds committee has conducted throughout the year a course in playground directorship, and has introduced an interest in playground methods into some of the rural schools.

Literature has been disseminated, and many rural, as well as urban, teachers have taken the course in study. During the spring beautiful mornings of games and folk dances were given at Central Primary school and the Fourth ward school of this city, an outgrowth from this study course.

At the request of this committee the "Story Teller's Magazine" has been put in the public library. Upon invitation, the chairman has addressed each mothers' club in the city on the playground movement, and flowers and shrubs have been planted by the committee.

One member has made the location of the watchman's cottage at the East Rome crossing a beauty spot, another has contributed flowers for the East Rome fire department grounds, and others have supplied plants to a few vacant lots.

Conservation.—Conditions have confined the work of the conservation department to the educational phase. An interested class of fourteen members has been studying the birds of our land, bird life, have published articles, originally written, on this interesting subject, and have taken steps looking to actual work that will probably show material results in the near future.

Both the civics and conservation departments have given valuable aid for backyard, flower and vegetable gardens.

Education.—The department of education has continued its interest in rural school work. It has, during the year, furnished every teacher in Floyd county with a pamphlet giving requirements for the standardization of schools and has examined some school improvements. This department has conducted a series of lectures on the history of education, and in connection with the playground committee, has extended the interest in play and methods.

Accompanied by thirty interested club women, the committee appeared before the county board of education to petition in the fall to make a plea for consolidation and better salaries for rural teachers. They urged the plan approved by State Superintendent Hill, Davis, that the board raise sufficient money for salaries and include in their appropriations enough to cover incidentals.

Books and clothing have been given to approximately twenty-five school children unable to buy them. The scholarship department was instrumental in giving two short-term courses at the State Agricultural college as prizes to the girls of the Floyd County Canning club.

Home Economics.—The home economics department was providentially favored from the beginning out new work planned for the year. They have gone forward with their study courses and given much valuable aid to the many other general club movements.

Library.—The committee on library extension has worked along the same lines as last year, establishing libraries in rural schools and clubs and distributing magazines and other literature. Four hundred books and two magazines, pieces of literature have been distributed, and the committee has under valuable aid on science, history, biography, nature study, domestic science and sociology. Besides two sets of the Encyclopedia Brittanica.

Civic Literature.—The library department, with a membership of thirty, has had a most delightful year in studying the history of England and its people, literature and science. The well-prepared papers and brilliant talks of every one of the department a most delightful and valuable study, and developed some excellent home talent.

Music.—The music section has done much for the cause of Romance during the year. In December it gave a delightful rendition of Gilbert and Sullivan's "Mikado," an admirably-rendered production, and entirely by Rome talent. In the spring it conducted a choral club of 54 members, which during the five months of existence has given three public performances, the most ambitious of which was probably being "The Daughter of Jaulus."

Public Health.—The public health department has been active in carrying out the various movements for better sanitation, inaugurated during last year, and the more intensive and exact inspections has done much toward establishing higher sanitary standards. One of its most noteworthy achievements during the year was the splendid production of the Mother Goose opera, "The House that Jack Built." With Rome having people and children a most pronounced success artistically and financially. From this production was netted for the building fund $136.81, the largest amount ever donated by any one department of the club.

The sale of Red Cross seals at Christmas netted $42.06. That amount has been placed with others in the savings bank, with the idea of increasing it until a sum of consequence shall be reached.

Social and Industrial Conditions.—The social service department has probably been the busiest department of the entire club, and has received the sympathetic interest of them all.

In addition to the general social betterment work for which naturally it is to evolve upon its members, they have assumed the conduct of the district nurse. A work formerly carried on by the Associated Charities of the city.

They own a horse and buggy for the use of the nurse, and are responsible for the maintenance of both, and for the salary of the nurse. Nearly $500 was handled by them for relief during the past trying winter.

They have by appeal to the county commissioners secured in the old building of the county home four wards for pellagra patients.

Bundle Day conducted by them was most successful, more than $300 worth of clothing having been contributed and distributed through them to the needy of the city.

Parliamentary.—There has been no more interesting group of students in the club than the large class in parliamentary law that held its meetings fortnightly during the winter.

Publicity.—One of the most important factors in the success of the club during the year has been its publicity committee. Its readiness to co-operate with every enterprise of every department, to publish notices and to give precise plans has been responsible for much of the success that has been achieved.

Our membership during the past year numbered 253.

It is both a pleasure and an inspiration to read from a recent editorial written by Mrs. Trueheart-Herbert, who has so generously given us of its space, the following statement:

"It has been the pleasure of this newspaper to chronicle the activities of the Woman's club from time to time, for we consider it a constructive force." And to find the further statement in the same editorial, that the paper considers "the club a potent factor in Rome's civic life."

AUGUSTA CLUB WOMEN HONOR MRS. HAMMOND

On Eve of Departure She Is Guest of Honor at Luncheon.

One of the most beautiful luncheons ever given in Augusta was that given by the officers of the Woman's club, the Philomathic club, the suffrage party and the W. C. T. U. to Mrs. John Hammond on the eve of her departure to make her home in another city. The regret at Mrs. Hammond's loss to these organizations is heartfelt, for she is one of the most thoughtful and brilliant women in the country. Her work as chairman of the social service department of the club, and the talk given in the parlors of the Albion hotel on Tuesday was therefore a compliment which was highly deserved.

Covers were laid for twenty-five at an artistic table, the color scheme being green and gold to harmonize with the green draperies and rugs of the parlors. Mrs. A. H. Brenner, president of the tenth district, also president-elect of the Woman's club, presided. Mrs. W. N. Benton, president of the Woman's club, was not present on account of illness, but Mrs. Hammond's reception, secretary of the district, also vice president for the W. C. T. U., sat at the other end of the table. The guest of honor was at the right of Mrs. Brenner. Mrs. Brenner used as her theme Ruskin's advice, "It is a safe and pleasant thing to surround those as if you meant to spend your life there." Miss Ethel Parks responded in appreciation of the honor conferred in connection with the Philomathic club. Mrs. Stanard Owens, of the suffrage party and Mrs. Arrington for the W. C. T. U. Mrs. William F. Eve, the only invited guest not present, sent her work for the church. Dr. Hammond spoke for the men present. Mrs. Hammond's recent book, "Black and White," was used as the social service textbook at all the club conferences schools this season.

Miss Mary Coburn in Augusta has been of the greatest value to the community as well as to her chosen work. Her work in Augusta will be great, and her keynote of the farewell luncheon was something that she had endeared to her here as if she had expected to remain a lifetime, and joy over the fact that her influence had permeated through her presence.

The hostesses, of the occasion were Mrs. Lindsey Arrington, Mrs. I. Brenner, Mrs. Charles Parr, Mrs. H. P. Hamilton, Mrs. M. Brenner and Mrs. W. Edward Platt, Mrs. Herbert Clark, Mrs. Irvine Walker, Mrs. Frederick Fleischshaw, Mrs. John Fennell, Mrs. Josie Irvine, Mrs. Mattie Hopkins, Mrs. Greenville Gilbert, Mrs. F. W. Annally, Miss Ethel Parks, Mrs. S. B. Screven, Mrs. Lucy Fleming, Mrs. E. J. Nacman, Mrs. W. F. Eve, Miss Annie G. Wright and Miss Laura Benet.

ATLANTA CHILD'S HOME DOING VALUABLE WORK

Among the valued clubs of the Georgia federation is a non-sectarian work for the children, the Atlanta Child's home. This work was started in 1897 in a little cottage, the rent of which was paid by Mrs. Hawkes until it was incorporated, April 30, 1910, by Mrs. Lewis and others. The home, since it began its ministry of mercy, has taken several hundred little children into its care and given for the helpless mother can find protection for her little ones until she can otherwise provide for it. Oftentimes the mother is cared for until a position is secured, or the child is given over to a home for board of self and child. The Atlanta Child's home is a charity organization and is conducted by a board of managers and medical staff warrant the complete confidence of the public.

Influence of Example

The civic exhibit screens being arranged by Mrs. Logan Pitts for the Savannah conference are by now the influence of example. We know that public opinion is the mighty lever in civic work, and one practical beautiful can influence many. These screens should make a lasting impression and furnish a powerful incentive for future work. Mrs. Pitts has shown that it proves to be attractive, effective and constructive. There is hardly a community in Georgia that has not felt the influence of civic awakening.

Writing of practical measures for civic improvement, Mrs. Savery Lewis, chairman of Louisiana federation, says: "Let our conceptions be enlarged to the circle of our duties," then behind our own doors and that of Rome's crowns."

Let us wear them worthily! - The civical crown of the ancients was made of laurel, oak and myrtle. The civical crown of the twentieth century will be one of intelligent motherhood, home and citizenship, beautiful surroundings and better, wiser laws. And with the "heart to conceive, the understanding to devise and the hand to execute," we will have hastened the day of great possibilities.

AN APPOINTMENT.

It gives me great pleasure to announce the appointment and acceptance of Mrs. Sproul Fouche, of Rome, as district president of the seventh district to succeed Mrs. S. B. Evans, resigned.

Mrs. Plane Leading Movement For Monument to Confederacy Which Will Be World Wonder

Eighty-five years young, Mrs. Helen Plane, honorary president of the United Daughters of the Confederacy, organizer of the Atlanta chapter and president of the Stone Mountain Confederate Memorial association, is actively leading the movement for a monument to the confederate heroes which will eclipse, be marvelous from an artistic standpoint, but one of the wonders of the world.

Stone Mountain, in solid granite mass, stands ready to tell in the sculptor's art the drama of the confederacy in all the intensity of the cause, the heroism of the men who gave their lives to that cause, and finally the great spirit which has grown out of the conflict and assimilates the civilization of the new south of today.

"The story of the proposed monument is familiar to the thousands men and women of the south, as it was indorsed by the United Daughters of the Confederacy at their last general meeting," president Mrs. Plane, in an interview relative to the monument and the association.

MRS. C. HELEN PLANE,
President Stone Mountain Confederate Memorial association and honorary president United Daughters of Confederacy.

Mr. Venable's Generosity.

"Mr. William H. Terrell first conceived the idea of a confederate monument at Stone Mountain. I had the pleasure of bringing the news of Mr. Venable's generosity in donating that part of the Stone Mountain reservation to the monument, and the Atlanta chapter took the initiative in organization for the development of the movement.

"When Mr. Lamar, president Georgia division, U. D. C., heard Mr. Borglum's plan for the monument she made an address urging loyalty, patriotism and appreciation, but declared that only the sculptor could properly bear the message of the great monument to the United Daughters of the Confederacy, and Georgia, California in annual convention this fall. She explained that the general order had already indorsed the project of the monument, but they have still to see the plan designed for it.

She was authorized by the Stone Mountain association to make a report for the time to present Mr. Borglum to the convention that he might present plans to them for design for the monument.

The Sculptor's Ideal.

Gutzon Borglum can interpret his ideals in literature as well as in stone, in giving his idea of what he believed an appropriate monument to Abraham Lincoln should be he wrote in the September number of The Era:

"When we make a monument to Abraham Lincoln we will draw a picture of a man who comes out of the colonial period, born in 1809, while Jefferson still lived. A simple, honest, sincere, inspired, true creature like these the straight road and, went right through all the rubbish to important aside. You will pick the particular place where he will be erected—Hamilton, Washington, Jefferson, Franklin. Those men will have an honorable place in the monument—but out of that group, going way back into the forties, eighteen hundreds, will arise this boy. We will assemble Grant, Sherman, Sheridan, Seward, Stanton, and you will see him associated with them down through the friezes that will represent the service that he ever it is built. You will see him a barefoot boy before the chimney fire, reading. You will see him log-splitting, wrestling, telling his stories. You will see him when he was declared. You will see him writing the proclamation. You will see him at Gettysburg—and the central figure of all the acts in between—and then she first time the spring from the top of the monument you will see them all united and that feeling will close.

"That is a monument to Abraham Lincoln. That is the sitting for him. That is the tribute to his life and work. That is the service that we must render our great men in portraiture. That is the monument for Lincoln, the beloved. That is an American monument."

tory and Origin of the American Flag; (2) The Flag of the Confederacy; (3) The Georgia Flag; (4) A Study of the Flags of the Central and South American States, and (5) European and Asiatic Flags.

Beginning with the very dawn of history, the Daughters of American families first began to use their distinguishing emblems and through the history of flags and symbols through all ages to the present time. The greater part of the book is taken up with America, and accounts of flags and standards throughout the country from the time of the Viking throughout all the periods of discovery, and accounts of the interesting events connected with ones up to the time that our present flag became established.

In preparation of this book, Mrs. Brooks has examined many libraries, both the congressional and Washington and the New York library yielding some information of value. The book has been compiled and arranged for the use of schools and libraries and for societies getting up programs on the flag. It is the most valuable book on the flag in print, being a combination of all the valuable history and information of the flag scattered from many books and other sources.

BOOK "OUR FLAG" IS NOW READY FOR PUBLICATION

The Daughters of the American Revolution in the state, many of whom are personal friends of Mrs. R. P. Brooks, will be glad to know that by constant hard work throughout the summer the book, "Our Flag," partly written and partly compiled by Mrs. Brooks, is now ready for the publisher. The book is divided into five parts: (1) The His-

Boylston received her guests in a lovely gown of flowered organdie and blue ribbons and Mrs. H. D. Boylston was in black silk and lace.

The following committee was appointed by the president: Miss Amelia May Hilley, Miss Sadie Bellew, Miss Emma V. Paul.

Much enthusiasm was aroused by the message sent by Leonard J. Grossman, president of the Georgia Men's League for Woman's Suffrage. Mr. Grossman spent last week in Savannah and Waycross and while in these cities made addresses favoring the enfranchisement of the women of Georgia. The newspapers of these cities gave much space to and made most favorable comment on Mr. Grossman's [illegible] in favor of woman's suffrage.

SOCIAL LIFE IN MACON

Macon, Ga., September 25.—(Special Correspondence.)—Several attractive visitors now in the city were the occasion of most of the week's gayeties. The first of these affairs was given Monday afternoon in honor of Miss Meta Schley, of Augusta, the guest of Miss Lily Griffith. Mrs. William Dunwody was the hostess at the enjoyable game of bridge played. The guests included Miss Schley Mrs. Eugene Stetson, Miss Pieta Holmes, Miss Lily Griffith and Miss Louise Callaway. Miss Holmes made top score, winning a pair of silk hose.

Monday evening Miss Schley was again the honoree when Mrs. Nisbet Tinsley entertained at bridge for her. Hanging baskets of dwarfed sunflowers and dahlias adorned the porch, where the guests played.

A most delightful surprise party was given Mr. and Mrs. William E. Martin Tuesday evening when a number of their friends gathered at their home on College street and spent the evening dancing. This was in the nature of a farewell party, as Mr. and Mrs. Martin are to give up their home October 1 and have apartments with Mr. Mallory Taylor for the winter.

Another delightful affair of Thursday was the bridge game at which Mrs. Henry Anderson and Mrs. Carl Anderson were joint hostesses. The guest of honor on this occasion was Mrs. James Callaway, Jr., who leaves soon to make her home in Columbus. Crepe de chine handkerchiefs were the dainty prizes. Those playing were Mrs. Callaway, Mrs. Earle Dunlap, Mrs. Frank Jones and Mrs. Sam Birdsey.

A brilliant social event of the week was the marriage of Miss Katherine Mary Bazemore and Mr. Edward Luther Cox, which was solemnized Saturday afternoon at 3:30 o'clock at the home of the bride's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Oscar Carlisle Bazemore. The drawing room where the ceremony was performed was decorated in southern smilax, palms and floor vases of lilies. The bride was preceded down the stairs by twenty of her most intimate girl friends, all beautifully gowned. The ceremony was performed by Rev. W. W. Childs, of Yatesville. A handsome reception followed the ceremony. Miss Bazemore is one of Macon's charming and accomplished young ladies, possessing all those graces that have attracted her to her legions of friends. MOTORCYCLE SHOW IS GREAT SUCCESS, SAYS GUS CASTLE

Gus Castle, manager of the Harley-Davidson southern branch, returned from the Chicago motocycle show Friday. He reports that the show was the biggest and most successful exclusive motorcycle and bicycle show ever held. The attendance of dealers was very large, and the Chicago papers contained accounts daily of the extraordinary large attendance which attracted considerable comment.

According to Mr. Castle, the coming year will evidently be a banner one in both bicycles and motorcycles.

The exhibit of the Harley-Davidson Motor company attracted especial attention, as their's was one of the largest in the show.

The improvements made on the new high-power Harley-Davidsons came through quite a number of points and in detail. The new stream line tank, which has been added on of almost double the capacity of the last year's tank, doing away with the sharp corners as heretofore, producing a beautiful rounded tank which is very attractive to the eye.

The frames have been strengthened quite considerable extra reinforcements being placed in several of the joints.

As the United States postoffice authorities have decided that R. F. D. carriers can continue to use their motorcycles for carrying the mails, provided a side car or side van is attached, special attention has been given to the construction of the Harley-Davidson in order to take care of this extra strain.

In addition to the three speed twin high-duty, 11-horse power machine, the factory has decided that in building a three-speed single, which has all the features of the three-speed twin, and is built with the idea of handling side car or side van.

There were quite a number of light weights shown at the show, but the general tendency of the dealer was that they preferred to stick to the old standards, which have given such perfect service and satisfaction during the past several seasons. The Harley-Davidson southern branch received Saturday afternoon sample models of each one of the Harley-Davidson 1916 output, which will be on exhibition during the coming week, and with the return of good times and general confidence being restored all throughout the south, Manager Castle, of the Harley-Davidson southern branch, feels confident that 1916 will be the biggest year he has ever had.

Committees Are Named.

More than a score of local committees are working day and night on details for the festival, the program of which will be the most elaborate event undertaken here.

Arrangements have been made for a grand ball every night of festival week, each affair to be under the direction of some capable local organization. The ball Tuesday night will be a military affair, and on Saturday night will be the big masquerade ball.

At one of the balls will be a fashion show, with the elite of Atlanta on dress parade, attired in the latest from the fashion centers of the country, displaying the latest in men's and women's wear.

The automobile commitee is at work outlining fifty atomobile tour routes to lead to Atlanta during festival week from all parts of the state. Valuable prizes will be offered for endurance runs and in connection with other features of the tours. Detailed announcement of this feature will be made shortly.

Judging from the letters and telegrams being received at festival headquarters, interest in the proposed celebration is sweeping the entire state, and letters of inquiry and suggestion are in every mail. In every instance the officers of the association are being commended for their good work and assurance is given of a liberal representation from each county.

Bryan Newkirk Made Advertising Manager Montgomery Journal

Bryan W. Newkirk, one of the most popular and successful advertising men of the city, has resigned from The Constitution staff to take charge of the advertising department of The Montgomery Journal. He left last week to assume his new duties.

BRYAN W. NEWKIRK.

Mr. Newkirk's phenomenal rise in the newspaper game is itself ample proof of his value. It was no surprise to his Atlanta colleagues that he was secured as advertising manager of the Montgomery paper.

Beginning in the "classified" department of The Constitution he soon became recognized as one of the ablest solicitors in the city, and an expert in every phase of advertising. While regretting to see him leave Atlanta, his friends here congratulate him upon his promotion.

ALDERMAN MADDOX EXPLAINS REMARKS ABOUT CITY MARSHAL

Alderman James W. Maddox has furnished The Constitution with the following statement:

The city marshal, James M. Fuller, has taken offense at certain remarks made by me in the finance committee that were not intended as a criticism of him or his office force and I make this statement in justice to myself and to him. I like Mr. Fuller as well as any man I know and like the men in his office. We have been warm friends in fact, and I expect and hope that we will continue to be.

The matter came up in this way: Mayor Woodward, in the finance committee meeting, was demanding that all appropriations be scaled down so as to finish the year with a clean sheet and all bills paid. This brought on a discussion as to items in the budget that might be cut out in order to accomplish the result desired by the mayor.

In the course of the discussion it developed that the city has an arrangement whereby an attorney, Walter C. Hendrix, is paid a commission for the collection of marshal's deeds, and that his commission is 15 per cent in one class of deeds and 25 per cent in another. It further developed that Mr. Hendrix pays an assistant 5 per cent on the 15 per cent deeds and 7½ per cent on the 25 per cent deeds; that the assistant does all the work, and that the difference in commission goes to Mr. Hendrix.

When these were stated to be the facts I immediately raised the point that since the assistant does the work and gets a smaller commission than Mr. Hendrix's arrangement calls for, why shouldn't the city employ the assistant direct, making him an addition to the city marshal's force, and save the net commission realized by Mr. Hendrix.

I understood perfectly that marshal's deeds, after they have been secured by the city marshal, pass out of his hands into the hands of the city clerk. I also perfectly understood that the city marshal heretofore has not been called on to collect these deeds. Therefore I was not, as Mr. Fuller says in his statement, "shooting off my mouth about a matter I knew nothing about." Nor was I criticising the marshal's office because it has not been collecting marshal's deeds.

I was simply suggesting a plan by which I seemed to me the city could have the deeds collected cheaper than under the present arrangement with Mr. Hendrix. That was all. In the course of the discussion I might have used the term "well known," but it certainly was free of the reasons prompting my suggestion, could not have applied to the city marshal.

I trust this statement will do. I said at the outset, place both of us right before the public.

FOR HYATT SERVICE RECORDS

HYATT Quiet Bearings were installed in the first automobiles made in America. They were in the first Olds, the first Ford, the first King, the first Haynes, and many others.

R. E. Olds 1894 Car

The automobile that is being preserved in the Smithsonian Institution at Washington, as the official example of the very first successful motor car, is equipped with Hyatt Bearings.

From the time of the first car until the present, Hyatt Bearings have been recognized as an essential part of all types of automobiles. Today they are working quietly and unobtrusively in the vast majority of all cars manufactured in America.

Take your car, with its Hyatt Bearings for example. You probably have driven it many thousands of miles, day and night, under every imaginable condition of road and weather. Yet, for all you know, there are no bearings in it anywhere. You never have seen them or heard them and they never have given any trouble.

Henry Ford in the Original Ford

In the laboratories of our great factory at Newark, New Jersey, the largest exclusive roller bearing plant in the world, we have run Hyatt Bearings thousands of miles under every conceivable test. Through these tests, they never have failed to give consistent, carefree service.

To supplement this engineering data, we wish to know how many miles your automobile has traveled in actual service upon its Hyatt Bearings.

We are ready to pay for this information. We have set aside one thousand dollars to be distributed in awards to owners of cars showing the greatest mileage on Hyatt Bearings.

THE BROKEN COIN

THIRTEENTH INSTALLMENT

SYNOPSIS.

Kitty Gray, newspaper woman, finds in a curio shop half of a broken coin, the mutilated inscription on which arouses her curiosity and leads her, at the order of her managing editor, to go to the principality of Gretzhoffen to piece out the story suggested by the inscription. She is followed, and on arrival in Gretzhoffen her adventures while chasing the secret of the broken coin begin.

CHAPTER XLIX.

By Process of Elimination.

The weapon of the renegade leader Blake was aimed steadily enough. But the fraction of time in which Roleau changed the position he had taken saved the life of one man and cost that of another.

It was the fellow thief, Blake's comrade, fresh from the rendezvous, who fell under the bullet intended for Roleau himself.

Blake sprang forward, groping under cover of the smoke, to find the body of his enemy, stooped, paused, sprang back—it was not Roleau, but his own man whom he had slain!

Roleau by this time, with no more than a quick flash of self-congratulation at his unexpected safety, had sprung away. Blake called out to his followers and started after Roleau. He did not meet him at the outer opening, but ran into the arms of the band of gendarmes who had followed Roleau hither.

Seeing the renegade, pistol in hand, and knowing that he had fired the shot just heard, the sergeant seized upon Blake and disarmed him. The apache leader fought with all the bitter desperation of his kind when cornered, crying aloud for help. His cries brought others of the band, who joined in the melee, so that the issue for a time was in doubt as between the lawful and the lawless—these last two factions who were locked in struggle by reason of the fortunes of the missing coin.

At this juncture Roleau flung himself into the conflict. His giant strength proved such aid that finally the sergeant and his men had subdued not only Blake the leader, but others of his band. As for Roleau, he stood grinning at the turn of events and making no further attempt at escape. Neither did the officer make any movement to apprehend him again.

"Come with me, then, my friend," said the officer. "You have fought well for us. We shall see what we shall see."

Wherefore, Roleau, no longer under espionage, went back with the gendarmes toward the headquarters of the prefecture.

Much of this was noted by Kitty Gray herself, who arrived upon the scene in time to witness this not unhappy end of her own quest. Count Frederick in turn found his own errand done. These two likewise turned toward the Hotel de Ville.

"Monsieur le prefect," announced the sergeant, when at last they had reached the presence of that official, "this man"—pointing to Blake—"fired on this other man and tried to kill him. That is what I do not understand."

"Is this the truth, fellow?" demanded the prefect of Blake.

"Prove it!" said Blake, grinning.

The sound of the entrance of others at the office now attracted their attention.

"Your excellency," announced the sergeant, "these others, the young American—Count Frederick—"

The prefect turned his gaze upon the new arrivals, himself none too well pleased. He found them but complicating factors here in his own business of finding a victim for the law.

"Well, well," resumed he, "what is all this about? We have now two men, both of whom know everything that needs to be known of yonder murder. One asks us now to prove it. The other"—indicating Roleau—"before now has said there was no murder because there was no murdered man found. What do you say now to this, sir?"—he accosted Roleau.

"I say now, your excellency, that yonder thief and leader of thieves, who tried to kill me, knows all there is to be known of the murder. He can tell, if he likes, or if he does not like. He wanted there what we wanted—we will call it a jewel that he sought in her gracious excellency's rooms. He guessed that it might have value with persons high in power in this country. That is why he followed us; that is why murder was done there. They all sought something, and we know what it was."

"You are the accused," said the prefect, turning swiftly to Blake, his own decision made. "What have you to say? Why do you not speak? Confess that you know the secret of yonder murder—the motive for which we ourselves now know. I know you, Blake. Your band is broken now. How do you wish to spend the rest of your life—would you purchase a few more moments at the price of a confession of the truth? Perhaps that may be, when you have tasted the dungeon—away from that drug you crave—for a few hours."

"I will confess," suddenly exclaimed the king of the apaches, his face gray with terror. "I will tell you everything—only give me—it."

"Then you killed the man in yonder room?"

Blake tried to speak, but only nodded. Then at length, hoarsely, "It is as he said. What can I gain by delay or by denial? Give me—that! Give me—it! I confess it all."

"What was your motive, then, Blake?"

"You heard it. He told you. I wanted what they had—the coin—the Gretzhoffen coin."

"As to the coin, your honor," broke in the deep voice of Count Frederick at this time, "I submit there is no need of examination of anyone in regard to that. These questions belong to the prerogatives of the king himself. My man and hers"—he bowed now to where Kitty stood—"has proved himself a stout soul. He has told the truth clearly. For his courage I can well forgive him any defection he may have shown as to my own service. Set him free, your honor."

The prefect looked at him, willing to punish any who cast slight upon his power, but knowing himself helpless. Count Frederick smiled icily in turn.

"Shall we three bid you good day, your honor?"

The prefect bowed politely as he might.

Count Frederick only smiled, and turned toward the door. He stepped back, gravely, allowing Kitty Gray to pass. After her followed the faithful Roleau. Frederick smiled again, and looked after the two not unhappily, although he saw where the greater allegiance of his former servant now lay.

"At last, Roleau!" exclaimed Kitty, eagerly, when finally they two were alone at their hotel. "We are free, all of us—you, and I, and—"

"And his excellency, le Comte Frederick."

"Well, yes, himself as well, then. Nor am I sorry that is true. I fancy perhaps I may have been unjust to him. He has done much, after all, for me, his enemy."

"What, you, his enemy?" grinned Roleau. "Not in the least. Au contraire, mademoiselle!"

"Tais-toi!" exclaimed Kitty, her color rising once more. "Silence! I am but happy that no harm has come to him. And fortune surely has come to us. We have at least half the coin in our possession. The other—"

"Is in the hands of Cortislaw, the king of Grahoffen. He is a king with an army back of him. We are alone. We know it is only by good fortune that we all are left alive."

"All three, your excellency?" smiled Roleau.

"Yes, all three! Listen, Roleau. It will need all three of us to save our half the coin—I begin to feel that—I grow weak, Roleau. I cannot accomplish all this alone."

"You wish a strong arm, excellency," said Roleau. "You are not the first who has wished a strong arm and a strong heart to lean upon. Is it not true?"

CHAPTER L.

To Arms.

Dispersed under the wrath of their savage sovereign, the courtiers of Grahoffen were cudgeling their wits to find some solution to the problem of finding the coin. Where was it? How could it be gained? Upon Count Sachio more than upon any nobleman of the court this question rested grievously. He enlisted therefore as his confederate a man belonging to the secret police in Grahoffen, Ladislaw, a cunning chap with courage.

"Ladislaw," said he, "we must go to Gretzhoffen at once. The coin is there. Either that young woman has it or Count Frederick, or the king. The latter is most likely of the three."

It came out much as Sachio had reasoned. In the confusion now prevailing in Gretzhoffen the two passed unchallenged even to the palace door.

As for the king, he was by this time well forward in his wine. He received Sachio and his friend readily enough. Little it mattered to him who came, for all were welcome. He reproved for his hesitation the chamberlain who announced Sachio.

"Let him come to us," said he. "Let them all come. They are welcome. Sachio?—yes, many a bottle we two have split together."

Not one, but more than one bottle, forsooth, did they two split between them now, and meantime Ladislaw, secret agent, unnoticed, was here and there, in this room and others, unmolested, as a friend of the king, and busy with purposes of his own.

In the chambers of the king all was given over to wine and boastfulness. Throughout the palace hilarity reigned. The general feeling was that the forces of the kingdom had been successful.

There was one who did not accept thus lightly the issue of the day. Count Frederick of Gretzhoffen, most serious of mind by this time, had turned his steps toward the palace, pondering many things meantime. It was now his own deliberate purpose to demand some decision of his monarch as to the eminent enterprise with which all Gretzhoffen was soon to be concerned. He had given orders, as an officer of the army high in power, to mobilize all the forces of the kingdom.

And even as these plans quietly went forward here, King Cortislaw of Grahoffen was pacing his floor, consumed with wrath of a sort not easily placated. "Listen, gentlemen," said he to his officers who gathered about him after Sachio had departed. "Why do we wait. We will win all, or we will lose all today. March them! Cortislaw calls every man under arms to join the colors now!"

Thus, as Count Frederick made his way to the palace, the military forces of both countries were making ready for a struggle which might soon ensue. He passed almost without plan, toward that portion of the palace where he knew he would find King Michael. But at a moment when he was alone and passing near a door which made off from the hall, he heard voices—one voice which suddenly he had conviction was familiar to him—the deep voice of Sachio of Grahoffen! He held his breath that he might catch every word that came from the room within.

"Listen! Ladislaw," he heard Sachio say. "What, did you tell me that you had it? Give it to me, in my hand! It cannot be true."

"None the less, it is true," said another voice, that of the man called Ladislaw. Apparently he held out something which both regarded.

"Ladislaw, you have won fortune for us both. There is no price can be put upon this half of the coin. It is ours, at last."

Count Frederick smiled to himself—smiled for an instant only.

"Yes, Sachio," he heard the answer. "Now if we had our other half here, we could join the two."

"I do not need it," exclaimed Sachio, exultantly. "I have it in my head. I know the reading of both. It tells of the secret recess under the floor of the torture chamber."

Count Frederick heard Sachio laugh deeply—heard his voice once more, self-satisfied.

"Never again," said Sachio, "will I abuse good wine! It fuddled a king for our use and benefit today."

"You are going—there?"

"Yes. To the last hiding place of what we seek."

CHAPTER LI.

In the Torture Chamber.

Count Frederick heard them approach the door, and darted around the nearest corner. He knew which way Sachio would go, and gave him time to establish a lead.

Sachio went straight enough for a time, guided only by his sense of direction, but at length he halted, confused in the passageways which ramified and spread this way and that. It was at that moment that Frederick, himself surprised, came upon him suddenly. The two stood for half an instant, facing each other.

"My dear Frederick," exclaimed Sachio, looking his man fair in the face with that courage which had more than once stood him in such good stead. "How fortunate! I was just on my way on an errand of the king."

"I know something of the ways below here," said Frederick. "I have been here often. Perhaps between us we may discover what you seek. In view of what so recently has passed, it would be easier for you to be our enemy than our friend—is it not true, dear Sachio?"

Sachio made no reply. They walked forward, descending, advancing into the darker portions of the subterranean passages.

"By the way, my dear Sachio," said Frederick, at length—he had Sachio just slightly by the arm, and walked abreast of him, so there might be no sudden treachery—"there is a room yonder where we have long hidden our medieval armor of this palace. Would you like to see it? It is just beyond."

"It is dark," said Sachio, laughing lightly, and hesitating. "What is there, in there?"

"It might be the very torture chamber of old Gretzhoffen, my dear Sachio! It might be the treasure chamber of the king himself—the old king! It might be here that were concealed the treasures of Gretzhoffen—is it not true? You know of them!"

"I have never heard of them, my dear Frederick," replied Sachio.

"Not so, my friend. You have half the coin. It is but counterfeit. The true half—that half which you sought in my quarters so feloniously—is in possession of another."

"You mean that wench—that American—"

It was that instant that the heavy hand of Count Frederick smote him full in the face. "You shall not mention her!" he growled; and the next instant he had Sachio by the shoulders and was thrusting him with all his power toward the open door. It had all along been his intention to imprison Sachio here in the torture chamber.

The next moment Count Frederick felt at his back the impact of another man. The three struggled furiously.

"Quick! Shoot him!" panted Sachio. "Kill him! I cannot last!"

"I am not armed," cried Ladislaw. "Let me search."

Frederick felt the hands of his new enemy feeling at his pockets, searching for some weapon, and rejoiced that he also at the moment was unarmed. At least the conflict would be more even now.

But they were more than a match for him. Count Frederick felt an arm throttle him, felt his eyes almost start from his head, felt his breath leaving him. Slowly slipping, inch by inch, he felt himself impelled toward the open door. Strive as best he could, he found himself unable to resist the joint attack of these two desperate men.

A moment later he heard the heavy clang of the door behind him.

He was alone. He had proved the victim of the plan which he had formed. He was locked in the torture chamber of Gretzhoffen, that place of horror which he had reserved for his enemy. He had failed. He had lost all—all! He had been the cause, perhaps, of the ruin of his country!

CHAPTER LII.

Le Roi S'Amuse.

It was not often in his muddled life that Michael had so full warrant to give rein to his impulses. He had not noted the absence of Sachio or Ladislaw. After a time, his attendants, hesitating, told him that a woman was waiting to be admitted. Her name was one which came to his brain now above all others.

"Admit her at once, yes—why do you delay?"

She came before him now, pale, downcast, almost trembling. Heavy enough had been the burden of anxiety she long had carried. She had come to the king, but she sought not this weak king's comforting. No, she had come hither in search of the man on whom even the king must rely.

"Ah, mademoiselle," he began, half maudlin, "you have come to us at last. Why were you so absurdly long? We have grieved for you, and who would grieve the king?"

"Your majesty," said Kitty Gray, and half shuddered as she gave the title, gazing as she did upon the bloated face of this man who claimed to be a king. "Your majesty, you are more than kind to remember so unimportant a person."

"Unimportant! Do not say that word. Unimportant—when all we have thought of was yourself. What has kept you away?—though I am sure you came as soon as you could."

"Yes, your majesty, as soon as I could."

"And because you have heard of what we have done today, of how we have routed the army of yonder King Cortislaw—it was cleverly done, mademoiselle, though I do say it."

"And what of him who was with you, your majesty?"

"Whom do you mean? Count Sachio?"

"Count Sachio? Was he here, your majesty? I meant another."

"Ah, always you mean that other. Always he seeks to come between his king and his king's desire," said he, complainingly.

"And what is it that your majesty desires?"

"Why, my majesty desires a many things, my dear," he replied, in vinous liberty. "My majesty desired, a while ago, an extra bottle of Beloc, and my majesty sent a man, Count Sachio, yonder to bring it. My majesty desires—"

"Sachio here!"

"Yes, here. You have said that twice. He was here, twice or once—I know not how many times. But now you are here, mademoiselle, and that is enough. My majesty desires—"

He advanced toward her. The leer upon his puffed face gave her swift disgust as well as terror. With no purpose whatever, as he stumbled forward she fled from the room, fled she knew not where.

Without much plan, Kitty turned toward the interior of the palace, and down the long hall which before that time she had explored. Something told her that Frederick, if he were here in the palace now, had passed that way.

The torture chamber—that dread spot! Must she go there to look for him? She sped on rapidly along these passageways which she had learned before. Through the last deep sunken tunnel which led to the door of the torture chamber itself she passed alone, trembling with fear, and yet resolved.

The door was locked. She turned to see the key upon the wall. As she turned there came to her a faint sound. Someone was knocking at the door. The blood stopped at her heart. She felt her face go cold. Had the dead indeed come to life? Was it indeed true that some hand from beyond the grave alone could point out the hiding place of this treasure? What could it mean?

But the knocking at the door grew bolder. She heard a voice—a faint voice through the steel facing of the inner cavern. Trembling, she fitted the key, gave one great push to open the door, which yielded the more quickly to a power exerted within. She saw the faint gleam of a light added to those of her own candle; saw the face of the man she had sought!

"You?" she cried. "It is you?"

She heard him answer calmly, slowly, without agitation, as though all the time he had been convinced she would come.

"It is ended," said Count Frederick at last, slowly. "Never again will I doubt! I prayed for you, prayed that you should understand before I died. But it was meant for you to come for me, that I might know—know as much as they who are here, who have been my fellows and my friends. Mademoiselle—I had said good-by to everything excepting one. There was that left which no man should die without knowing—that experience which only makes life worth having. I have dreaded all things, but now I hope. I must—I shall hope!"

He stooped toward her now, and for the moment each was careless of the strange surroundings in which they stood. For a half moment the heart of Kitty Gray was on the point of surrender.

"Monsieur le comte, for that we have no time now, said she, gently. "It was but chance which brought me here."

"Chance? Yes, if fate, if the hand of heaven mean chance, I shall call it chance, not otherwise. I say that it was the plan of fate long ago that you should come to me, now and here."

"We have come close to the secret," said Kitty Gray slowly. "But we have come closer to perils."

"True, more than you know."

"What do you mean?"

"Sachio was here—it was he and his man who thrust me in here, where I had planned to place him. They know it all—all that we do now, mademoiselle. Sachio himself has gone to carry his news to his king. We are undone, mademoiselle! There will be war."

"If war, then why do we wait here?" she demanded of him. "War is what we have sought to avoid for this kingdom by our own knowledge of the coin. If it be too late—why, then, we must fight. Ah, how I wish I were a man, that I might fight as well."

"You have fought well for all of us, mademoiselle," said Frederick. "We have repulsed our enemies. Would you repulse—your friend?"

She made no answer, but was away before him in the dark passageway.

2—The Advancing Hosts of Grahoffen Were Met by a Sleet of Missiles.

CHAPTER LIII.

The Battle.

Sachio and Ladislaw, as may be guessed, allowed no grass to grow under their feet as they hastened toward their own kingdom, leaving behind them the befuddled monarch who had no idea that he had entertained such vipers.

They never reached the confines of Grahoffen kingdom; instead they met the army of Cortislaw already afield and well across the neutral lands.

"Look!" cried Sachio. "Cortislaw is afoot! By the Lord! Yonder comes a real king."

It was even so. Soon they were among the advance guards, the skirmishers of the main force, which were advancing. In time they were brought to the bodyguard of the king himself, for Cortislaw marched with his men, after the fashion of monarchs of old. He had put all his fortunes to the test that day.

"What! Sachio," he said, as he grimly regarded that nobleman. "You have failed again?"

"No, your majesty, I have not failed. I bring you success, at last."

He opened the palm which he raised before the eyes of his king. In it lay the broken half of the Gretzhoffen coin.

"The coin!—by our lady! It is ours! Bring it to me closer. Give it to me! Let me see!"

"The secret is ours!" said he. "The torture chamber—the treasure!"

"It lies in the northeast corner of the palace, deep under the walls," said Sachio. "Come, let us march steadily, toward the unsuspecting city of Gretzhoffen, governed by an addled king too far gone in his cups to suspect danger of any sort—a king never strong, and now weaker than his wont at a time when all the forces of a real king were needed."

They met no resistance at the walls of Gretzhoffen itself. The armies of King Michael were not in evidence. The coming of an enemy apparently had not been suspected.

The people of Gretzhoffen ran this way and that, leaderless. "Where are our forces?" they demanded. "Where is the army? Where is the king? Where is Count Frederick?"

To these demands came no present answer. The forces of the enemy advanced along the avenues.

"Yonder it lies, your majesty," said Count Sachio, pointing to a turret which showed at the farther corner of the castle which they approached. "Deep beneath the walls yonder, in the northeast corner, my eyes saw the torture chamber of Gretzhoffen."

"Did you find the treasure?" demanded Cortislaw.

"No, your majesty, that was exploration fit for your majesty's hands alone. I did not search for it. Rather, I hastened to bring your majesty here in your own person."

"We soon shall know," said Cortislaw, and signaled the advance.

The sound of hoofs and trampling feet filled the streets of Gretzhoffen. The army of Grahoffen, in close formation, marched forward under the summons of the bugles. Quickly passing down the main avenue which led to the palace, they spread out by columns right and left, covering the full front of that edifice, which lay before them hidden in its screen of shrubbery.

"Look, your majesty," said Sachio, and pointed. Through a little break in the screening wall of green he saw the plume of a horseman, who sat motionless as though waiting.

"One of their guards!" exclaimed Cortislaw. "Go take him. Stop for nothing. Press on into the palace itself."

The front ranks broke forward, each eager to be the first to take captive the foeman thus discovered.

Not one man, but many hundreds, met their coming—the forces of Gretzhoffen in ambush. In the first front the picked men of the guard had been stationed under the screening shrubbery by the actual commander in chief of the Gretzhoffen forces that day—none less than Count Frederick himself.

In such brief time as had been allowed him, he had made his arrangements and posted his forces in what he conceived to be the only feasible strategy. Now the jaws were sprung.

The bugles of Gretzhoffen, high and clear, sounded the counter-charge. The advancing forces of Grahoffen were met full in the face by a level sleet of missiles. From their covering the forces of Gretzhoffen sprang out, section after section. Face to face, line against line, the two detachments met in the shock of arms.

BOYS' HIGH ATTENDANCE INCREASES OVER 200

By H. E. Loomis.

Boys' High school opened its doors on the 13th of September to record the first time in the history of the present building. Over 460 pupils were enrolled by the end of the second week. This is an increase of over 200 pupils, for although 462 boys were enrolled last year over 200 of them belonged to the commercial department which has this year been moved into a separate building.

One of the foremost changes we have taken place in the school is that of making Professor Eugene Ragland assistant principal of schools, in charge of Boys' High school. This is undoubtedly an excellent change, as it takes from the shoulders of Professor Dykes some of his lesser duties and gives him more time to which to attend to the larger duties which he has in his new position as principal of the high school system of the city.

Only one of last year's teachers has departed from our midst, while seven new members have joined the ranks of the faculty of B. H. S.

The Delphinian Literary and Debating society will meet as usual once a month this year on Fridays.

Football Prospects.

Football has been progressing rapidly under the instruction of Coaches Wood and Moon and the leadership of Captain Knox and Manager Jones.

Last year's team Knox, Jones, L. Adams, B. Adams, Hicks, Staten, Brooks and Loomis have returned, and should make a good foundation on which to build this year's team. We have also the loss of four useful men from last year's team, but the new material looks fully capable of filling these places. The most promising candidates to date are: Lyle Knox, Valley, Cain, Morris, Richardson, Davis, Lewis, Arnold.

Both student-body and the faculty wish to express their sincere sympathy to Professor Ragland on the death of his father.

TENTH ST. SCHOOL STARTS THE YEAR WITH MANY PUPILS

Our school opened Monday, the 13th of September, on the notch of time and if you could have seen the yard at 8:30 you would have thought that all Atlanta childhood was in Tenth.

Our annex will open Monday, the 27th.

Both first A and first B have forty-five children again this year.

Third B is doing good work. They are very much interested in the study of cotton and are making a cotton chart, which will make their room very attractive.

Fourth B is very much interested in the study of history; they are learning how Columbus sowed.

Fifth A is interested in drawing and hope to make good artists.

Plant life is being studied by the fifth B, and they plan to beautify their room with plants.

Sixth A had perfect attendance since the beginning of school.

The sixth B are very much pleased with the new geographies. One of the boys brought a microscope to school and they are studying coal with it.

Seventh A has taken up the life of Lincoln.

Insect life is being studied by the seventh B and they hope to go on an excursion soon. This class visited several times the room Monday and enjoyed the Wilson unveiling very much.

CREW ST. SCHOOL EXTENDS WELCOME TO NEW FRIENDS

It is with great pleasure that Crew street school welcomes many new teachers and many new pupils this year.

We have started the new term with a splendid enrollment. The eagerness boys and girls and all seem to be trying to make this year the best in the history of the school.

So far we have had visits from Miss Graves, Miss Wilby and Miss Harraleson.

Mrs. Estelle Garrett Baker and Mrs. Warren Candler gave us a pleasant surprise last week by sending around quite a number of nice books for our library. We know we shall enjoy these books during the year and think it very kind of Mrs. Candler and Mrs. Baker to help us.

The sixth A grade, taught by Miss Nollie Hearne, are doing some good work in elementary science and on Wednesday made an excursion to the waterworks.

Second B grade are studying the cavemen and Ludford Jones and Hugh Causy made two tomahawks that showed neat workmanship.

FRASER SCHOOL

First Grades Full of Bright and Happy Children.

We are delighted to start back to school again. Our school is not as large as usual, but we have room for an ungraded class that we hope to have by the first of October.

We are so glad that the children took so much interest in planting the flowers around the school yard and they are very pretty now. The children in the seventh grade last year raised a fine garden in which they raised radishes, onions and tomatoes in the spring. The seventh grade is preparing the ground to plant turnips, and we hope to make successful gardens.

The first grades are very bright and happy and are hard workers. Fifth B have started with good work, and we believe it will last all the year through. Sixth B are doing well; they received 100 in attendance last week. Seventh grade is hard to work, and feel very proud, indeed, to be the senior class. They take much interest in the school and help to do things for other grades and especially for the little first grades, who are strangers in the school. We try to set an example for them because they try to follow the larger children in the things they do. We hope our school will be one of the finest, smartest and prettiest in the city of Atlanta, and I am sure all the children will do their very best to try to make it so.

GEORGIA AVE. SCHOOL

Debating Society Has Already Been Organized.

Georgia avenue school opened the fall term with a fine attendance.

We have organized a debating society with Aldine McDonald as president, William Morrow, vice president, and Annie Agricola, secretary. We are glad to know that Willie Florence, who has been very ill, has recovered and will be with us next week.

Washington Seminary Has Splendid Opening

By Margaret Macdonald.

The school year has begun with a great deal of enthusiasm. At the opening exercises Thursday, September 16, there was the usual rubbub of joyous confusion. Excited greetings to friends and teachers, interested conjectures as to the new school, and much could be heard on every side. The shy new girls were made to feel at home by the hand of good-fellowship readily extended to them by the old girls. When the "fuss" had subsided, Mr. Scott was presented Dr. Hewlett, who gave us an excellent talk, on the three things a girl should acquire: First, the ability to think clearly; second, to will rightly; third, to feel kindly.

Mr. Linduir, our violin teacher, was also represented today. Mr. Vorhees, who played "Ceda," by Huday. Mrs. Hurt gave two charming songs, "Madrigal," by Simon, and "Morning," by Tschalkowsky. Then Mrs. Lunceford, our new expression teacher, introduced us to a humorous selection, "An Interview With Her Father-in-Law." Miss Marguerite Bartholomew played three beautiful piano selections, "Gavotte," by Handel; "Scherzo," by Chopin, and "The Aeolian Harp," by Nevin. The program was concluded by Mendelssohn's "Wedding March," played as a duet by Miss McGregor and her pupil, Miss Jennie McDonald. This entertainment was enjoyed by a great many "old" girls, former seminary girls and the friends of the school. Miss Scott called it starting off with a good taste in your mouth."

It is always hard to get things to run smoothly the first few days, conflict and Miss Emma needs to be past in mathematics to straighten out the tangles. This year the schedule seems more easily adjusted, and we have quickly settled down to work in good earnest.

The domestic science take gym and domestic science or chemistry are very enthusiastic about the new teacher, and those who are not so fortunate are envious, for Miss Mulherne has been interested in her work and is "way with us to a humorous selection, "An Interview With Her Father-in-Law." Miss

EAST ATLANTA IS VERY PROUD OF NEW SCHOOL

East Atlanta has her new school now, and is, indeed, very proud of it. It is an eight-room building, with three commodious rooms for the use of the P. T. A. The building has been erected on the site of the past—drinking founts in the house and yard, steam heat and the building is wired for electric lights.

Work has been started on the yard, and when finished we will have the prettiest in the city. Our little shade trees are beginning to look pretty now, and we think by next summer they will be giving plenty of shade.

We sympathize with Miss Woodlin, our first grade teacher, in the loss of her grandmother, and hope she can soon return to school, for we miss her very much.

The seventh grade children are looking forward to getting their basketball court ready, and also our volley-ball net, so they can begin their games. They hope to start their athletics next week.

We are all going to do good work this year, and trust you will fail to go up with our classes in June.

SUSIE WHITE.

THE COMING WEEK IS CLEAN-UP WEEK AT DAVIS SCHOOL

Our school opened with an enrollment of 423 boys and girls, all glad to get back to work.

We had hoped to have a new building this year, but since we shall not, we are going to make the best of our old one. Already some of the classes have put up curtains and pictures and all are beginning to make the rooms attractive with potted plants, window boxes and numerous little things.

Next week will be clean-up week at Davis. We are all going to scrub our desks, clean closets and cloak rooms and make our rooms as attractive as possible. On Monday week our principal will inspect all the classrooms, and the one that has the most attractive room is to get a box of candy. Everybody is going to try hard for the prize.

Our little park is beautiful and we are enjoying having plenty of room at recess and the thick grass to play on.

The Mims memorial fountain, which was put up during the summer, is an object of pride to us. It is of white marble. Four streams of water flow from the mouths of four lion heads into a basin, and there are four-marble seats around the fountain which stands on a circular base of white marble. The fountain was built with the $500 left in our park by Mrs. Livingston Mims, wife of a former mayor of Atlanta.

Another improvement that was made during the summer is the electric lights that have been put up in the park. We shall be glad to have them when our fathers' and mothers' clubs meet in the evening, as used to be very dark without any lights but those from the lanterns which the children would bring from home on the trees when we had club meetings at the school at night.

We are all glad to have our school page begin again. It was one of the things we missed during the summer, for we very interesting to read about what the other schools are doing.

EDGEWOOD SCHOOL

Pupils of Fourth Grade Enjoying Studying the Indian.

After three long months of vacation we are all back at school again. We are getting down to work in earnest, and we shall make strenuous efforts to have this our best year at dear old Edgewood.

We are much in love with our two new teachers, Miss Nesbitt and Mrs. Albright, the latter being our assistant principal. Miss Pinnell, who has been out several months, has returned, and we are glad to welcome her back again.

The children of the fourth grade B have an Indian village and are interested in the study of the habits and customs of the Indian.

The pupils of third grade A are very excited in their work and play.

The sixth grade A tied with the seventh grade A for the attendance banner last week. They have a fine sand table with volcanoes and their craters. They also have some lovely paper pulp maps on their walls.

The pupils of sixth B are interested in their geography and Indian village. They are studying the waterworks system of our home city and find it very interesting.

The seventh grade boys and girls have organized a volley ball team and play every day. We are going to try to carry off the banner next year.

We are doing our best to make Edgewood more beautiful every day, and are succeeding.

FORMWALT SCHOOL OPENS ITS DOORS TO 335 CHILDREN

Vacation is over! When the great doors of dear old Formwalt opened there stood and thirty-five boys and girls of all ages and sizes walked in. Three hundred and thirty-five! Just think of it!

This is our first year without an eighth grade, and the fourth grade is now upstairs, and this makes them feel very important.

We have our principal, his spent two weeks of her vacation mending books for our school library, and next Friday the library will open.

We have a new teacher, Miss Floy Edwards, and we will do all we can to make her welcome.

We hope that we have a great deal of work, and are going to go at it hard and accomplish a great deal this year.

We of the seventh grade are doing our best in our studies.

Mrs. Sams is teaching us our grammar and composition.

For our athletics this quarter we have the standing broadjump for the girls and the runningbroad jump for the boys.

The sixth grade has thirty-seven children enrolled. They are very enthusiastic, and are out for a fine year's work.

The children of the fifth grade are enjoying immensely the use of their new classrooms.

The girls and boys of the fourth grade are studying about Texas. They have learned that it is a story of the earth and its people, and each day the story grows more interesting.

The third grade dramatized "The Shoemaker and the Elves," and enjoyed it very much.

Just as we entered the second grade A the little people were busy playing "The Cock, the Mouse and the Little Red Hen." The first grade, the fox, looked quite threatening with his big sack, and Claire Sappersteln made a very industrious little Hen.

The children of the second B found much enjoyment in dramatizing "The Wee Wee Woman" and "Henny Penny." Also Mrs. Sams praised them for their splendid work in dramatizing "The Little Red Hen."

The little ones of the first A are always delighted to be sent to the board for writing, and they are trying very, very hard to get the arm movement.

The first grade B are all fine. We are just learning to take their places at the board.

BOYS' NIGHT

School Now Has One of the Largest Enrollments.

The boys' night school has opened for the 1915-16 term, and has a large attendance, the largest in a long time. All the boys seem anxious to learn their lessons and to come regularly.

The shorthand class is very much overcrowded this year. They have been transferred to ahother room and have promised us more desks. We have the finest class this year in the history of the school, about forty-five being enrolled, and they are still coming. All seem to be enthusiastic. Our school is the only public school in the city that teaches the "Paragan system," and all like it very much, and expect to have several graduates next June.

The bookkeeping class is also very large. Mr. Summer, our principal, is their teacher, and we are hoping for the "twentieth century bookkeeping course." The new desks that have been loaned us are much better than the old style ones, and we like them very much. We will be very glad to get into the new school building on Pryor street as soon as it is completed. We expect to make this our record year. School starts at 7 o'clock and ends at 9:30. Every boy who works in the day is welcomed to our school.

The third grade B has a large attendance and are coming regularly. The teacher for this grade has been sick nearly all the time since school began. The seventh grade has a large class of about forty-five pupils, all of whom are coming regularly and are anxious to learn.

The foreign class this year has quite a large attendance of foreign citizens. There are five pupils in the class from the following countries: Greece, Italy, Austria and Russia. They are much interested in their lessons and in the language.

We are very sorry to lose their regular teacher, J. T. Schliser, of the fifth grade, who resigned last week because of his night work interfering with his day work.

The sixth grade has organized a debating club for the first quarter. The officers elected for the term are as follows: Cecil Staford, president; Paul Blake, secretary. The debate for Friday is, "Resolved, That Georgia should have compulsory education." All the boys in the class are anxious to learn and expect to have a fine year.

BERNARD WILLSON.

FOR CORRESPONDENTS.

This edition of the school page is the first for the present term. We wish to urge every principal and correspondent to see to it that their school is represented every week by a letter telling about school happenings, etc. Don't let a week slip by just because you think there is no news. There are any number of little things about school life that the pupils themselves like to see in print. Let the children from other schools are interested in what's going on in your place of business and want to know about it.

The Constitution will send envelops immediately for the correspondents to mail in their weekly reports. If at any time you run out of these envelopes just let us know and you will be quickly supplied.

On today's page there are some pictures of correspondents. These were the first to go and have their photos taken and hence were in time to get into this issue. However, the pictures of the others will be published soon.

We hope for a splendid beginning today, so let's try and keep it up for the rest of the year.

LARGE ENROLLMENT FILLS BUILDING AT GIRLS' NIGHT

The girls' night school opened in a storm with very few in attendance, but the next night the sun was shining and there was a large attendance has increased until now the total enrollment is ninety, which has forced the board of education to buy three dozen new chairs.

We are serving warm lunches again this year, which consist of five dishes for a penny a plate. The girls enjoy these lunches very much.

The girls in the third division are fortunate in having this year a new teacher, Mrs. Eleta Cresap, who was formerly principal of the Lee street school. Mrs. Cresap is very fine, and will be a great help to the girls.

There were two scholarships offered this year in music by Mrs. George Munro to girls. Bobbie Hutchinson and Helen Weintraub were the winners.

The stenography class has increased to such an extent that it has become necessary to have an assistant teacher, and we hope the board will grant our request.

The attendance in all of the classes except the Jewish class has been very good, some of the Jewish girls being away on account of Jewish holidays.

DOROTHY STEPHENS.

CALHOUN SCHOOL

Pupils Extend Welcome Hand to Several New Teachers.

After a most enjoyable vacation both the teachers and pupils, Calhoun is now organized and ready for a hard year's work.

We are glad to welcome into our school the several new teachers and we hope that they will enjoy the associations at Calhoun as much as we do.

The second grade has already started the study elementary science. They have received an interesting collection of butterflies from George Stauffacher, a member of the class.

For the elementary science work in the seventh grade this year the girls and boys have been clearing the field next to the school which we use as our agricultural garden.

One of the improvements at Calhoun this summer was the building of a new office. It is a nice, airy little room over the front entrance and is large enough to contain the school library of about 500 volumes.

SADIE BEALL WODLIFF.

STATE SCHOOL

Vacation Pupils Now Doing the Best Work.

School has been in session two weeks now. Our first and sixth grades overflowed, but all the rest are comfortably filled.

We have the largest seventh grade that has ever been at State. This is the senior class, now that there are only seven grades in the grammar schools.

The first A grade has dramatized "The Three Bears," and it's better than a movie.

The State street vacation school was one of the largest, as the unpromoted pupils who will be ready to skip some here from six schools. These vacation pupils are now doing some of the very best work in their respective classes. They have learned how to listen and how to study while others recited and the time of their lives in the summer school. Some of these are going to have all year-round schools, and the habit of wasting thirteen weeks every year will be broken since the rule is 95. We had the highest per cent of attendance in the city last week and all the other schools, if you please. We are so proud of this record that we just can't help shouting the good news aloud.

We have the finest times at recess playing under our spreading trees. Jackstones is the popular game with the girls, and they like tops and marbles.

We had our first fire drill Thursday, and all the children filed out in such military order as to insure a safe exit in case of a real conflagration.

It is certainly a generous gift for a great big daily paper to allow a whole page of costly space for school news. The Japanese have a saying that whatever is poured into the mind of the children comes out in the heart of the nation, so this generous gift is a contribution to the highest patriotism, and we predict a most successful year for our school paper.

KATHLEEN CLEMENT.

NORTH AVE. SCHOOL MAY ORGANIZE A FOOTBALL TEAM

Our school opened on September 13 with a full enrollment. We were all glad to commence work again, even though we had enjoyed our vacations. Almost all of our old students returned and the new ones will soon become full of the North Avenue spirit, which is to do our very best.

We have a few fifth grade established to accommodate the overflow from Tenth street school. We give them a hearty welcome and hope they will become so fond of us that they will be glad to remain with us. As they have a very popular teacher, I am sure this will be an easy thing to do.

Last week the second and fifth A grades made one hundred in attendance.

The seventh grade has started practicing volley ball. We hope we can get a good team and give all other public schools a chance for the championship.

We hope for a splendid beginning today, so let's try and keep it up for the rest of the year.

HAL REYNOLDS,

VOLLEY BALL GAME TO START SOON AT ASHBY SCHOOL

After such a long rest we are back at work once more, and we are. We have a new principal this year, Miss Sally Long, and a new sixth grade teacher. We want Ashby street school to be one of the finest schools in the city, even though we haven't as large an enrollment as we'd like. We all like Miss Long, and hope she will like us.

The seventh grade children are cleaning off their volley ball court, and expect to have some great games. They are also clearing their garden of weeds for the purpose of fall planting. You will probably hear a great deal about the vacant lot just across the street from the school, for the seventh grade pupils are very much interested in their elementary science.

EDWARD NORTON.

PRYOR SCHOOL

Freshly Tinted Walls Add Greatly to School's Looks.

Pryor street school opened Monday, September 13, and most of us were glad to see our teachers and friends again. We were all surprised to see that our walls had been freshly tinted, which greatly improved the appearance of our school. The street in front of the school has been widened and looks very fine indeed. It did last year.

During our vacation the weeds and bushes have grown very high, but as we have a school of energetic boys, the yards will soon be in good condition. All of our classes are nicely furnished except the seventh grade, which was arranged to seat forty pupils and has had to seat forty-five. We have two sixth grades and therefore have a few vacant seats.

We hope that we will have a successful year, and that every child in our school will be promoted.

EUNICE RIDLEY.

PEEPLES SCHOOL

Pupils Show Much Interest in Their Studies.

Again we have taken up our studies and all seem very much interested in the work. Our little first graders are doing especially fine work.

Three of our old boys, J. O. Chambers, Arthur Hester and Jack Hester, paid us a pleasant visit Monday.

The seventh grade girls and boys have organized a volley ball team, and we are anxious to play our first game.

Mrs. Thornton, one of our most beloved teachers, is now principal of the Lucile Avenue school, came to see us Monday and we were very glad to see her.

We have already had two fire drills in, and it is wonderful how quickly the first grade children learn how we do things.

Tom Body, who was out a long time last spring with a broken leg, is now wearing a broken arm in a sling.

We are glad to welcome Pearlie Merideth back at school, even if she must get about on crutches.

Fred Nat Rins has typhoid fever. We are sorry, and hope he will be with us again soon.

MARY HAMILTON.

NO PUPIL TARDY AT FORREST AVE. SINCE OPENING

Since the beginning of the term no one has been tardy at Forrest avenue school. The attendance of the first, fifth and seventh grades was perfect the first week.

We are glad to welcome our new principal, Miss Katie King, and her niece, Miss Ferguson, and Miss Mabel.

The primary grades enjoyed their visit from Miss Craven and Miss Wilby very much. The whole school was delighted to be visited by Mrs. Hill, a principal of the schools in Wilmington, N. C. The school had a fire drill for her and several classes gave demonstrations of their physical training. The third grade A entertained her with songs and recitations.

The seventh grade boys have organized their soccer ball team and the girls have organized to play a game with the basketball. This class has taken up the study of China and finds it very interesting.

IMMACULATE CONCEPTION VISITS FEDERAL PRISON

Literary Society in High School Department Has Splendid Exercises.

The boarding department of our school had a most enjoyable trip last Friday afternoon. This is our regular outing day, but we have never had a more interesting visit than we did last Friday. We went to the Federal prison, and though the kindness of Mrs. Benson, whose daughter, Esther, is one of our pupils, we were taken through the prison and saw the wonderful way a government institution is conducted. We all felt instructed and entertained by what we saw.

The Hyades is the name of the literary society in the high school department. Some very fine compositions were written by the pupils in the room, the principal subjects being "My Favorite Study," written by Katherine Jennings, and "Our Class," written by Dorothy West. These compositions received good marks, and were really very interesting to the whole class. The composition entitled "Our Class" included an unusual piece of information in the closing lines, which were: "As there are five girls in our room we can easily start a war."

The second grade, under the direction of Sister Concepcion, are busy preparing for a spelling bee which they plan to give on Friday, October 1.

The primary art department in this same grade is a source of great pleasure to the pupils, and some of them showed decided talent for drawing. This week the best work entitled "Jack and Jill" and "Joseph McCarrick, both of these young pupils drawing really pretty little pictures of boats flying the Confederate flag.

HILL ST. PUPILS TAKE INTEREST IN THEIR STUDIES

We appreciate the kindness of The Constitution permitting us to have a school page in its columns.

Our school has a full attendance and the children are taking a great deal of interest in their studies.

Mr. Wardlaw spent a part of Tuesday with us and gave interesting talks and good advice to each grade.

We are very proud of fifth grade B having an attendance of 100 last week.

SIDNEY BRASWELL.

7TH GRADE PUPILS AT BATTLE HILL START athletics

Battle Hill has settled down to work once more and the school is not overcrowded this year on account of the Lucile avenue school.

We are all taking a great deal of interest in elementary science this year. The third grade has a collection of seeds, including many weed seeds, which they are studying. They also are keeping a weather chart.

The fourth grade are collecting many kinds of grasses for study. Most of the pupils of the fifth grade are catching the insects that injure the apple trees and they are starting on their geography scrap books. The sixth grade have a collection of butterflies and caterpillars.

The seventh grade children have started on their athletics. They will be busy for some time weeding and clearing their gardens.

The third grade made the highest attendance last week, getting 100 per cent.

Pupils Gladly Welcome Their New Principal, Mrs. Spears.

We are back at school again, and are ready for a hard year's work. Most of us are glad school has opened. We miss our former good friend and principal, Miss Morgan, very much, indeed as also the other teachers who have left us, but we are glad to welcome our new principal, Mrs. Spears, and her assistants.

Mr. Wardlaw, our assistant superintendent, visited the schools yesterday.

In addition to plans for a hard year's work, we also are going into athletics with a will.

The third grade A has set us an example worthy of our best efforts, that is, 100 per cent in attendance for last week.

Children Glad to Get Back to Studies Again.

When school opened we were certainly glad, because we wanted to see the teachers we had loved so well. All of them are with us except one, and we have one new teacher, Miss Wheat, whom we have already begun to love.

The fifth grade has had perfect attendance so far and hope to have it all the year.

The sixth grade has many plans for the future and intend to start working on a flower garden as soon as possible.

The ten-minute period of current events every morning is proving very interesting.

The seventh grade is going to show last month's record, which is the record really is.

RESOLUTIONS ADOPTED BY THE FARMERS' UNION

At Meeting Held in Atlanta During the Past Week.

The Constitution presents herewith the substance of the resolutions adopted by the Georgia Farmers' union meeting held at the capitol in Atlanta during the past week.

United States senator J. L. McLauren explained the workings of the state warehouse system and urged similar legislation in Georgia.

Among other things, the resolutions adopted declared:

"To say to the man whose little farm is planted over with cotton cannot, and who is paying from 12 to 40 per cent on borrowed money, that the balance of trade is largely in favor of his government—a government dedicated to liberty and justice—is a mockery difficult to injure. The farmer of the south is accused of shiftlessness and improvidence; he is told that his deplorable condition is due to the all-cotton system of farming. That cotton culture and diversification will solve his problems. The farmer has done so, by saying this, we ask his accusers, in all earnestness, what would they do if the next ten millions of bales of cotton that he was relieved of in 1914 at $39 per bale and less, were 10,000,000 bales, and the farmer $300,000,000, and yet our government says that it is helpless to remedy in his face and saw this vast aggregate of his laziness and incompetence? Indeed, the farmer has suffered the net loss of $300,000,000. He begged his government to help him, and at the Wade cotton loan was the answer—a year ago Jennings, and "Our Class," written by Dorothy West. These compositions received good marks, and were really very interesting to the whole class. The composition entitled "Our Class" included an unusual piece of information in the closing lines, which were: "As there are five girls in our room we can easily start a war."

"Resolved, That this convention take initial steps to put in operation a system of marketing cotton, whereby the grower will have a voice in pricing his product. And be it resolved, that we call upon all of our union men especially, and the farmers generally, to support the present legislator requesting him to do all in his power to get the warehouse bill enacted during the special session of the legislature. We consider this the most important constructive legislation that has been before the nature in years, and of profound importance to the agricultural class.

"On Cotton.

1. Whereas, the present cotton crop is conceded to be approximately between 14,000,000 to 15,000,000 bales short of that of 1914, and

Whereas, the spread of the boll weevil will greatly reduce the 1916 crop, therefore be it

Resolved, By the people of Georgia, assembled in convention at Atlanta, on this the 21st day of September, 1915, for the purpose of taking such steps as may take action for the present and to plan for the future, that we will not plant a single cotton crop, that we believe that it is the part of wisdom to plant the present crop slowly and conservatively.

"Since the great producer of ours is one that the world cannot dispense with in time of war or peace; a product that, after paying the nation's debts, creates a trade balance in favor of these United States of $500,000,000.

We believe further that inasmuch as the crop of 1915 will be largely controlled in the hands of the producers, netted vast fortunes to speculative interests, therefore we ask that 12½ cents a pound should be paid for the present crop, and, as conditions now exist in relation to the 1916 crop, we do urge that all who can do so should keep their cotton, or as much of it as possible, off the market at this time.

"On Warehouses.

2. Whereas, we believe that a just and equitable rural credits system, whereby both those who have land and those who desire to become land owners, may, through and by government aid, be enabled to secure loans of money at a low rate of interest and on long time, is the most just and means of bringing prosperity and independence to the people of Dixie, and of safeguarding the rights of posterity, therefore be it

Resolved, That we urge the present administration to carry out in good faith the promises made in connection with the democratic platform at Baltimore in 1912.

3. Resolved, That this convention take initial steps to put in operation a system of marketing cotton, whereby the grower will have a voice in pricing his product. And be it resolved, that we call upon all of our union men especially, and the farmers generally, to support the present legislator requesting him to do all in his power to get the warehouse bill enacted during the special session of the legislature. We consider this the most important constructive legislation that has been before the nature in years, and of profound importance to the agricultural class.

Was Predicted in 1849.

(From The Philadelphia Press.)

Henry Urdin, 720 Lavick street, has a leaflet dated 1849, which contains the result of a consultation between Prince Bismarck and a "crystal-teller or astrologer, in 1849, in which the latter predicted many things, including the Prussian-Danish war, the Austro-Prussian war and also the Franco-Prussian war and also the present conditions which would enable Russia to conquer the world. Bismarck is quoted as asking the astrologer when the next great war would be, and the answer was between France and which would be the victor.

"In the year 1871, and victory shall crown the arms of the Fatherland," was the astrologer's response.

How do you ascertain that?" asked the count, "and how long shall I live?"

"Thus," said the astrologer, "this is the year 1849

"Now add 1849 vertically	3
which amounts to 1871
"Well done," said the count. "Now Inform me how many years I shall pass from this sphere of human vicissitudes."
Again the astrologer resorted to figures. He took the year 1871
and added 1849 vertically	4
making 1893

This, however, was wrong.

"Now, when shall come the world's conflict when Germany shall conquer the world?" asked Bismarck. The astrologer said 1915.

He took the year 1893

making 1915

In this conflict the fortune-teller made it known that eight of the best known countries in Europe and one in Asia and one on the western continent would be possibly her foe also, because of the great inventive genius of the many in bringing new implements of death to be laid and her wonderful resources she would be the victor.

It was predicted "the world will be started at the wonderful fighting qualities of the Teutonic race. The astrologer, the leaflet says, told that the leader of the Germans in this year would be a grandson of the king of Prussia, who would drive the invading hordes from Germanic territory, as John Sobeiski beat back the Turks in the seventeenth century from the gates of Vienna.

Local Art Exhibit.

The annual exhibition of work by local artists will open this year on November 6 under the auspices of the Atlanta Art association, and it is confidently expected that the event will be even more of a success than that last year.

All Atlanta artists are invited to exhibit and all mediums will be accepted, oil, water color, china, pastel, pen and ink, architectural drawings, miniatures, pottery, sculpture, etc. The only rules of the exhibition are that the work shall be original and never exhibited here before.

A number of artists have spent the summer at picturesque haunts on the coast and in the mountains, and are returning with many bits of beautiful sea or woodland caught and put on paper or canvas to bring home.

Those who wish to know any further facts about the exhibit may find out by telephoning or writing to Mrs. E. W. More, Ivy 5280-L, 12 and 12 West Twelfth street, or Mrs. Walter Howard, Ivy 778 and 54 Forrest avenue.

SAVANNAH SOCIAL NEWS

Savannah, Ga., September 25.—This week definitely marks the close of Savannah's summer season, because while social gayety does not begin for more than another month, many of those who are away return to the city by the first of October. Two out-of-town weddings today are of great interest here. The marriage of Miss Elinor Buchanan Shotter to Charles Doolittle, Jr., of New York, took place at 4 o'clock this afternoon in Trinity church, Lenox, Mass. Miss Isabel D. Shotter was her sister's maid of honor and the only bridesmaid, and Mr. Eben Doolittle was his brother's best man. Rev. William Lawrence Wood officiated.

Immediately after the ceremony Mr. Shotter gave a reception at his summer cottage, Osceola house.

The marriage of Miss Ruth Pilling, of Washington, D. C., to Mr. Carroll Dunham, Jr., of Savannah, also took place this afternoon. The bride and her mother live at Blue Ridge Summit, Pa., in the summer, and the marriage at the Episcopal church there was followed by a reception at their cottage. Miss Jane Maidrim, of Savannah, was one of the bridesmaids, and most of the Savannah people at Blue Ridge Summit attended the wedding. Among them were Mrs. Willis Winter, Miss Maclean, Miss Caroline Meidrim, Mrs. Robert Young, Mrs. W. W. Gordon, Jr., and others.

The marriage in Washington, November 2, of Miss Julia Heyl to Joseph Clay Habersham Colquitt is another out-of-town wedding surrounded with much interest here. Mr. Colquitt's sisters, Miss Harriet Colquitt, of Savannah, and Mrs. John Barnwell, of Memphis, will go on together to attend the wedding, and Negle Colquitt, Esq., who will accompany them, will be his brother's best man. Miss Heyl is a daughter of Colonel Charles A. Heyl, U. S. A., retired.

The marriage of Miss Alice Lucille Macdonald to Mr. Arthur Latimore Armstrong took place Tuesday afternoon at the First Baptist church. Frank Metzger and Carl Oppenheimer were the ushers. The bride was attended only by her sister, Miss Louise MacDonald, as maid of honor. Mr. and Mrs. Armstrong left before the same afternoon for a trip to New York.

Invitations have been received in the city to the marriage of Miss Pearl McGarity, of Jersey, to Dr. Charles S. Floyd, of Loganville, on Wednesday afternoon, October 6, at 4:30 o'clock at the home of the bride's parents, Jersey, Ga.

Blackheads Vanish In a Few Moments

By Means of Her Own Secret Formula, Valeska Suratt Has Made Herself the Famous Self-Made Beauty-Actress of America.

By Miss Valeska Suratt

BLACKHEADS can be removed in a surprisingly quick way, without pinching, face steaming, dieting, or any other tedious method. It is by the use of a formula which I have perfected myself, and so simple that it astonishes. It never fails when properly done, and the blackheads will be removed in a few moments, or in as short a time as it requires to thoroughly wash the face. Blackheads are a local affliction, and no amount of drugging, blood treatment or dieting will remove them. The worst thing you can do in trying to get rid of blackheads is to try to pinch them out. There are many blackheads which require severe squeezing to make them come out. This nearly always leaves a spot slightly redder than the rest of the skin, and this spot remains for a long time. By using my formula, no squeezing is necessary.

First wash the face with hot water and soap. Then sprinkle some powdered neroxin upon a sponge made wet with hot water. Then rub well for a few minutes on the parts of the skin which are affected with blackheads. You should be able to secure the neroxin of any druggist.

MISS SAGGY—I knew you would get rid of your poor complexion with the formula I gave you, and now I want you to use my wrinkle formula, and you will soon see a difference of years in your appearance. For crow's feet, small or deep wrinkles, sagging cheeks, the following formula is absolutely unequaled: Dissolve two tablespoonfuls of glycerine and two ounces of eptol in half a pint of hot water. Stir until it is dissolved and starts to cream. Eptol may be obtained at any good drug store.

MRS. O. B. W.—In a half pint of cold water dissolve two ounces ruetone and half a cup of sugar, all well mixed together. Of this, take two teaspoonfuls three or four times a day in a wine-glass of water, after your meals. The ruetone can be secured at the drug store. If anything can do it, this should develop the bust beautifully, although no one can assure you that the bust can be developed in all cases.

ANXIETY PLUS—My complexion formula will make your skin take on a purity rivaling that of the rose. Red spots, muddiness, sallowness, freckles will surely leave, and soon the spotless, pinky whiteness of youth your face, arms, hands, neck and chest. It is the beautifier without a peer, and is very economical. Mix two tablespoonfuls of glycerine in a pint of hot water and add one ounce of sixtone, which can be secured at any drug store.

MRS. M. A. R.—I always keep my armpits in a fresh, dry, natural condition by the use of hydrolized talc. I have tried many of the advertised articles for allaying perspiration of armpits, but finally worked out this one of my own which acts like magic.

MRS. GENEVIEVE T.—In case it happens again that you cannot get from the drug store the eptol for making my splendid wrinkle remover, write to Valeska Suratt, Thompson Bldg., Chicago, Ill., and my secretary will see that you are immediately supplied. When writing enclose the price, which is fifty cents.

MISS WHEN?—For removing superfluous hair you can use nothing as good as simple auto solution. It dissolves away any hair as if by magic, and never leaves a red spot, or irritation. Simple auto solution can be secured at the drug store. This is one of my most effective formulas.

SUSPENSE—If you want a really exquisite face powder, without the chalkiness of nearly all face powders, I suggest you try my own, made after my own formula, "Valeska Suratt Face Powder." It will give a tint and softness you never before experienced. It is sold in many drug and department stores. If you have any difficulty in getting it, simply write to my secretary as suggested to Mrs. Genevieve T., enclose fifty cents, and ask for white or flesh.

VERY SHORT—Use my hair-growing formula faithfully for a time, then measure your hair, and you will find that it has grown wonderfully in a short time. It will be no longer thin and scraggly, but radiant with the glorious sheen and lustre that perfect, healthy hair possesses. Your hair receiver—well, there'll be no more use for it. Mix it yourself, as follows: Add half a pint of alcohol to half a pint of water (or use a full pint of imported bay rum, if you prefer), and to this add one ounce of beta-quinol, which any drug store can supply you. This will never fail.

War Share Leadership Gives Way In Popularity to Motor Issues

Prosperity of Automobile Manufacturers Causes New High Records — Prospect of Successful Foreign Loan Flotation Strengthens All Groups.

New York, September 25.—(Special.) The war stocks were forced to take second place in point of activity and sensational advances during the past week, with motor issues getting the attention of all interested in securities. The common stocks of the larger automobile manufacturing concerns which are marketed on the stock exchange made new high records almost each session of the week, save after periods of reaction, with one stock advancing 100 points in less than an hour. Automobile manufacturers are enjoying unusual prosperity at the present time, while one of the companies, whose stock made such phenomenal advances, has recently declared a large extra dividend, with another expected to follow in the near future with a large disbursement for its shareholders. The war issues, however, though not occupying the limelight to the exclusion of all else, as had so frequently been the case, were very strong, with new high records scored by a number of them. Other industrials besides the war issues and the motor stocks were strong, with large advances in the more important issues to the highest points of years. The railroad list was quiet but stronger in sympathy with the general market movement, but were largely neglected. The progress of the work of the American and foreign financial bankers in placing a working basis for the loan to France and Great Britain was one of the main reasons for the strength in the market, but of no small influence on the general market was the prospect of continued steady improvement at this point or that in the industrial situation. Strength, also, in the railroad news was of just as bullish a character, indicating that the railroads are appreciative of the value of actual prosperity, but the rank and file of market interests are not as much concerned with the possibilities both in a speculative and an investment way lying in the railroad group, because it is the opinion of the close observers of the trend of affairs in the country that the time is at hand when there will be widespread buying of railroad stocks. There are also many conditions current that some of the rails will have large advances in prices during the next six months, though a few are believed to be in too poor shape to share very largely in the market's expected upward swing. The peculiar thing about this prediction is that it comes from people reputed to be authorities, and yet, so far, has produced practically no concrete buying.

The pending foreign loan has been without influence during the week on the money market, with rates low and unchanged, and with call money mostly below 2 per cent.

Foreign exchange strengthened perceptibly early in the week as a result of the favorable progress of the loan conferences, and rates on Great Britain and France are now better than they have been for many weeks.

The most recent reports concerning the effects of the foreign loan on Great Britain and France indicate that no matter how much of the loan is to be taken by bankers in this and other parts of the country, New York will be called upon finally to bear most of the burden. The reason for this is that surplus funds in all other sections of the country at the present time are either in actual use for crop moving, industrial expansion, etc., or else treasury will be in the near future. New York has huge surplus reserves which can be drawn without any drain on anyone, even though demand for funds here is above the average of normal periods.

Trade Balance May Reach Two Billion.

The relief from the loan in exchange and its stabilizing effect on credit of the allies may not be of long duration. At the present time, a trade balance in favor of the United States is growing at a rate which shows promise of passing the $1,000,000,000 mark in advance of the fiscal year to June 30, 1916, by a margin of several hundred million dollars, with the possibility foreseen that the trade balance for the current fiscal year may reach the two billion dollar mark. So far in the fiscal year, the trade balance at such a rate, but in the next eight or ten months there will be a tremendous export movement of war supplies, etc., which have so far figured only moderately in the export movement. There will be increasing shipments of grain and cotton. There will be probably larger shipments of grain and materials for wear for the winter campaign this year than last. There will be increased exports of rails, car and locomotives, etc., which did not figure prominently so far. Other things which have been ordered here will be ready for delivery soon and will swell the export movement in addition to what is now going out. Funds from the loan will offset the present trade balance to a large extent, but nothing is to be done at this time to offset the bulk of this year's trade which has been growing steadily since July 1, in one week—that ended September 18—the exports of the United States were $65,849,583, with a trade balance in favor of this country of $36,428,734 for the week.

Soon after the final placing of the loan in the allies, a large movement in new war business is looked for. It is expected that many new orders for shells, rifles, cannon, etc., will be placed within the next few months to insure delivery of the bulk before the spring and summer of 1916.

Huge Railroad Profits Certain.

Many explanations have been made as to why the railroads have been so slow in reflecting the improvement in industrial and agricultural conditions in their gross earnings. The main reasons lie in the fact that the many thousands of merchants and shippers of small lots of household, wearing and other articles, have only recently noted improvement in their business and are out of year of sharp depression. These small shippers do a tremendous business in freight room in the aggregate, and so even though the largest industrial and agricultural patrons of railroads have been exceeding their normal freight shipments, the railroads have only recently been able to show any improvement for the year to that of pre-war times. The small wholesalers and jobbers all over the country may soon find demand for their merchandise of sufficient size so that their shipments will aggregate near normal. When this period is reached, and it looks as though it would be within the next half year or so, with the huge shipments of grain and materials for war use, the railroads should have the best gross income in their history.

Some signs that railroads foresee this period can be found in the improving purchases of cars and locomotives by them. Equipment companies, however, are not so worried about how long this railroad buying holds off, as most of them have some business in war munitions or in cars and locomotives for foreign governments to tide them over until the time when railroads of this country are forced to buy. In view of the fact that buying of equipment by American railroads has been below normal for several years, also considering the continued loss of efficiency in the old equipment which has not been replaced, it is considered inevitable that, within the next few to four years, railroads will have to buy a vast amount of new cars and locomotives. Just how soon this buying movement comes will depend upon the state of business for the railroads, also upon their available profits for such purchasing.

The Rock Island has again been saved from foreclosure. An issue of $1,000,000 notes maturing September 20 could not have been met, but an extension to December 31 in which to raise funds to pay them with has been obtained. The $1,500,000 notes is guaranteed by several men prominent in the company before the receivership. Their guarantee will expire at the end of this month, but has been extended.

War Specialty Profits.

A hint of what is to come to holders of stocks of companies engaged in the war business is seen in the declaration of a larger dividend on its common stock by the Westinghouse Electric and Manufacturing company. This was expressly declared to have been made from earnings derived only from its normal business and not from any profits from its $60,000,000 orders for guns and shells. This is said to foreshadow a large extra dividend from these special profits. Holders of all of the war stocks which have not yet paid any dividends are reported to have taken up new hopes from the hint held in the action of the Westinghouse directors.

Motor Melon Cutting.

The great melon cutting have been made in recent years on General Motors stock, during which time there has not been any dividends on the common, are to come into stockholders' hands in generous amounts. The extra dividend of $50 a share in cash has been declared, while the rise of the stock has been from $82 to $558, with the belief that there will also be a large stock dividend declared in the near future. The sudden rise in General Motors was followed by sharp advances in Chevrolet Motors, Studebaker and Willys-Overland shares on the belief that the whole automobile industry is going into an even greater prosperity than exists now. In sympathy with the rise in prices, the stocks of all of the manufacturers of rubber or rubber tires had large advances.

Outlook for Metals.

There is no question for the advance of steel company stocks in the last few weeks to be found in the trade reports of steel conditions. Buying has been large, but has been held down by the fact that manufacturers are so busy that they are unable to make the deliveries asked excepting some new business for 1916 delivery series. It is probable that several million tons of steel could be sold for either immediate delivery or for deliveries during the second half of 1916, if capacity exists for the latter, while manufacturers are not willing to quote beyond the third or fourth months of 1916. Hardly a day passes without some new inquiry for steel for export, almost each day some important steel product is advanced in price.

The copper metal market is still awaiting the big movement which showed some evidence of starting over a week or two ago. It is reported in some circles that large sales have been made of the metal recently but the sales are limited to public producing interests, but it is the better opinion that the big movement is still to come. The large amount of increase in war munitions is certain to bring about a large volume of buying of copper, while enormous needs for the metal for general purposes have been developed in Europe, which, as far as supplies of copper are concerned, for a long time. Current sales of copper have been at 25 cents a pound, and a little above in most export sales. Recently, however, has been mostly for European consumption, as it is said that not assumed the proportions expected. Production is curtailed, as the present rate is believed to be in excess of consumption, hence it is believed that buyers of the metal are better able to hold off and purchase only for immediate needs than was the case two months back when the demand for the metal was so heavy that its price was pushed up to a rate which finally caused to pass 25 to 26 cents a pound for copper before the current date.

While nearby positions in wheat have been strong, May wheat at Chicago has been selling around $1.60 a bushel, whereas a year ago May wheat sold at the May, 1916, delivery) was selling at around $1.30 and later rose to $1.76. Opinions are widely variant as to the possibilities of high prices for the May delivery this year. The chances of peace in the meantime; of the opening of the Dardanelles, and of a very large planting this winter are factors to be met. On the other hand, demand may be of sufficient size so that what may arrives, which is prior to harvesting of the new winter wheat crop, may be short enough to make prices high. It is not upon news as to these factors that the market movements will depend.

Cotton May Reach 18c.

Cotton has been stronger during the past ten days than in any similar period in two years, while it has been the highest prices since the outbreak of war. The principal causes have been due to improved demand for spot cotton and to poor weather conditions for gathering the crop. Added to this the main cause for strength—the belief that the outlook is for demand sufficiently large to use the supply from the present crop to greatly reduce the surplus cotton carried over from last year before a new crop matures in 1916. Large bull pools, possibly more than a dozen pools in all, are operating in the New York market. Included in the groups are many of the most influential brokers in the market. There is talk of 18-cent cotton, while on every hand it is admitted not as a possibility, but a probability, that cotton will sell at 15 cents a pound before October 1 is here. For the time being there seems to be little in the turmoil which has attended the swift advance in the staple, but it is never certain but what their point of view may be of value to them even at a time when it seems lost.

RAILROAD SHARES BECOME PROMINENT

Conservative Investors Absorb Standard Transportation Issues — Approximate Overturn 600,000 Shares in Two-Hour Session.

New York, September 25.—Free absorption of investment shares, chiefly the high-class railways, on the largest scale witnessed in many weeks, was the distinguishing feature of today's stock market, on which transactions approximated 600,000 shares, or on the basis of 1,500,000 shares for a full day. Gratifying to the railways were reports of a substantial character, Pennsylvania, the most active stock of this class, advancing 2¾ points to 114, while Canadian Pacific, the Harriman, New York Central and Reading issues and Ohio gained 1 to 2 points.

The railways seemed to derive its chief impulse from banking quarters, but commission houses with western connections also reported an increased demand from speculative interests recently conspicuous in the sensational movement of the specialties. The latter were not entirely neglected, Baldwin Locomotive closing 2¾ to the new high price of 95¾, while General Motors rose 13 to 570, and Texas company, up 3½ to 165½, also surpassed all previous quotations.

Bethlehem Steel and a few other war shares made slight improvement in the early dealings, but the Bethlehem Steel preferred declined 13 to 170, and some of the less prominent industrials fell away moderately. United States Steel was less active than usual, but showed considerable strength. Rails of the motor issues showed the continued effects of realising sales, but General Motors maintained virtually all of its recent advance to 345.

The bank statement furnished genuine surprise in that the estimated large cash gain proved to be an actual loss of $15,000,000. Shiftiness and increasing by over $22,000,000 and reserve requirements reserves from last week's unprecedented total of $220,000,000 to $198,000,000. The loan excess of $67,387,000 was accepted as an indication of the week's active stock market.

General news of the day included the Atchison statement for August, showing a net gain of $222,000, and the reviews of the mercantile agencies, which reported a general expansion of trade.

Bonds were strong, with total sales par, $4,500,000.

Cotton and the South—How the Invention of the Cotton Gin Shaped Its Destiny

Had the South Never Raised a Bale of Cotton It Would Be Vastly Richer and More Populous Than It Is, in the Opinion of an Authority.

By RICHARD H. EDMONDS,
Editor Manufacturers' Record, Baltimore.

WHEN a New England man living in the South invented the cotton gin he probably did more to shape the destiny of the South than any other man who ever lived.

Prior to the invention of the cotton gin the South was giving its attention largely to industrial activities. Up to 1810 it led New England in manufacturing. Its foremost men in the early days prior to and after the Revolution were in very many cases men of technical training. Washington was a civil engineer, and his father a miner and shipper of iron ore. Jefferson owned iron works, and in those early days the iron industry was an important factor in the life of a large portion of the South.

In his "History of Iron in All Ages" James M. Swank, in referring to the establishment of many furnaces and bloomeries throughout the then settled portions of the South, said:—

"The people who built these furnaces and bloomeries were not only bold and enterprising, but appear to have been born with a genius for making iron. Wherever they went they seem to have searched for iron ore, and, having found it, their small charcoal furnaces and bloomeries soon followed. No States in the Union have shown in their early history more intelligent appreciation of the value of an iron industry than North Carolina and Tennessee, and none have been more prompt to establish it. * * * It is a curious fact that daring men who pushed their way into the wilds of Western Carolina and Eastern Tennessee in the last century, and who set up their small furnaces and bloomeries when forts yet took the place of hamlets, founded an iron industry which still retains many of the primitive features that at first characterized it."

As early as 1716 Governor Spotswood, of Virginia, established several iron making enterprises. In 1727 the General Assembly of that State passed "an act for encouraging adventurers in iron works." Colonel William Byrd, writing in 1732 of the many iron enterprises that had been started in Virginia, refers in one case to the iron development near Fredericksburg, and adds:—

"Mr. Washington raises the ore and carts it thither for twenty shillings the ton of iron that it yields. * * * Besides Mr. Washington and Mr. England, there are several other persons in England concerned in these works. Matters are very well managed there, and no expense is spared to make them profitable."

In another place Swank, referring to increased activity of iron interests in Virginia, says:—

"About 1790 the iron history of Virginia took a fresh start, as did many other manufactures of the State. * * * No State in the Union gave more attention to domestic manufactures after the close of the Revolution than did Virginia. Richmond, Lynchburg, Staunton, Winchester and some other places became noted for the extent and variety of their manufactures."

In South Carolina iron works were built in 1773, and at the beginning of the Revolution the State offered liberal premiums to those who would establish iron works, and a number of furnaces and rolling mills and nail mills were established. During the Revolutionary War William Hill, father of General D. H. Hill, of the Confederate army, operated a large and blast furnace in that State. These works were burned by Lord Cornwallis in his advance from upper South Carolina to North Carolina, and some small iron guns made in these works to aid in the Revolution were captured by Cornwallis and destroyed. Later on both North and South Carolina gave very considerable attention to iron making, as to other lines of industry.

Trend of Industrial Thought Changed by Gin Invention.

The trend of Southern thought to industrial activities, as indicated in these facts, typical of many that could be given, was changed largely by the invention of the cotton gin. In those days the price of cotton was so high and the profit in its production so great that the energy and capital of the South were soon concentrated upon cotton growing. In the early days of the cotton industry prices ranged from fourteen or fifteen cents to forty cents a pound, yielding unusual profits. Under such conditions the South for several decades almost forgot its industrial activities and centred its thought and life upon cotton. In order to grow more cotton, to meet the world's demand, it sought to increase the number of slaves and open up more land. This condition brought about a marked movement of population from the upper Southern States toward Alabama and Mississippi, in order to enlarge the cotton area and get the benefit of their virgin soils, increasing the demand for still more slaves with which to cultivate still more cotton land.

Thus the cotton gin fastened cotton upon the South, and cotton, with its alluring profits in the early days, was largely responsible for fastening slavery, with all its train of evils, more firmly upon this section.

The creation of the cotton growing industry during the first sixty years of the last century is probably the greatest business achievement made by any section of any country during that time. It represented a much larger investment of capital than the entire manufacturing business of New England. It had reached a point in international affairs where it largely dominated the commerce, the finance and to a considerable extent the politics of this country and of Great Britain. The people of the South had learned to think cotton and measure all of their business activities by the cotton boll and bale.

New England's manufacturing interests in those days were based almost wholly upon domestic trade; the South's cotton business was international in its importance and scope, and it brought the business men of the South in intimate touch with all the financial and manufacturing interests of Europe.

Cotton Enchains Entire Southland.

As cotton chained slavery to the South, so cotton has chained the South to the slavery of thinking and acting in terms of cotton.

In the early forties, when overproduction brought about a rapid decline in the price of cotton, the average New York middling price for 1844-45 being 5.63c., there was a very quick turn of the South back to industrial activities. Stimulated by the new spirit created by the development of railroads, and turning from cotton by reason of low prices, the South, handicapped as it was by slavery, promptly turned its thought to industrial pursuits. In the decade 1850 to 1860 the South made remarkable progress in the revival of its manufacturing interests, but, of course, during the fifty years in which the South had concentrated its thought upon cotton New England had concentrated its activities upon manufactures. It had in this way created such extensive manufacturing interests that the South was far in the rear in industrial pursuits. The South did, however, during the decade of 1850 to 1860 throw tremendous energy into the discussion of industrial work and into the actual development of manufacturing and railroad interests. But the war came, and when in 1865 the long, gray line, which was then only a shell, faded away the South was utterly and apparently hopelessly bankrupt. Its labor system had been completely changed and those who as slaves had been directed by master minds in their farm work now suddenly found themselves left to their own initiative. They had never learned to think for themselves. They had always depended upon their owners to think for them. They had been directed what to do and how to do it. They knew that when they left the field they had nothing else to think about, for a home, food and clothes were provided for them.

Industrial Chaos After War.

If to-day a great machine shop employing a thousand men working under the control of a few foremen and superintendents were suddenly broken up and every man was told to go out and start a little machine shop for himself the local confusion would not be as great relatively as that which confronted the agriculture of the whole South by reason of the change from slave to free labor and the conditions under which the changes were made. The negro had neither the experience nor the ability to operate for himself which would be found at least among some of the thousand mechanics suddenly turned loose and told to start a thousand small machine shops. Nevertheless, there was an abundance of land available, and cotton factors and money lenders were ready to aid the negroes as well as others for a profit, and a very big one at that, in renting a few acres on which to raise cotton, "grubstaking" them until the cotton was picked. The land owners of the South also were compelled, by reason of their poverty following the war, likewise to put themselves in the hands of the money lenders, who helped them to make a crop by advancing money and taking a mortgage on the crop in advance of the ploughing of the land in which it was to be planted.

Prior to the war the Central South had been very largely self-sustaining in the production of foodstuffs. The plantation was a well rounded institution. It raised its corn and hogs and to a considerable extent made its cotton a surplus crop. Some of the slaves were taught carpentering, some blacksmithing and some were given other trades, so that most of the work needed on a plantation could be done without calling on outside help.

Indeed the well-rounded plantation of earlier days was the forerunner of the big industrial enterprise of to-day which seeks to control all of its raw materials; such, for instance, as in iron and steel, where the large concerns own their iron ore, their limestone, their coking coal and, in some cases, the railroads which assemble these raw materials out of which to turn the finished product.

The complete breaking up of the whole industrial system of the day, the abandonment of every big shop, the immediate forcing back of every workman into mining his own ore, making his own bit of pig iron or establishing his own machine shop would scarcely be a greater revolution than that which faced the agricultural South in 1865.

Cotton Money Advanced Plentifully.

Under the conditions then prevailing money lenders advanced against cotton only. They would not advance a dollar against grain or livestock. There were two reasons for this. Cotton was always salable anywhere, and the money lender had in cotton a gilt edge security which he could cash in with less trouble than anything else produced on the farm. He was not in a position generally to handle the sale of foodstuffs, but the world was hungry for all the cotton he could tempt the cotton grower to produce by his advances upon it. Moreover, a very large percentage of the money lenders were cotton factors or commission merchants, who had a double reason for following this policy. If they could keep the planter, large or small, from growing his own foodstuffs, they would have the profit of selling to him all that he required for the maintenance of his family and the feeding of his live stock. They thus "grub staked" the planter by selling to him at an exorbitant figure all foodstuffs for man and beast, his agricultural implements and the mules with which he worked the land. They had a mortgage on the cotton before it was planted, and, holding this over the grower, he was compelled to buy from them at their prices and on their terms.

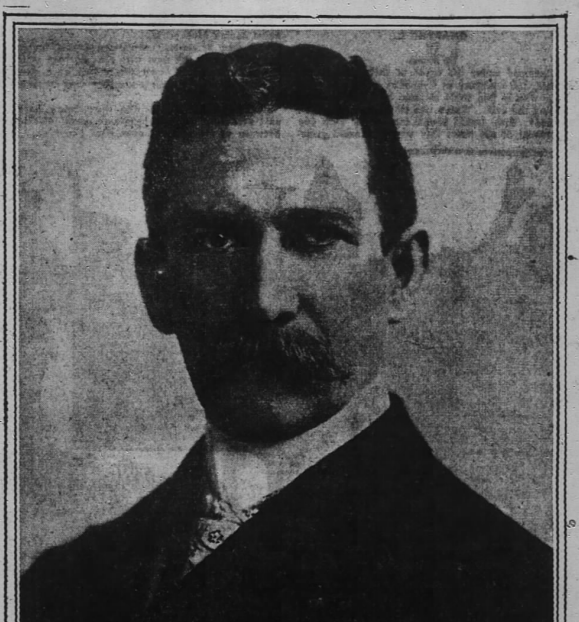
It was estimated that for many years after the war the average cost to the small cotton grower who had to buy on credit in this way was more than seventy-five per cent higher than he could have obtained the same things for if he had been able to buy for cash. And even now the difference is great enough to keep the indifferent farmer forever poor.

That the South ever survived such a system and finally pulled itself together and worked out of it is an amazing tribute to the inherent agricultural potentialities of this section.

It is true that the small tenant farmers, of whom there are about one million, are still handicapped by such conditions. Their crops are very largely made on advances from the land owner, the local banker or the local merchant. For more than fifty years they have followed this system, until it has seemed almost impossible to break the tenant farmers away from the system of raising all cotton and buying all of their foodstuffs.

Small Farmer Still Handicapped.

The traveller through the South away from the railway lines can see thousands of small tenant houses, some occupied by whites and some by blacks, without a vestige of garden; not a vegetable in sight, not a chicken or a pig on the place. The cotton crop as raised by these people requires less thought, less brain work and less bodily work than any other important crop produced. And so this element of the South, which has been the heaviest burden that it has had to carry—except the demagogic politician, of which there is a perennial crop—keeps on raising cotton and buying its food supplies. The more intelligent planters, as diff-rentiated from this system of the poorer tenants, who to a large extent are of the more illiterate element, are among the best farmers in the land. They raise to a very considerable extent, as the old South did, their food supplies, and they are increasing their production of live stock as well as of grains and grasses. They know the farming business as well as the most intelligent Western farmer.



Richard H. Edmonds, Editor Manufacturers' Record, Baltimore, Md.

The more intelligent planters are the ones who are redeeming the agricultural interests of the South from the curse of "all cotton." They are the ones who are diversifying its agricultural interests, who are giving increased attention to grains and grasses and cattle raising and food growing. They are the ones who are building better homes, who are leaders in many activities looking to material and educational betterment of their country.

Example Set by Intelligent Planters.

Sooner or later their example will be followed by many of the poorer tenant farmers. The change is already in evidence, though it has necessarily been slow. When, however, we consider the awful wreck and ruin following four years of war, the utter destruction of all the wealth of the South, the revolution in its labor system and the necessity of resuming farming burdened with these conditions and with the exorbitant rates for money and for goods purchased or raised, the world ought not to be surprised at what to some seems slow progress in the diversification of agriculture.

If Germany should maintain the present war for four years, and if the Allies should overrun that country from end to end, as the Union armies did the South, and if the British navy should completely blockade all Germany from the outside world, as the South was shut off by the blockade of its whole coast, the condition of Germany at the end would not be nearly so disastrously bad as was that of the South.

We should also remember that by reason of the demoralization after the war about 5,000,000 whites emigrated between 1865 and 1900 from the Central South to the North, the West, the Pacific coast and Texas, thus draining that section of hundreds of thousands of its most intelligent and progressive young men from the farms and the villages.

When these facts are taken into account the South is entitled to boundless praise for what it has wrought.

Had the South never raised a bale of cotton it would, I am satisfied, be vastly richer and more populous than it is.

Without cotton the South would not have had the same inducement to extend slavery, and slavery enchained the white man's potentialities far more than it enchained the slave.

Without cotton and the extension of slavery developed by cotton the South would have concentrated its energies upon industrial activities, and this section would long ago have become one of the foremost regions of the world in manufacturing development.

Well Rounded Agricultural Growth.

Without cotton the South would have carried out a well rounded agricultural growth which would have made it a great grain and livestock region, in this respect rivalling, if not surpassing, the West. That the South is admirably adapted for livestock raising, that hogs and cattle can be produced in this section at a lower cost and to greater profit than in the West, is now almost universally admitted, and the national government is looking forward to the time when the South will become the great beef producing section of the country.

Without cotton all of these things would have been achieved long before the war.

And had this been done, to an agricultural prosperity equal to that of the West, made possible by grains and grasses and cattle, the South would have made this the manufacturing empire of the world.

It is, I believe, universally accepted that there is no other region on earth known to man possessing the remarkable combination of advantages to be found in the South for the widest variety of manufactures.

In the South there are 88,000 square miles of coal, or twice as much coal area as all Europe possesses, and more than four times as much as all of Europe outside of Russia. Three-fourths of the coking coal area of the United States, upon which depends the metallurgical development of the entire country, is in the South.

Possibilities of the Great South.

This region, so richly endowed with coal, has likewise the advantage of having vast stores of iron ore in close proximity to its coal.

It is the chief source of supply of lumber for the United States.

It has water power of almost limitless potentialities.

It produces about three-fourths of the sulphur of the world.

It has more than one-half of the entire coast line of the United States.

It has a variety of soil that, according to its kind, will produce almost any variety of crops, from the semi-tropical of Florida and the Gulf coast to those that require the cold climate of the high mountain regions.

And yet a country so marvellously endowed with advantages for diversified agriculture and for diversified and extensive manufacturing in every line of human activity has made cotton its fetish, and in the worship of cotton has failed to gain that almost limitless prosperity which nature seems to have foreordained for it when it dowered it more richly with natural resources than any other country on earth.

Possibilities of Cotton All but Boundless.

Notwithstanding this view of the situation, however, cotton is a wonderful crop, whose potentialities when wisely controlled are almost boundless. The South produces about two-thirds of the world's cotton. In this practical monopoly it has an advantage over all other countries in furnishing the raw material for the second greatest manufacturing interest, surpassed in output by steel and iron alone. This very monopoly, however, has been a hindrance to the South. Had this section had to fight harder to maintain its cotton industry in competition with other countries, greater care in cultivation and in the handling of cotton would have been required. The very lavishness of the advantages given by nature for cotton growing has resulted in developing improvidence in the growing and the handling of the crop.

It is but natural that as the business and political life of much of the South has for a century centred around cotton this section should be extremely sensitive to anything that relates to its great staple. Cotton has, therefore, been the shibboleth of the politicians of the South. Whenever they have desired to stimulate interest in their own waning fortunes or to catch the applause of the crowd they have appealed to the fetish worship of cotton by the South. As the politicians for half a century before the war used slavery, and for half a century after the war the bugaboo of the free negro, to solidify the political thought of the South, so they have for generations used cotton as something that immediately catches the ear of the South and appeals to its enthusiasm when cotton is boosted and to its prejudices when cotton is in their judgment mistreated or its value minimized.

Cotton Sometimes a Curse.

As wonderful as cotton is, far reaching in all the ramifications of the world's trade and when rightly used one of the best material blessings Heaven ever gave to any country, it often proves a curse by absorbing so much of the thought of this section. Even liberality to religious or educational work largely depends upon the price of cotton, and yet even the most valuable cotton crop ever produced by the South, which yielded, including the seed, more than $1,100,000,000, was considerably less than one-third of the total value of the South's agricultural products for the year.

If half of the energy given by press and by politicians to the discussion of the wrongs alleged to cotton were expended in stimulating the South to the diversification of its agriculture, instead of stirring the South to the worship of cotton, infinitely greater good would be accomplished.

The South could turn from cotton growing to diversified agriculture with far less loss to itself than the loss to the business interests of the world outside of the South. The South is not one-tenth so dependent for its prosperity upon cotton as the great textile manufacturing centres of the world are dependent upon the South for their existence.

It has been demonstrated in every section of the South, from Virginia to far away Texas, that there is scarcely any portion of this region which could not turn to diversified agriculture to greater profit than raising cotton, even if cotton continued to sell at a high price. No greater mistake can be made by the South or about the South than to imagine that the soil of this section is better adapted for cotton than for other profitable crops.

Moreover, diversified farming would bring increasing fertility to Southern soil. Grains and grasses would mean hogs and cattle, and these would mean enriched soil and diversity of thought as well as diversity of farming.

Broader Civilization Possible.

A broader and higher civilization would be the result of a campaign persistently fought out for inducing the landowners of the South, the bankers and the merchants and the manufacturers to use their utmost energy to lessening the interest in cotton growing and to increasing the interest of the tenant farmer as well as of the larger farmer in diversity in agriculture.

The highest ultimate prosperity to the South will come not from high prices of cotton, though high prices always bring temporary prosperity, but from the gradual lessening of the South's dependence on cotton and an increase of the South's attention to the raising of larger diversified crops and of livestock, for which this section is so splendidly equipped by nature.

Virginia.

There was a time when the farmers of Southwest Virginia, "the fairest land on earth," dug up blue grass, and even burned the roots, because of the dread of grass. In that same section, on that once despised blue grass, they now fatten the finest cattle that go to the markets of this or any other country.

Florida.

There was a time when it was thought that Florida could raise only oranges and grapefruit and vegetables, but I have visited a farm of five thousand acres in the centre of Florida where Western men are growing grain and raising cattle to a larger profit than they were ever able to make in the best grain and cattle regions of the West.

May the day be hastened when cotton shall be dethroned as king in thought as in trade and in commerce, and when it shall be made a servant, blessing the South as a servant where it cursed it as king. Then this section will look back and rejoice that through much tribulation it has reached the Promised Land of diversified agriculture, for with diversified agriculture in its broadest sense will come the widest diversity of economic thought and educational advancement and abounding wealth.

SUPPER THE WAGER IN RACE FOR MEMBERS

Two Teams of Fulton Council, U. C. T., Making Strong Bid for the Eats.

The last meeting night in October for Fulton council, 505, U. C. T., is going to prove a "big night" for someone(s). For that's the night on which is to be decided who has won the suppers for the crowd, said eats to be given at the Winecoff, or some other elegant place. And it all depends upon how many members the other fellow has gotten into the fold lately.

Some time ago George Byrd and C. E. Byrd—two brothers, and both of them are "birds," for were elected to head a band of workers whose duty it was to corral all the new members possible. So far the two teams are tied, each with a good list of members to their credit. But now comes the rub. There is yet a few weeks left, and it's going to be up to somebody to outdo the other fellow. The winning team is to be the guest of the losing side, and the wager is an elegant supper at one of the leading hotels. The editor has been invited to take part in the supper—and he really wouldn't care if the decision was only a few minutes off.

WEAR A BUTTON—AND GET A PAIR OVERALLS

Unique Plan of Bell Overall Co. to Boost Game at the Winder Fair.

Button, button, who's got the button? That will be the cry of five thousand visitors to the Woodruff Georgia fair, which will be held in Winder, Ga., from October 5th to 8th.

For that is the number of buttons W. C. Horton, resident of the Bell Overall company, is going to give out during the first day or so of the fair, and if you are there, and are lucky, you may secure free one of the good pair of overalls made by this company—and what's more, you may also pick up a five-dollar gold piece.

Here's the unique way in which Mr. Horton is going to make thousands of visitors to the fair boosters for his product: He has had made 5,000 really ornamental buttons about the size of silver dollars—as we remember one, not having a very intimate acquaintance with such tidings—and on this button appears a number in good sized letters. Also printed on the button is the following instructions: "Find the person with the number same as yours and each get a pair of Bellgrade overalls." The numbers on these 5,000 of these buttons are duplicated, so that by pinning the button on the lapel of your coat or on your shirtwaist—for the ladies are going to wear them, too, even if they don't want to wear fine overalls—you can find the other fellow with the same number as yourself. Then each will march down to the overall office and receive the gift. In addition there is to be two special numbers, which will not be announced until the end of the fair, to correspond with some two numbers on the buttons given away, which will be awarded a five-dollar gold piece each. Every wearer of a button must first apply to the office of the company on the fair ground and register. His name and number are filed away for future reference.

This is certainly a unique plan, conceived by the president of the overall company, and will attract a great deal of publicity to the well-known product of his company.

In addition to the buttons and the giving away of the money and the fifty pairs of overalls, the Bell company will install a complete overall plant at the fair and have it running in full operation, employing fifteen or twenty operators, which in itself will be one of the interesting features of the big fair.

R. H. M'DOUGALL NOW WITH MADDOX COFFEE CO.

Well-Known Southern Coffee and Tea Man Makes New Connection.

R. H. McDougall, one of the oldest coffee men in the south, and a man well known in the business world in this section, is now connected with the Maddox Coffee company, where he is better prepared than ever to serve the trade which he has been waiting on for many years.

The Maddox Coffee company recently purchased the Southern Coffee and Spice mills, of this city, of which Mr. McDougall was the head. The Maddox company has taken over the entire plant, stock and fixtures of the coffee mills, and the former patrons of Mr. McDougall will be glad to know that he has himself become connected with the Maddox company. All of the equipment and stock have been removed to the Whitehall street plant of the Maddox company, and it will continue to serve its patrons with the several well-established brands of coffee which Mr. McDougall has made so popular in this southern section. These brands are the McDougall's "Santos Blend" and the "Royal Blend," and the "Old Plantation." It will be pleasing to the former customers of the Southern Coffee and Spice mills, both that Mr. McDougall, who has numbers his friends by the limit of his acquaintance, is attached to the Maddox company, and that he will still be able to furnish them with the brands which they have been purchasing in the past. Added to these brands is also the well-known brands of the Maddox company, which are exceedingly popular with the southern trade. These brands are "Blue Ribbon," the "Eagle," "Hunting Club" and "Victory." With all of these seven leading brands to draw from, and with an increased equipment by reason of its purchase, the Maddox company is serving a very handsome list of the best retail merchants throughout the southern states, which list is increasing from day to day.

A. G. Vining, with the Ware & White Co., was working the trade in Augusta the past week.

Crew Visits McCord-Stewart.

C. P. Crew, a leading farmer-merchant, who lives near Madison, Ga., was a visitor at the McCord-Stewart company one day last week. Mr. Crew is one of the largest and best farmers in his section, and reports that everybody is happy over the good price of cotton. "I am afraid," he said, "that by reason of the price we are now getting and the fact that in some sections at least our grain crops were not as good as they should have been on account of the season, that some of our farmers will have a tendency to get back to cotton just as they use to. It would be a big mistake. They are now just beginning the practice of diversifying their crops, but with some discouragement on the grain by reason of the season, and the good boost of cotton, I'm afraid, will make some of them change their mind—but I hope not."

Mr. Crew is also turning his attention to cattle and stock raising, and believes there is a great future in Georgia in this industry.

Dave L. Lassetter, one of the best-known dry goods salesmen in this section, who has been for several years with one of the large houses of the city, has joined forces with Dougherty-Little-Redwine company. He was out on his old territory—the West Point road—last week, and rounded up a fine lot of business for his new connection.

Dougherty - Little - Redwine company line, was all put out Saturday. He had lost "his eyes," and couldn't see how to make out the large number of good orders he had brought in with him. Until he finds his glasses his friend, Sid Wilkins, has volunteered to copy off his orders for him.

MERCHANDISE SCARE NOW IN NEW YORK

Most Seasonable Goods Are Increasing in Price, Says J. D. Robinson.

J. D. Robinson, of the firm of A. M. Robinson company, returned to the city Friday night from a trip of several weeks to New York and other eastern points. J. P. Morgan, superintendent of the Robinson overall factory, who had also spent some time in New York, returned a few days ahead of Mr. Robinson.

C. J. Williamson, who recently went with the company, and who will have charge of the dry goods line, is still in New York making his selection for goods for the Robinson company.

Mr. Robinson stated Saturday that business conditions seemed much improved in the east. "I was really fortunate," he said, "for having gone on to New York about thirty days ago. I was able to place orders for goods in our new line before they grew so scarce. Really there is just now a scarcity of staple goods up there. Prices are advancing quite rapidly. I was able to save some money—for myself and customers—by getting up there about a month ago. We will not have our big dry goods line going good until some time in November, perhaps, but we are going to have a most complete line when we do get started."

COLUMBUS U. C. T. BOYS TO HAVE BIG TIME

Officers and members of Georgia Council No. 287, U. C. T., of Columbus, have gone out to kill a big one, Friday evening, October 1, at the Racine hotel, Columbus. They are preparing for an evening of delightful entertainment. A banquet is being advertised for this occasion. Plates for 200 guests have been planned. During the serving of courses a most attractive musical program will be rendered, the banquet to be followed by a dance. A number of boys from Atlanta will attend the occasion and remain over for the U. C. T. meeting the following night. As the members of Georgia council have quite an array of candidates for the occasion, the evening will be a drawing card for all members in that territory.

Skelly Still Worrying.

J. P. Skelly, that clever American Cigar Co. salesman who had the misfortune a week or so ago to lose his grip, is still bemoaning the loss of several fine boxes of Parex cigars which were in the grip. "Of course," he said, "I know we have made a good customer of that thief, if he ever spends any money for cigars, for after smoking all that elegant batch he will never want any other kind. But still I would like to know who my customers are."

Getting Repeat Orders.

Robert H. Patterson, United States representative of Themelis Egyptian cigarettes, as well as the C. H. S. cigars, is well pleased with the way the Themelis cigarettes are going in Atlanta. Among the optimistic travelers who blew in for the week-end was E. C. (Sunshine) Harrison, of the S. P. Richards Co. He was found busy Saturday morning filling out several packs of orders, and really said he had no time to say anything except "Business is coming fine and coming easy. We have had the best business for the past thirty days we have had in years, and it looks now like things are going to hum this fall."

ROCK ISLAND RAILWAY CO. FACES RECEIVERSHIP

Amster, With Aid of Scattered Shareholders, Seeks to Oust Reid-Moore Crowd.

New York, September 25.—Unless all signs fail the old Reid-Moore crowd is striding for a fall in Rock Island, despite its powerful connections which secure or more of well-known banks, trust companies, railroads and industrial corporations. On October 14 next, when the annual meeting of Rock Island shareholders is held, several of the thirteen directors are to be elected. Today the Reid-Moore party has less than 39 per cent of the $74,577,000 outstanding Rock Island stock, 40 per cent of this latter being held by about 6,500 widely scattered shareholders.

S. A. Amster, of Boston, the insurgent director who is the acknowledged leader of the small scattered shareholders, admitted this week in discussing the situation, that he was going to conduct a campaign for proxies to be used on October 14. Amster individually is responsible for this week's payment of interest on the $20,000,000 outstanding debenture bonds. If that payment, which was bitterly opposed by the Reid-Moore crowd, had not been made, the Rock Island shareholders would have had a reorganization with a heart-breaking assessment.

In the forthcoming struggle for proxies it is easy to see which side will start out under the most favorable conditions. Amster said the following to the Reid-Moore party. During the past eighteen months a majority of the Reid-Moore crowd in Rock Island have not only been talking disparagingly from the housetops of every thirty days occasions, but they actually plotted secretly to have the road thrown into the hands of receivers. That incident was thus described by the interstate commerce commission after its investigation into Rock Island.

"The syndicate decided to put the railway into a receivership. The general counsel of the railway company at the beginning of the plan, and a member of the syndicate, drew the bill asking the appointment of a receiver, an attorney ostensibly to represent the other side. The bill was placed in the hands of this attorney with the request of the complainant omitted, and he was instructed by the syndicate managers to locate some creditor of the railway company willing to act as complainant. The board of directors of the railway company was not informed of that intention to file a bill for a receivership, and at no meeting of the board was any authority ever given for such action. Members of the syndicate were also not in the confidence of the syndicate were kept in ignorance of the fact that such a bill had been prepared. The stockholders had no information of the purpose to put the road into receivership, although a stockholders' meeting was held on that date upon which the receivership bill was completed by the general counsel and this general counsel was present at the meeting. The suit was not a bona-fide proceeding to collect a debt, but was instituted to carry out the purpose and schemes of the syndicate controlling the railway."

It was on advance information regarding the receivership that insiders sold their stock, which caused the price naturally declined to 10 1-2. Rock Island sold under $200 a share in 1901, before the Reid-Moore crowd acquired control.

That is the record on which the representatives of the Reid-Moore crowd will stand in the coming campaign as used at the annual session of directors. Amster, on the other hand, has been working day and night for the past eighteen months to convince the Rock Island shareholders that the situation was being misrepresented. In his campaign for proxies he will point out first that this week's payment of interest on the $20,000,000 debentures not only prevented needless default and its serious consequences, but gave the shareholders another six months to devise a plan for taking care of the $20,000,000 debt.

Floating Debt $11,000,000.

That floating debt, Amster will tell the Rock Island shareholders, has grown now and October 14, amounts to only $11,000,000. It is mostly in the form of short-term notes, which can be secured by deposit of first and refunding bonds and other available collateral. In addition to the $11,000,000 floating debt, there are now outstanding $4,000,000 of receivers' certificates, and $15,000,000 the amount of new cash needed. That money, Amster claims, can be raised easily without assessing the shareholders. In talking with your correspondent this week he outlined the plans for the proxy campaign, Amster said:

"Including the first and refunding bonds now deposited as collateral for the outstanding $20,000,000 debentures Rock Island and Pacific railway has $20,000,000 worth of unpledged bonds which can be used to secure a $20,000,000 fifteen to twenty-year 6 per cent collateral trust bond issue. The proceeds of issue, which should be convertible into stock, can be offered to the present shareholders, thus raising all of the money that will be needed.

"Outside of the schemes of the inside syndicate which planned the receivership there has never been the necessity for an assessment. During the past two months Rock Island's earnings have suffered from the record crop of the two years. That water, however, has now run under the bridges and the next few months earnings will be the largest on record.

"In addition to the outlook for earnings and the $30,000,000 available collateral which can be used as the basis for a $20,000,000 loan to take up the floating debt, it should be understood that the old Chicago, Rock Island and Pacific railway is now saving the $2,742,000 which was paid out in dividends each year to enable the Iowa holding company to pay interest on its collateral trust bonds which are secured by deposit of the old railway bonds. That stock is now back in the hands of the public.

Ex-President Taft Retained.

"Besides the favorable factors already mentioned, other $500,000 will be saved by Rock Island annually through the breaking of the Trinity and Brazos Valley lease. This lease has already been broken, and in addition a suit is going to be started against the Rock Island directors to recover $3,000,000 for having greatly exceeded their powers in the Trinity and Brazos transaction. Another $6,000,000 may be added to the suit to be filed against the directors because of the Frisco deal. William Howard Taft, acting as special counsel for the receiver, ordered the bringing of that suit, and his ability as a lawyer, and judge, is well known."

Amster has shown he was a fearless fighter. Certainly he has the best end of the forthcoming contest as far as the confidence of the outside shareholders is concerned. It is admitted that the outside shareholders now own some 60 per cent of the voting Rock Island stock and thus control the situation. On the other hand, Amsterdam and his following must realize that the Reid-Moore party besides having a very long purse is already on record as being ready and willing to go the limit and then some in maintaining their control of Rock Island.

PROFESSIONAL VIEWS ON COTTON SITUATION

New York, N. Y., September 25.—(Special.)—Liverpool advices received here when it was expected to be lower on profit-taking at the end of the week. Our cables said there was an outside demand for cotton which surprised the trade.

Here the market opened firm, absorbed all the profit-taking around 12.90 cents early in January, and in the last hour became firm under rumors of big buying. Some people would surprise even those who believed the crop had deteriorated during the past month to learn that it has been harvested out to such an extent under outside buying that many conservative people advised taking of profits on this level, believing that we would be forced to this by the planter with a portion at least of his crop now ginned.

At the same time, they thought that the demand for cotton goods might force the spinner into the market as a buyer, even at this level, which looks to them high.

HUBBARD BROS & CO.

New York, September 25.—(Special.)—In citing a reason for the strength and activity in the cotton market it has only be said that crop reports from practically all sections of the belt state that the crop has done its best, and that very little top growth will be made.

In addition, spot cotton is said to be meeting a ready demand in southern markets, which indicates correspondence that of a moderate yield, and a consumption that will show a good deal of last season's surplus. In other words, the south, and large speculative operators throughout this country, believe that a realization in the supply of raw cotton will become manifest before the season is over, and that prices will reach higher levels. However, it must be borne in mind that the size of the growing crop has not yet been determined, and that prices have advanced over 2 cents a pound in the last six weeks.

The size of the crop has been brought about by continuous buying, a large part of which is for speculative account. With the case so early in the season, before the full weight of the crop has reached the market, it would seem only conservative to pause and await new developments before making further purchases.

The immediate requirements of the spinner have undoubtedly been well covered during the course of the advance, and with an extended long interest in cotton as well as futures, a selling movement might set in at any time.

JAY, BONDY & CO.

New York, September 25.—(Special.)—Liverpool made a fair response this morning, but our market sought higher levels in advance of rather heavy rains reported from eleven stations in Texas. Yesterday's bulge was on commercial interest to take profits at the 13-cent level for January, and the fact that part of the market today makes 13 cents a buying point for shorts, and 13.10 for longs, is significant.

Spots in the south are tenaciously held, and offers are willingly withdrawn at much more pronounced bullish crop news than we have had. The general opinion in that section particularly the date of frost will be most significant and the first suggestion of such a thing in the northern zone will be a signal for higher prices.

Reports of the reduction of private mid purchases, which characterise such a movement, are entirely misleading.

The public, who are bullish, are more than cautious and are willing to profit-take on every hard spot.

Spinners are extremely nervous and should the bad weather in Texas continue over Sunday, we would expect the spinning interest are ever to operate on a large scale. On Monday we still feel that higher prices will follow.

HUBBARD BROS & CO.

New York, September 25.—(Special.)—The cotton market today again gave evidence of absorption, prices working to new high levels. It looked reactionary in the morning around 12.87, then rallied and recently converted bears were steady buyers, rallying prices quickly to 12.97.

Spots and fixed were in demand after the official close at 12.19c and 12.46c, respectively, with about 1,000 bales reported sold. India and Egypt assured, with the Balkan war market, the world's needs of 18,000,000 needs of 18,000,000 or more troops to be abandoned for winter's campaign, we forecast an era of further expansion in American cotton values, and foodstuffs, must be one of the greatest factors.

The south is indifferent about selling, and a continuation of this attitude, justified by conditions, would result in working off ultimately bring much higher prices for both spots and futures. Prompt buying.

TARIFF COMMISSION DISCUSSED BY WILSON

Believes Commission Powers Are Already Lodged in Existing Government Organs.

Washington, September 25.—President Wilson believes the full powers of a tariff commission already are lodged in existing organs of the government but if anything is lacking to give such powers efficiency he is in favor of doing it. The president made this statement in a letter to Governor Cox, of Ohio, made public today at the white house, in reply to a letter in which the former governor advocated establishing a tariff commission.

In another letter made public today the president pointed out that until the European war is over and normal conditions prevail, it will not be possible to determine how completely the business of the country has adjusted itself to new conditions. The second letter was written last October in response to an invitation attending the last senatorial contest in Pennsylvania.

The letter today, on the tariff commission, the president outlined his position:

"The full powers of a tariff commission are already lodged in existing organs of the government; moreover, most of them, and really more than the former commission lacked, in the bureaus of foreign and domestic commerce of the department of commerce, and others specially organized for the purpose in the hands of the new federal trade commission.

"I think it would be better if these various powers were assembled in the hands of a single board, with authority but aside from that I think the machinery exists for a thoroughly scientific and prompt study of tariff questions if anything is lacking to give these powers efficiency, I am, of course heartily in favor of doing it."

The president's letter to Mr. Evans said:

"The reconstructive legislation which for the last two decades the opinion of the country has demanded and which political parties have vied with one another in promising in one way or another, has now been enacted. That program is practically completed, and the business of the country disturbed itself to the new conditions. When that has been accomplished it will be ready and in operation which will show just where the tariff needs revision. Until then we shall be without the means of ascertaining the facts and where they are not.

"Meantime it is well for us to come, to consider, to ascertain

CONFESSIONS OF A CROOK

THE PSYCHOLOGY OF CRIME AND REFORM:

The Daring Daylight Holdup of Mr. Poppa of Poppa & Gray, New York, a Success for the Moment and a Cog in the Wheel That Led to the Ultimate Failure of the Writer—Joe Taylor, a Bandit With a Brain, Has a Mission — Disillusionment for Those Who Think They Can Transgress the Laws of Man and Society—And He Has a Word for the Reformers

LAST week Taylor, styled by the New York judiciary as one of the most daring criminals ever brought to justice, told how in conjunction with other denizens of the underworld he planned a daylight robbery of the manager of Poppa & Gray while the senior member of that firm was en route to the bank with a week's factory receipts. We left Taylor on a crowded city thoroughfare advancing toward his victim with a hand on his "cannon" and his confederates awaiting the signal for an auto dash and the getaway. The object of this writer is not to exploit his daring but his downfall. He was the acme of fearlessness and he has a brain meant for better things. He is using that brain now as it was meant he should use it. Whether you are an upstanding citizen with a respect for the law or a callow youth with a supercilious disrespect of it you will do well to read the story of "Joe" Taylor. There is a lesson in it for both.

By JOSEPH TAYLOR.

AS MR. POPPA—the manufacturer on his way to the bank, carrying a week's factory receipts in a small valise—passed the blacksmith-shop two doors from his own office, William Egan, the proprietor, his friend and neighbor, called out to him jokingly: "You'd better leave that bag with me."

Poppa's friendly, answering smile still lingered on his face as I stepped in front of him and put my gun to his head. "Give me that bag," I said quietly.

With a panic-stricken yell he raised both hands and threw the bag to the sidewalk at my feet as though it burned his fingers, and with lightning swiftness turned and fled whence he had come.

So quickly did he wheel about that Tom—a few feet directly behind—could not get out of the way to avoid a collision that added to Poppa's confusion.

As I stooped to pick up the satchel I saw him (Poppa) throw both arms around the bewildered "harness bull" in a frenzy of fear. This cop, Thomas J. M——, told me not long ago that he did not know Poppa that morning. Nor did he at the moment realize just what was happening. In telling me of his part in the holdup he said: "The first thing I did was to clip him over the head with my club because I thought I was being attacked."

I myself did not see the blow struck because Tom and I were running to the corner—guns in hand, and I with the bag—to meet our automobile. But when we reached the corner we were amazed to find it had not moved from the spot a block away where I had last seen it.

A Desperate Situation.

A——'s cousin was still sitting in front at the wheel, but A—— himself was nowhere to be seen.

Poppa's loud cries had drawn attention to us by this time, and as if by magic the street became alive with people—from shops, tenement doorways and several saloons. As we stood nonplused for the moment I saw the cop, firemen, Poppa, now hatless, and a mixed crowd starting in our direction—not with an enthusiastic rush but warily.

In order to avoid the pedestrians Tom and I ran off the sidewalk up the Ninth avenue pavement toward the stationary machine. One young lad ran out into my path and fearlessly tried to intercept me, but I pushed him aside without difficulty.

Reaching the auto I threw the bag on the back seat and vaulted over the side into the tonneau, while Tom jumped in the front beside the "wop" who was sitting horror-stricken at the sight of the mob coming our way along the sidewalk, headed by the uniformed cop and firemen. "Go on!" yelled Tom and I together. "Start her up or we will blow your head off!" "It's no use. Look at the cops," was the Italian's faltering reply.

His hesitation between fear of us and fear of the law was suddenly terminated by Tom firing a shot within an inch of his shaking head, and he started the machine slowly down the avenue along the curb of the sidewalk that held the advancing crowd. "Faster," I cried, as I stood up in back of him, leaning out over the side of the car with gun extended ready to meet the expected volley of shots from the cop.

The crowd had come to a halt awaiting us and as we passed the cop he was but a scant five feet from me. I fired a shot over his head. The policeman was at the curb, the crowd pressing close behind him. He stood as though transfixed. In his hands, in its black leather holster, I saw his revolver, his right hand over the end of the holster, his left grasping the handle of the gun. I smiled at his confusion as I pulled the trigger. Seemingly bereft of the power to act he did not duck his head nor blink his eyes when I fired.

The shot passed over his head, crashed through the window of a candy store and struck an upright display stand of colored postal cards there.

Desert the Car.

Fifty feet north of this window a white-coated barber, Henry Becker by name, dropped to the sidewalk—Becker thought he had been struck in a vital spot by the bullet and he lay there unharmed, although apparently lifeless. Here Tom fired a third shot in the air with his gun, and as he did so the machine gathered speed and drew away from the crowd rapidly. Passing Seventeenth street corner we were forced to slow up almost to a dead stop to allow the passage east of an empty horse-drawn truck, but the delay was only momentary, and continuing downtown we soon turned east, out of the sight of our pursuers, to Eighth avenue, then south to Twelfth street, where I told the driver to go east again.

In front of St. Vincent's Hospital our much-tried chauffeur's nerve went to pieces and he lost control of his car so that the car made a complete circle and nearly overturned.

"Stop the car," said I, and as with some little difficulty he obeyed Tom and I jumped out.

"So long," we offered as we walked away rapidly without further ceremony. There is reason to believe that the driver was as glad to be rid of his so troublesome fares as were we to be gone from him.

During the ride over I had opened the bag and transferred its contents to my pockets and left the empty valise and Poppa's bank book on the floor of the tonneau.

That morning before starting we—Joe R——, Frank A——, Tom C—— and I—had agreed to meet after the job in a certain saloon for the division of the money. But Frank had deserted the mob at a critical moment and Joe had remained on his corner throughout the hold-up, instead of doing as he should in the matter of entering and staying inside the saloon after signaling his identification of Poppa (Joe was a crook well known in that neighborhood, and it later developed that his presence there that morning was duly reported to the police by a stool pigeon, although this report confused his identity with that of his brother Philip, an ex-convict).

Because of these breaches of compact I refused to carry out the original agreement by which Joe R—— was to get 20 per cent gross and split the balance equally three ways. The bag had contained an $8,000 bank deposit, but only $850 was in actual cash, the remainder in checks.

Tom and I counted the money, took $388 apiece, and I reserved the other $80 for Joe's share. We then proceeded to the meet and were dumfounded to see on approaching the rendezvous our disappearing friend Frank A—— standing with Joe outside the saloon.

"What happened to you?" I demanded of Frank. "Didn't you see me drop the guy in the white coat?" was the gulle that met my question.

"No Nor I didn't hear any shot." As I thus replied I reflected that it was possible two shots had sounded as one—his and mine—but his lying story to account for his failure to enter the auto, although Joe contributed a lame assent to some of its details, was a palpable lie.

He said he had fired from behind an iron pillar of the elevated railway structure and struck the barber. Becker, and had then "slung" the gun (a pearl-handled six-shooter Tom had loaned him that morning) away in the street and hopped on a "rattler" (street car).

"You saw me sling the rod (gun) away, didn't you?" He appealed to Joe, and when Joe said "yes" he lied. After some hesitation I decided to be rid of Frank peaceably, so I gave Tom $30 and told him to put a like amount to it and give it to Frank as I said, "Look at this bundle of checks (fifty-six in number) there was only $220 cash in the bag." Thus I added my lie to the others.

Bidding Tom and Frank good-by, I walked away with Joe, and after handing him $80 and listening to a tale of his financial woes I gave him an additional $10 gold piece and left him.

The checks were worthless to us, so I threw them down a sewer manhole. I felt sure that Frank's cousin had had no realization beforehand of the part he was called upon to play in the hold-up, but I was certainly surprised to read in the newspapers next day that he had been pinched.

"Stephen Dolce," the account read, "the driver of the auto bandit car, arrested in his home in Brooklyn. Police find the red automobile used in the Poppa robbery."

The license on the car had been Dolce's own and Poppa, having noted the number, the auto was immediately traced and the luckless Stephen taken to police headquarters. Under the "third degree" he told how his cousin Frank had deceived him regarding the use to which the car was to be put. Frank had told him he had a couple of good-paying customers to hire the car for $5 per hour.

A few days later I read in the papers how a fully loaded, pearl-handled revolver was found by the police hidden under a seat cushion of Dolce's car. Frank had put it there—probably when he saw the harness bull pass down the avenue. Dolce was indicted for the robbery and he was out on bail awaiting trial when in March, 1913, I was arrested for another robbery.

Either because I was in so bad then that I figured that confessing the truth of the Poppa robbery could do me little harm or because I wanted to keep an innocent man from getting a long bit in Sing Sing, I wrote from the Tombs to District Attorney Whitman, asked for and received the chance to tell the truth about Dolce. Thus was his innocence established.

Threat of Death.

In the first week of December of that year Frank A—— was caught. He had just returned from Italy, whither he had fled after Dolce had named him to the police. By that time I was a prisoner in the New York County penitentiary and the first intimation of A——'s arrest came to me in the shape of a warning that I "would be croaked by one of his six brothers" if I testified against Frank.

Both Dolce and I appeared before the grand jury which indicted A——, and later at his trial I took the witness stand against him. But the case against him failed because Dolce, the principal witness for the prosecution, stayed away and could not be produced to testify against his relative.

I was glad when the case against A—— collapsed for lack of corroboration of my testimony, because even though I gave my best efforts to convict him I felt I was doing a mean wrong in trying to send him to prison. For, at that time, I had been more than six months in the penitentiary, and what I saw and experienced there of the effect of our penal system of punishment had fully convinced me that it makes a bad man worse, a dangerous criminal more potent for crime.

Prison Brings Reform.

For this reason it is possible that if my false pride had not been aroused by the threat of death I might have declined to testify against him in court. To my notion I was daily and hourly a degraded and oppressed victim of society's revenge. No amount of meditation on the magnitude of my offenses against individuals or the community could induce sufficient measure of contrition to outweigh the indignities that harassed me and my fellow prisoners.

But for an occurrence in which neither priest, minister nor constituted authority, nor personal influence had a creating hand in my reformation I should, in all probability, have come out of prison a much worse man than when I entered, and as such a menace to society.

I Stepped in Front of Him and Said, "Give Me That Bag." With a Panic-Stricken Yell, He Raised Both Hands and Threw the Bag at My Feet.

The Widely Different Effects of Fear.

IN THE same instant fear fell upon two men—the one who had the swag of the holdup and the police officer who sought to catch the thief. The thief was nervously active, shooting at every provocation—the other man, who had no guilt upon his soul, stood dazed, powerless to perform his duty.

The thief of the story says: "I fired a shot over the policeman's head. He stood as though transfixed. In his hands, in its black leather holster, I saw his revolver, his right hand over the end of the holster, his left grasping the handle of the gun. I smiled at his confusion as I pulled the trigger. September building permits reached the high mark of $237,410 at the close of Saturday, exceeding the aggregate for the entire September of 1914 by $456,642.

The deficit in building activity registered at the close of August was $688,280. The large September business has reduced this deficit to date only $228,628. There is $37,500 of building applications on file which have not been issued, and, allowing $50,000 for the Richardson theater building, the deficit is reduced to the small figure of $131,338.

This is "going some" for a war month. Only $550,816 worth of permits were issued during October, November and December of 1914.

VON PAPE NEXPLAINS "IDIOTIC YANKEES"

German Attache Denies That He Referred to the American People.

San Francisco, September 25.—Captain Franz von Papen, military attache to the German embassy at Washington, who was recalled by his government at the request of the United States, denied today that the expression, "idiotic yankees," which was attributed to him and intercepted by the British authorities, was intended to apply to American people.

"The much-discussed letter was to my brother," he said. "In passing it may be said that publishing a man's letter to his wife is deemed bad form. When the British authorities at Falmouth found these letters on Mr. Archibald, they pounced with avidity on the two words that have made all this trouble. They published a garbled excerpt of my letter, thus changing its meaning entirely. My wife, or any one else reading the letter in full, would, I think, would have gathered that the expression 'idiotic yankees' referred to the publishers of a New York newspaper. That newspaper has been calling me a conspirator and other objectionable epithets. It grew especially vehement after my patriotic outburst in one of our private papers had been stolen, and after the publication of my letter writing to my wife, I dealt with these publications. Not a word did the British publish about those parts of my letter."

Captain von Papen, who insisted that his explanation be considered as an amicable discussion and not as an interview, said that he was here for a few days to visit the exposition and added that he himself and the ambassador would return to his post at Washington.

Captain von Papen and Prince von Hatzfeldt will leave next Tuesday for Mexico City, where they will confer with men maintain silence as to their exact destination and the object of their visit.

Washington, September 25.—There are no officials of the German embassy in the city who will discuss the visit of Captain von Papen and Prince Hatzfeldt to Mexico City.

Ever since Captain von Papen became involved in the incident which led to the recall of Dumba, the Austrian ambassador, it has been intimated that the captain's offense was no less serious than Dumba's, and that the same similar action might be taken in his case.

Von Papen is also assigned by the German government as military attache to its legation in Mexico, and he might with propriety pay a visit to Mexico City.

Official learned of the military attache's impending departure without comment, but with some interest.

JOHN D., JR., ENDS WEEK IN THE MINING CAMPS

Pueblo, Col., September 25.—John D. Rockefeller, Jr., tonight completed the first week of his inspection of Colorado properties of the Colorado Fuel and Iron company.

He reached Pueblo after a day spent at the mines of Fremont county and Trinidad, making the journey by car train. Monday he plans to begin a series of conferences with company officials in Denver, at which whatever policies are to result from his inspection trip will be formulated.

Since Mr. Rockefeller reached Trinidad last Monday he has driven hundreds of miles over the mountains and plains in motor cars, dug coal in the Frederick and Rockefeller coal mines, 600 feet shaft at Coal Creek; eaten beef steak and beans at miners' boarding houses and danced with miners' wives and daughters in a little school house after an impromptu entertainment.

Mr. Rockefeller came to Colorado with the avowed intention of studying at first-hand the labor conditions following the strike of 1913-14. From the day he entered Berwind camp—the first—until he descended a 400-foot

MANY POOR WOMEN AND CHILDREN MADE HAPPY

Interesting Scene at the Piedmont When the Thousand Dresses Donated by L. T. Cooper Were Distributed by Prominent Ladies Yesterday Afternoon.

Never before, perhaps, in the history of Atlanta has anything in the way of public charity created such widespread interest as was manifested yesterday afternoon when the One Thousand (1,000) dresses donated to charity through the generosity of L. T. Cooper were distributed at 116 Peachtree street.

Ladies prominent in Atlanta's social life, leading relief workers, heads of local charitable institutions and many prominent citizens were on hand early in the afternoon to assist and cooperate with Mr. Cooper and his representative in this worthy cause. The scene was a most interesting one. Passers-by stopped in wonderment to inquire what was going on, and it was a tribute to the charitable spirit of Atlanta to note the enthusiasm with which Mr. Cooper's gift was received.

Not only were the poor women, girls and orphans in the various institutions remembered, as had previously been planned, but several hundred other poor and needy women and girls from all parts of the city came to seek Mr. Cooper's bounty, and none were denied.

Long before the appointed hour a large number were on hand waiting for the doors to open, and during the time which extended for more than half a block. Before distribution was completed a large crowd had gathered, and everyone seemed to enter into the spirit of the occasion.

It was soon apparent that the thousand dresses originally provided for the occasion would not be sufficient to meet the demand, and an additional order was immediately given to the Enterprise Manufacturing company and filled in time to supply every unfortunate one who called.

Practically every charitable institution in the city, both white and colored, were provided for. The heads of the various institutions being present in person to participate in the distribution and to see that all of the needy and worthy were properly taken care of.

The charitable institutions represented included the following: Scottering Arms, Hebrew Orphans' Home, Home for the Friendless, Decatur Methodist Orphans' Home, Cornelia Moore Nursery, John Barclay Nursery, Gate City Mills Mission, Vesley House, Atlanta Child's Home, Fulton Bag and Cotton Mills Mission, Walton Street Mission, unemployed of the Y. W. C. A., Carrie Steele Orphanage, Mission Circle of the First Congregational Colored church and many other church relief organizations.

Among the ladies who gave the distribution their personal attention were Mrs. Wilson, Mrs. William Lawson Peel, Mrs. Wilmer L. Moore, Mrs. Preston S. Arkwright, Mrs. William H. Kiser, Mrs. Arnold Broyles, Mrs. W. P. Hill, Mrs. E. R. Gunby, Miss Adrienne Hill and Miss Ethel Hopkins. These ladies spent the entire afternoon to make the distribution the great success it was.

In referring to the occasion, Mr. G. F. Willis, Mr. Cooper's private secretary, said: "Mr. Cooper's secret in that Mr. Cooper could not have been present in person to distribute the dresses, as he was once a poor man himself, and is never happier than when helping others."

When asked whether Mr. Cooper would make any further contributions, Mr. Willis said: "Mr. Cooper is one of the most magnanimous of men, and will, I am sure, do something more to cheer his sympathy for the poor and unfortunate in your city, in fact, I have made a special request of him, as his arrival here to do so, as I had not myself fully realized until this afternoon the great opportunity for this work in this city."

As I have stated before, Mr. Cooper is a firm believer in practical philanthropy, and it has always been his policy to give a large part of his income each year to relief work and to help his charities where he can do the greatest good to the greatest number.

The following letters of appreciation have already been received, and others are many to follow:

Dear Mr. Cooper: September 25, 1915.

Just received Seventy (70) dresses for our children at the Methodist Orphanage at Decatur, Ga. For the trustees and children allow me to express our heartiest thanks. Blessings upon you.

J. M. HAWKINS, Agent,
Orphans' Home, Decatur, Ga.

September 25, 1915.

Mr. L. T. Cooper,
Care Mr. G. F. Willis, Piedmont Hotel, City:

My Dear Sir—I wish to thank Mr. Cooper, through you, for the excellent dresses you gave my yesterday. Fifteen were received for our Mission Circle, and thirty-nine for children at the Carrie Steele Orphanage. These dresses are new and freshly made, of excellent quality and pretty style. They will render a great service to the children in need.

In appreciating your generosity, I am, in behalf of the needy.

Very truly yours, H. H. PICOTT.

Mr. Willis wishes especially to thank Messrs. Wiseburg Bros. of the Enterprise Manufacturing company, for their very kind co-operation and assistance. These gentlemen, although greatly behind with a large number of fall orders, laid aside all business in order to get these dresses out by Saturday afternoon. He also wishes to publicly express his sincere thanks and appreciation to the above mentioned ladies and gentlemen who so kindly assisted him.—(adv.)

POLICE PERSONALS

BY WILLOU FORBES

ANDY KING FIGHTS FOR BETTER EQUIPMENT.

One police commissioner who is now held dear in the hearts of Atlanta policemen and in the esteem of the police department as a whole is Commissioner "Andy" King.

Judge Johnson and Commissioner King always were the best of friends when they served on the police commission, and commissioner King was often referred to as "The Disciple of Johnson."

It was Commissioner King who, carrying out the ideas so long fought for by Recorder Johnson while he was a member of the commission, secured for Atlanta the placing of police call officers at a number of the outlying fire stations, and thus affording to the city better protection against the many burglaries and robberies which hovered over the city at the time this improvement in police methods was effected.

Then Commissioner King began a fight in council and the push-button for automobiles for the call officers at headquarters, and crowned with success his efforts, the detective department equipped with autos to use in their work.

It is safe to say that if "Andy" King can have carte blanche he has only to ask for the improvement of the Atlanta police department the day will not be far distant when this city will boast of a force fully as competent in every sense of the word as the most efficient police force of the biggest cities of the country.

King's policy is based on one idea, which is "better equipment" for the police, and he is surely getting it.

THORNTON AND HARDY IN BIRMINGHAM.

"Dab" Thornton, the big traffic cop who signals traffice at Five Points in the daytime, and Patrolman J. C. Hardy, of the same beat, made a short trip to Birmingham one day last week just to take in the sights.

The huge size of these two Atlanta policemen, who are two of the largest in the force, naturally made them the attention in the Slag City.

Thornton tells a story that Hardy crashed through a wicket gate on a Birmingham street car which was too small for him to pass through as he attempted to get off a car. The episode attracted a deal of attention, as sides causing the street car conductor to wonder what sort of a "chap" it was who just broke down his wicket gates by walking through them. Thornton explains that it was all an accident, though, saying that Hardy was just trying to get off the car, and his foot got tangled into the wicket gate, which was not wide enough for his broad shoulders to pass through.

NEALY'S DEATH SOURCE OF SORROW.

The death of Sergeant George Nealy, who was in charge of records in the station sergeant's office until two months ago, when, due to bad health, he was granted a leave of absence by the police commission, is a source of regret to all members of the force. Sergeant Nealy died last Sunday afternoon, and the funeral of former Police Matron Mary Bohnefield was being held.

He was the best friend the newspaper boys ever had on the force. He possessed by nature a keen "nose" for news, in which the reporters placed absolute confidence. Whenever he was asked the stereotyped inquiry, "is there anything doing today, Serg," and he answered in the negative, there was no use on further investigation in the station-house's office for news as a useless occupation.

NEW POLICE MATRON MAKING FRIENDS.

Mrs. Mamie Hurd has been installed, pending approval of the police commissioners at their October meeting, as matron in charge of the woman's ward at headquarters, and is fast making friends with her new work. She possesses a pleasing disposition and appears fully competent of carrying on the work she has now taken up.

ARABIC NEGOTIATIONS ARE TO BE RESUMED

Washington, September 25.—Negotiations between Count von Bernstorff, the German ambassador, and the state department over the sinking of the White Star liner Arabic probably will be resumed next week. The German ambassador is understood to have received several messages from his foreign office giving its opinion of the evidence submitted by the United States to show the ship was torpedoed without warning and did not move to attack the undersea boat.

It is not known definitely whether Germany is prepared to disavow the sinking of the Arabic nor whether the intimations in press dispatches from Berlin of a desire to settle amicably the entire dispute, but the chief obstacle in the way of a settlement, according to the German ambassador, is the alleged policy of Great Britain with respect to ramming submarines. There are intimations that before modifying completely her submarine policy, Germany will seek through the United States some assurance that British merchantmen will submit to visit and search.

TURKS DESTROYING ARMENIAN PEOPLE

Christians Are Being Driven Into Wilderness to Starve. Mothers Throw Children Into River.

London, September 25.—"The Turks are gradually but effectively exterminating the Armenian people," asserts the Dedeaghatch correspondent of The Times. "The modus operandi is to send from each Armenian village day by day as many persons as a train can carry, when they arrive at Konish, or some adjacent station they are turned out and an escort supplied by the Turkish constabulary.

"Once on the other side they are supplied with provisions for a few days and told to continue their journey to the neighborhood of Aleppo, they will find employment in perfect safety. But in point of fact the region is nothing but a desert, where the many hoes marauding bands of Kurds or Bedouins are ready to deliver helpless men, women and children, so that those who are not actually slain die of hunger and thirst. Each one ever reaches the intended destination, for should any one try to escape in any other direction Turkish shepherds have orders to shoot them at sight.

Children Into the River.

"The consequence is that many distracted mothers fling their children into the Euphrates rather than see them suffer. Some even sell them for what they will bring before starting on their journey.

"A wealthy given American missionary, who arrived at Constantinople the first week in September, declared he saw as many as fifteen thousand Armenians collected around one station waiting to begin this journey, from which none would ever return. American missionaries scattered about Asia Minor, and particularly in the Armenian districts, gradually are leaving upon the advice of their ambassador. The attacks upon Armenians are said to be excused upon the ground that they aided the Russians in the occupation of the town of Van."

The Chronicle prints what it declares to be accounts by eye-witnesses of Armenian massacres, asserting that, besides many thousands killed, a half million have been deported in a systematic manner by local authorities, while thousands of others have been imprisoned. The charge is made that after the men are massacred the women and children are sent into slavery to be converted to Mohammedanism.

Many Children Starve.

The Chronicle's informants charge that many children are sent out along the roads to fall victims of starvation or robber bands.

Massacres are reported to have taken place in the provinces of Kharput and Diarbekir especially at Palu. Many are deported from the province of Erzerum, it is said, were left for several days on the Kharput plains, where they died of hunger. At Sary Kichlin 2,000 are reported to have been compelled to proceed, leaving the children both sexes behind.

Armenians living in Turkish towns along the Black sea, The Chronicle asserts, are especially subjected to compulsory Islamism, and have been sent into the interior, through Angora.

Chabik-Arlesar, which resisted disarmament and deportation, is reported to have been destroyed, with the result that the entire population, including the bishop, was killed.

"Doper" From "Nowhere" Dismissed on Saturday From Narcotic Hospital

An incorrigible dope fiend has been dismissed from the city's narcotic hospital.

He gives his name as D. F. Rosson and his home as "nowhere." He was arraigned in the police court Saturday afternoon.

Rosson was not only held to be a hopeless case, so far as a cure for the drug habit was concerned, but he was also said to be very effective with some of the female dopers at the hospital. Further than that, it was charged that he tried to smuggle morphine into the hospital and demoralized the institution by his conduct.

Rosson is about 20 years of age. He did not deny that he might be giving a fictitious name and said that he belonged to a respectable family who did not know of his dope habit. He was told by Recorder Johnson to "go his way."

Bryan to Lead Prayer On Top of a Mountain For Peace of the World

Hot Springs, Ark., September 25.—After William Jennings Bryan speaks before the Presbyterian church efficiency conference here next Friday, he will lead a meeting on top of Hot Springs mountain to pray for world peace. The meeting will be held at noon.

This announcement was made today by the committee in charge of arrangements for the conference, which will open its sessions here Tuesday.

$2,500 IS ASKED FOR HORSE GUARD STABLES

For the re-establishment of city stables for the horses of the Governor's Horse Guard, an appropriation of $2,500 has been asked of the finance committee of council, which is now considering the October money sheet. The request for this appropriation followed investigation on the part of the government of the sanitation and the cavalry organization by the city and county.

In a letter to E. H. Inman, member of the finance committee of council, Captain L. L. Hollis states that a reasonable appropriation made by the city would be supplemented by many subscriptions on the part of public spirited men of the city and county. He also points out that the Governor's Horse Guard have been put to much expense in maintaining their mounts since their former quarters were removed by action of council last March and he also expresses the fear that Atlanta may soon be without proper military protection on account of the meager support given them by the city and county.

COUNTY MAGISTRATES INDICTED FOR GRAFT

Barbourville, Ky., September 25.—Indictments were returned in the Knox circuit court today against County Judge T. G. Hammons and the following seven county magistrates: V. D. Jackson, Louis Monhollan, D. B. Dethrage, B. D. Fortner, I. T. Mills, C. Cobb and LeRoy Peace. All were indicted in connection with the handling of the proceeds of a recent $200,000 bond issue voted in Knox county for road building. Magistrate Enom McKeehan was the only member of the fiscal court to escape indictment. The indictments contained from one to four counts in each instance. One of the charges against the seven indicted magistrates is that they accepted checks for $25 each from a Terra Haute (Ind.) firm to cover traveling expenses to that point to inspect machinery. Other counts charge they indorsed illegal claims in connection with the disbursements of road funds, and that they hired their own teams for road work.

BY GOING TO BED WOMAN PREVENTS TRIAL IN COURT

Because she undressed and went to bed and refused to robe herself, Mrs. C. A. Goins could not be tried by the recorder Saturday afternoon when her case was called.

The arresting officer stated that Mrs. Goins visited the police station Friday afternoon and said she wanted justice, but what about, she failed to say. After the officers tried to make her leave, and she persistently refused, they placed her in the care of the police matron.

When the case was called Saturday afternoon, the recorder was informed that Mrs. Goins had gone to bed and would not get up and dress.

It was believed the woman was demented, and the recorder ordered her held until a physician could examine her mentally. If she is found to be insane, she will be sent to the Tower so a writ of lunacy can be taken out for her.

KNOCKED UNCONSCIOUS IN DRUID HILLS WOODS

Decatur, Ga., September 25.—(Special.)—C. Kennedy, a carpenter of Birmingham, Ala., while passing in the woods last night in the Druid Hills section, was knocked unconscious by a blow over the ear. He lay unconscious from 7 o'clock until 10 o'clock, when he was able to walk to Decatur. Kennedy says his unknown assailant had no robbery intent, for over $40 and other valuables in his pockets were not touched.

BRITISH CHAMPION SHOT KILLED BY THE GERMANS

London, September 25.—Lieutenant A. N. V. H. Ommundson, of Edinburgh, Scotland, champion shot of the British empire, is reported to have been killed while fighting in Flanders. Lieutenant Ommundson was winner of the chief prizes at the shooting tourneys held at Bisley, England, during the king's prize, which he took at the meeting of the National Rifle association in 1901. He had been a member of international rifle teams.

30 PERSONS ARE KILLED IN CANANEA STREETS

Washington, September 25.—Thirty persons are reported to have been killed when thousands of shots were fired in the streets of Cananea, Mexico, Thursday afternoon. No foreigners appear to have been killed. Thirty American women are reported fleeing in automobiles to the border.

"The Carranista forces which arrived at Cananea at noon on the 23d," said a state department announcement today, based on official dispatches, "evacuated the town at 7 o'clock in the evening of the same day. This evacuation is said to have left the town without protection. It is also reported that during the afternoon thousands of shots were fired in the streets and that thirty persons were killed. Thirty American women have left Cananea in automobiles for the border.

"The department has been informed that General Maytorena, of the Villista force, intends to send a garrison to Cananea. It was reported from the border on September 23 that announcement had been made by General Maytorena from an account of a burned railroad bridge it would be necessary for his troops to march to Cananea, and they could reach there under forty-eight hours."

A telegram to the department from El Paso says trainloads of Americans detained at Chihuahua because of congestion due to military traffic were expected to leave there last night. Reports from the west coast, dated yesterday, indicated conditions were quiet. A dispatch from Vera Cruz told of the arrest and release on bond of W. B. Wofford, an American. No reason was assigned.

VAST NUMBERS SLOWLY POISON OWN SYSTEMS

Auto-Intoxication Is Foundation of Most Diseases, Says Celebrated Authority.

Advanced medical authorities assert that auto-intoxication is the foundation of most of the ills and diseases to which flesh is heir. Stripped of "this condition," says L. T. Cooper, who has made a study especially of the subject, "is nothing more or less than the slow self-poisoning of the vital organs produced by the excess of mental and physical strain we are forced to endure, which renders the system lame and inactive and permits toxine—actual poisons—to be generated within the body.

"In the process of digestion a number of poisonous substances are produced, which, although absorbed in the alimentary canal are prevented by the active fibers entering the circulation, as a result of overwork, fatigue products, sarcolastic acid and prolonged muscular spasms may lead to auto-intoxication. Excess of uric acid in the blood is associated with high arterial pressure, headache and nervous irritability, and is an indication of imperfect metabolism (mat-assimilation) and auto-intoxication. It is a recognized fact that marked improvement occurs by suitable diet and treatment.

Symptoms of auto-intoxication may be associated with various nervous phenomena. Bile in the blood may be attended by stupor and mental depression and the term melancholia, signifying black bile, indicates the importance which has long been attached to the liver as an organ, the derangement of which causes nervous depression.

"Sometimes the trouble starts in the liver and sometimes in the kidneys, or starts in the stomach or elsewhere, but in any case the blame lies with the faulty method of living which has become so prevalent of recent years, and it is the more important organs that suffer the final damage. And when they finally fail in their duties the body fills up with poisons and the victim readily yields to their baneful influences. Briefly disease, stomach and intestinal troubles, catarrhal affections of the mucous membranes, in fact, may be called auto-intoxication or self-poisoning.

"A tired, dragging feeling of the body," continued Mr. Cooper, "or sluggish mind and dull memory, intense nervousness, headache, stomach and bowel disorders, poor circulation, imperfect digestion, constipation and despondency, are common symptoms of auto-intoxication and nine out of every ten people in the average city like Atlanta are likely to be so afflicted.

Tanlac, the powerful reconstructive tonic, was designed especially to overcome these troubles, and it is Mr. Cooper's theory that the Tanlac treatment is the only one that is scientific. There is not a single portion of the body that is not benefited by the healthful work of this celebrated preparation, which begins its action by stimulating the digestive and assimilative organs, thereby enriching the blood and invigorating the entire system. Next it enables the stomach to thoroughly digest the food, thereby permitting the assimilative products to be converted into blood, bone and muscle. Then it eliminates the last existing cause of disease—weakness. It renders the body vigorous and elastic, keeps the mind clear and energetic and throws off the symptoms of nervousness and indigestion. It builds up the constitution weakened by disease and mental and physical overwork, quickens convalescence and is an unfailing source of comfort to those suffering with these troubles.—(adv.)

MANY INQUIRIES REGARDING TANLAC

Necessitate Special Arrangements With Jacobs Pharmacy Company.

The demand for Tanlac, L. T. Cooper's new medicine that is now being so widely discussed, is already surprisingly large, and is steadily increasing. The number of inquiries from points outside of the city has exceeded all expectations. People in nearly every neighboring town are inquiring about Tanlac. They want to know the truth of the preparation, the style of the manufacturers, whether or not Tanlac can be shipped to them promptly.

In view of this fact, special arrangements have been made whereby Tanlac can now be obtained from Atlanta by those residing at points outside of the city.

In this connection Mr. Charles E. Smith, of the Jacobs Pharmacy Co., the Atlanta distributors of Tanlac, said last night:

"Owing to the great volume of inquiries from other points regarding Tanlac, we thought it incumbent upon us to establish a special department for handling the out-of-town demand for the preparation, therefore those who desire Tanlac can now obtain the medicine by simply sending their order to the Jacobs Pharmacy Co., accompanied by a check, or money order for One Dollar ($1.00), the retail price of Tanlac per bottle."—(adv.)

"SEEING GEORGIA" TOUR WILL NOT BE A FROLIC

Chairman Price Says It Will Be Pleasant and Instructive Business Trip.

Not a frolic, but a pleasant and instructive business trip, is the way Commissioner of Agriculture J. D. Price describes the fecond "Seein Georgia" tour, which will start from Macon Thursday afternoon, September 30 at 3 o'clock sharp.

Commissioner Price is chairman of this second tour, and proposes to leave no stone unturned to make it the biggest and best thing of the kind Georgia has ever known.

"This is an opportunity which Georgians seldom have for greeting acquainted with their own state," said Chairman Price, "and every Georgian who can possibly do so should take advantage of it.

"You who go on this trip will see not less than 150,000 new faces; you will see the farms, the fields, the fertile valleys, the peach and apple orchards and the splendid dairies of north Georgia; you will make valuable business acquaintances and you will get inspiration for new effort.

"Interest in the tour upon every mile of the route is nothing short of marvelous. At Milledgeville, where we spend the first night, the people are preparing an elaborate entertainment for the crowd. Milledgeville business men are now sending out their envelopes printed, 'Be sure to join the second seeing Georgia Tour.'

Cities Enthusiastic.

"Madison, the first noonday stop, and Athens, where we spend the second night, are more than enthusiastic; they feel as if they cannot do too much for us, and all the towns between are making preparations to extend the glad hand of welcome. In addition to their other entertainment features, Athens is preparing a street carnival illustrative of the abundance and prosperity of that section.

"From Athens we go on to Cornelia, Tallulah Falls and across to Dahlonega, Gainesville, Tate and up to Rome, from where we come back to Atlanta, ending the tour. Through this section Georgians will have opportunity to see Georgia in all its varied aspects, from the cotton and corn fields of the middle belt, to the magnificent grain fields in the fertile valleys lying at the foot of the Blue Ridge mountains. They will pass through some three or four or more of Georgia's many climatic agricultural belts, and see as wide a variety of products as they would in traveling from central Georgia into the far north. They will see Georgia's exceptional and unexcelled mineral resources which are peculiar to the mountain region.

"But best of all they will see and meet Georgians, many thousands of them, residents of their own state and all eagerly engaged as they are in the work of constructive progress.

"I am more than delighted to learn that so many people are going into this tour from the southern section of the state; every one of them who can do so should take advantage of this opportunity to see north Georgia at its best.

Governor Harris Expects to Go.

"Governor and Mrs. Harris expect to go on this trip, and the officers and tourists are united in the determination to make them the honor guests of the tour.

"I am also assured that the city of Atlanta will send a car with Mayor Woodward and some of its leading citizens on the entire tour. It will be a splendid occasion for letting the people of these north Georgia counties know that Atlanta is with them and is anxious to contribute to their success. It will encourage them, too, to join in the coming Tri-State Harvest Festival in this city, which is going to be one of the biggest agricultural events the state has ever seen.

"There will be many ladies in the tour, which will add to the pleasure and attraction of it.

"The roads over the entire route are in fine condition, and we anticipate in every respect one of the most delightful trips it would be possible to take at this time anywhere in the country.

"The tour will start immediately following the conclusion in Macon of the annual meeting of the Georgia Chamber of Commerce. All Georgians desiring to participate should send their names at once to the chairman of the entrance committee, T. W. Hooks, care Hotel Lanier, Macon, Ga., who will be glad to enter them.

"Georgians who make this trip are going to see things in their own state which they have never dreamed of. Only those who saw the Georgia moving picture film in Atlanta a few nights ago can realize the truth of this statement. The only difference is that on this tour they will see the actual industries represented themselves, instead of the moving picture representation of them."

Wonderful Success of the Misses Rosenbaum Shows What Women Can Do in Business World

MISS CLEMMIE ROSENBAUM.

What home talent can accomplish at home is illustrated in the career of two well known Atlanta women.

When one sees over one of the largest business institutions on Whitehall street, the sign "C. & C. Rosenbaum," it would give the impression that the firm were masculine, and maybe physically in proportion to the size of the building. Going inside, the impression might continue, for there are crowds of people being waited upon, and the business would suggest wise directors at the head, and a man's job to guide the various departments.

Instead of all this masculinity, the firm of "C. & C. Rosenbaum," means two very small women, their small heads covered with curly hair and their statures, their bearing, their manner, their voice, all suggesting only what pertains to woman, and very dainty woman at that.

The "C. & C." stands for Misses Clemmie and Clara Rosenbaum, two Atlanta women who, through their own talent, taste, ability, initiative and industry have built up one of the largest and most successful millinery shops in the south. They employ almost exclusively Atlanta talent and industry, and their buyers are Atlanta women. Their business reaches through every state in the south, and every county in Georgia, and the name of "Miss Clemmie" is as well known among the women of fashion in this section as that of "Lucile" is in London and the east, or "Francois" in all sections.

Their Early Training.

The Misses Rosenbaum were born in Atlanta; they were reared here, and educated in the public schools, their grammar school training received from the Walker street school in the western part of the city; at one time patronized by the children in the entire western district of Atlanta, which included West End, as well as all of Whitehall street through to Capitol avenue.

The second of the two sisters continued her studies in the Girls' high school, but "Miss Clemmie," while still a school girl, determined to begin a business career. At that time girls contemplating self-support still followed the beaten path of teaching music or painting, and there were the many who rushed into the business schools for the stenographer's training. But "Miss Clemmie" wisely chose real business, and that essentially in woman's lines, when she entered the Regenstein millinery businesss, then farther down on Whitehall street, and one of the largest houses in the south. She received her first training there, and soon became a valued member of the sales department, at the same pursuing the study of millinery with the women experts brought down from the north then as head trimmers. Subsequently she was identified with the Atlanta millinery business, reaching the highest position within the giving of that firm.

Artistic Talent.

Her artistic talent and her superior quality as a business woman had made for her a large circle of acquaintances, not only in the home market but in the metropolitan market, where she was well known as a buyer. When, therefore, she became the head of the firm name of "C. & C. Rosenbaum," she had accomplished exactly what she desired. Both sisters, therefore, were well known in the millinery world, and both regarded as a welcome into the ranks of the business.

Frequent trips to Europe and four visits a year to New York have proven the same inspiration to Miss Rosenbaum in her line of art that the galleries of Europe do to the portrait painters and sculptors, and she continues to study the art necessary to her business.

The career of the Misses Rosenbaum proves what home talent can do at home. It illustrates the value of the young woman wage-earner, following the vocation which presents itself as nearest to her, and along the line essentially woman's. It illustrates the value of earnestness of purpose, close application to business and appreciation of the dignity of work as followed by women. There are no two women in Atlanta in professional or business life more highly esteemed than these, and Atlanta is proud of them as home products.

Governor Dunne Will Take Part in Starting Exercises in Chicago.

The date when the tour of the Dixie highway commissioners will reach Atlanta has been definitely fixed as the evening of October 15, according to a letter which President R. N. President Reed has called a meeting of the Atlanta Automobile and Accessories association for Monday afternoon to arrange details for the entertainment of the tourists when they reach Atlanta.

The Chattanooga Automobile association is making plans to escort the A tremendous delegation of Atlanta tremendous delegation of Atlanta Chattanooga and meet the tourists and escort them into the city.

For the night which they will spend in Atlanta a splendid entertainment will be arranged. The meeting of Monday will decide upon the details of this entertainment.

On the morning of October 16 the tourists will leave for Macon. The Atlanta Automobile and Accessories association will furnish an escort all the way from Atlanta to Macon.

"Mr. R. N. GEORGIA MOTION PICTURE WILL BE SHOWN IN MACON

In response to the request of people in all parts of Georgia for a chance to see the Georgia motion picture film, which the Georgia Chamber of Commerce is building to advertise the state throughout the north and west, and which was given a preliminary run in the Atlanta auditorium on September 13, the Georgia Chamber of Commerce has decided to run the film during the annual meeting of the Georgia Chamber of Commerce, at Macon, September 29 and 30.

The Grand Opera house in Macon has been secured and the film, with a number of splendid editions of most interesting scenes in south Georgia, will be run during the afternoon and at night on next Wednesday, the 29th. It is considered probable that the run will be repeated on Thursday, as indications point to an overflow crowd of every run on Wednesday.

On the call of Mayor Bridges Smith, of Macon, the mayors of all the larger towns in Georgia, at least three hundred of them, will assemble in Macon on the 29th for the purpose of viewing the Georgia motion picture and making suggestions as to what additional scenes may be included to make the film a complete representation of Georgia as she really is. By this method, many scenes that might otherwise be overlooked will be brought to the attention of the Georgia Chamber of Commerce officials, and included in the picture, which it is now certain will take two or three months more to complete and start on the road. When completed, separate films will be shown in Georgia, for the information and enjoyment of our citizens, and in the north and west, for the enlightenment of those who have only hazy ideas of the resources and development of the Empire State of the south.

A. F. Todd, state president, will deliver the principal talk, taking for his subject, "The Traveling Man and What He Means to This Country."

Citation From Bible, In Charging the Jury, Results in New Trial

The court of appeals yesterday handed down a decision in the case of Braxley v. The State, in which the court held that it is inappropriate for the judge to cite the gospel as a criterion in charging a jury, and also holding that the judge was in error in admitting to testimony revelations of the defendant to his attorney. Braxley was convicted with three others of burglary in Milledgeville, and the high court's decision gives him a new trial.

Lime-Loss in Tuberculosis

In the Journal of the American Medical Association (January 17, 1914) was the following:

"It has been many times stated that in tuberculosis or in the pretuberculosis stage an increased amount of calcium (lime) is lost both in the urine and feces. In fact, a demineralization has been thought to be a forerunner of the development of tuberculosis."

If tuberculosis is due to lime loss, the success of Eckman's Alterative in its treatment may be due, in part, to its content of a lime salt so combined with other valuable ingredients as to be easily assimilated.

Always we have urged consumptives to attend strictly to matters of food, but often some effective remedial agent is needed. In many cases of apparent recovery Eckman's Alterative seems to have supplied this need. It contains no opiates, narcotics or habit-forming drugs, so is safe to try. From your druggist or direct.

BRUNSWICK NIMRODS BAG MANY MARSH HENS

Brunswick, Ga., September 25.—(Special.)—Thousands of marsh hens have been killed by Brunswick nimrods during the past three days, and a visitor in Brunswick would have thought he was in the midst of an European battle. Every small batteau in the port, and there are hundreds of them, have been pressed into service, and the marshes have been full of hunters. Practically every one of them have returned with the full limit of the delicious birds—35. Formerly there was no limit on marsh hens, but when the new game laws were passed it was fixed at twenty-five.

"DEAR MOTHER:— A good thing to send would be a package of Grape-Nuts, or something of that kind that is not expensive or heavy and is of good food value. Your son, WILL."

Wherever hardships are endured, wherever big deeds are accomplished, there a food is demanded that provides maximum of value in brain- and body-building material with minimum of bulk.

In this respect no other food equals

Grape-Nuts

In building the Panama Canal thousands of brain workers as well as brawn workers kept themselves fit and in trim by eating Grape-Nuts dry from the package.

Not only does Grape-Nuts supply all the brain- and bone-building, nerve- and muscle-making elements of choicest wheat but also the rich nutriment of malted barley.

S. C. CLYATT FOUND AFTER FOUR YEARS

Man Thought Murdered Near Valdosta in 1911 Discovered in Real Estate Business in Birmingham.

Valdosta, Ga., September 25.—(Special.)—Disclosures made public here today show that Sam C. Clyatt, formerly a prominent citizen and well-known business man of this section, whose mysterious disappearance four years ago created one of the greatest sensations ever experienced here, is alive and well at Birmingham, Ala.

Mr. Clyatt was believed to have been murdered on the road between this city and Hahira, and his body buried in some of the "lime sinks" or underground water courses in that neighborhood. Heavy rewards were offered for his body, and a prolonged search was made of the fields, woods and streams.

Found by Chief Dampier.

Chief of Police Dampier, who has been interested in the search for the missing man during the long interval since his disappearance, traced him to various places in Oklahoma, California and other western states, but was never absolutely sure of his identity until he was traced to Birmingham, where, it is understood, he has been for some months engaged in the real estate business. Those who know him well have met and talked with him there.

No explanation is made as to the cause of Mr. Clyatt's action, except on the score of business worry and financial embarrassment. It is believed that he became discouraged and, throwing everything aside, decided to leave. His family was not taken into his confidence, and at first believed he had been murdered, though later it is said that they have been in correspondence with him.

Coat and Buggy Found.

Clyatt disappeared in the fall of 1911. He left late in the afternoon to drive into the country on a business matter, carrying $200 with him. That night his horse found its way to Mineola, six miles north of here. A search disclosed his buggy with its wheels locked against a telephone pole on the road near the Willacoochee river. His coat was lying on the ground with the sleeves and pockets turned inside out, and a short distance away his shoes were found. Clyatt was formerly in business at Unadilla and Tifton, and a profound sensation was created by his disappearance.

TWO HOTEL GUESTS COME NEAR DEATH FROM ASPHYXIATION

Jim Acree and R. L. Jones, of Maysville, are patients at Grady hospital as the result of asphyxiation in a room in the Henderson hotel, 41½ Peachtree street, Saturday morning.

The pulmotor was used to supply oxygen to their lungs during the day, and the Grady interns reported that their condition was much improved last night.

Acree and Jones and a Mr. Smith, of Greenville, registered at the Henderson Friday night after an evening at the Bijou theater. Acree asked to be called at 6 o'clock Saturday morning and when Mrs. E. Jones, of the hotel, knocked at his door at that hour he asked her also to awaken his brother, who had slept in the next room. Upon failing to get a response from either of the rooms, Mrs. Jones raised a window and an outflow of gas greeted her. She summoned Traffic Policeman Womack from Five Points, who found the men still alive, and sent them to Grady hospital.

Judge Puts Prisoner On His Honor to Send Fine to Police Chief

"So you came here from the country to visit your old mother, swilled a lot of beer and now the mother you came to see has got to pay your fine," said Recorder Johnson Saturday afternoon to P. P. Cleland, of Maysville, Ga.

Cleland acknowledged that such was the case.

"I left my country home, my wife and two little children with $10 in my pocket," stated the prisoner, "and I came to Atlanta to see my mother. Last night I got in bad company and drank near beer. I awoke this morning to find myself in a cell and all my money gone."

Cleland said that his mother would pay his fine.

"Yes, and that is what I don't want your old mother to do," the recorder told him. "I don't want her to pay out her money for you and I don't want to see you go to the chaingang. So I will fine you $2.75 and trust to your honor to get the money. You go back home to that wife and those two little babies and send the chief of police a postoffice order for the money."

Cleland promised to do this and he was allowed to depart.

He declares that their stock of imported woolens is more complete and attractive this season than any they have ever carried, and believes that the coming fall business is going to show even a greater improvement in all lines than the most optimistic hope for.

CONSPIRACY TO KILL INFORMER CHARGED

Seven Alleged Moonshiners of Gordon County Placed Under Arrest.

Charged with conspiracy to kill Marion Kirby, a government moonshine informer, seven men were arrested Thursday in Gordon county following a "man hunt" instituted by local revenue agents. Carson and Willard Mulkey, two of the defendants, were brought to the Fulton county jail in default of bail after they had been bound over by United States Commissioner T. W. Kellogg at Jasper, Friday.

The other five, W. D. Mulkey, father of the Mulkey brothers, his other two sons, Tom and Will Mulkey and Bud and Gill Callahan were admitted to bond through the assistance of government officials that they might support their needy families.

Marion Kirby and his father were attacked at the Mulkey home by the combined male members of the Callahan and Mulkey families about two weeks ago, according to their story. The old man fled into the underbrush, where he was followed by his son, who was nearly blind with the beating he had received. A parting shot from one of his assailants filled his back full of birdshot. It is claimed that the two men were attacked because they had informed the government about illicit distilling conducted in the Long Branch district.

WOMAN BADLY HURT BY AUTO AT SCENE OF FORMER ACCIDENT

At the corner of Auburn avenue and Peachtree street, the same place where Mrs. P. L. Patterson, of Minera Bluff, Ga., was fatally injured by an automobile Tuesday afternoon, Mrs. A. M. Gable, aged 45, of 139 Spring street, was struck and probably fatally hurt by an automobile driven by Mrs. S. G. Touchstone, of 608 Woodward avenue, Saturday morning at 10:45 o'clock.

Mrs. Touchstone went to police headquarters with an officer, where a case was booked against her for reckless driving. Mrs. Gable was taken to the Grady hospital in the ambulance, where her injuries were dressed by physicians. The accident attracted a large crowd.

Miss Lillie Touchstone was in the car with her mother and both stated at police headquarters that the accident was entirely unavoidable and that Mrs. Gable stepped from behind another car directly in the path of their machine.

The hospital authorities discovered Mrs. Gable's identity through the identification card she carried from the Clearing House for the Unemployed. She had applied on Friday for sewing and, as is customary with the clearing house, a record was taken of her address, how she might be reached most promptly and other essential information. The identification card number was telephoned to the clearing house, and Mrs. Gable's address being secured, her friends could at once be notified.

R. H. HOLLAND IS HELD FOR STABBING BROTHER

Columbus, Ga., September 25.—(Special.)—An alleged hold-up by negroes in which W. T. Holland, a young farmer, was perhaps fatally stabbed early this morning, developed, under investigation of officers, to be a fake and that Holland was stabbed by his brother, R. H. Holland, following a heated argument as they were driving home.

Early Saturday morning W. T. Holland, R. H. Holland and another brother, G. G. Holland, were driving home after spending most of the night in Columbus. About 4 miles from the city, from the investigation of the officers, the three got into an argument which resulted in R. H. Holland's stabbing his brother, W. T. Holland.

The men were first arrested on suspicion. The story concerning the hold-up was thin, and that started the investigation which finally found an eyewitness. R. H. Holland and his brother, held in the city jail, were told of the investigation, and they admitted their story was a fake. R. H. Holland, who is one-armed, claimed self-defense, saying that his brother attacked him. Advices from the hospital are to the effect that Holland has little chance of recovering and in the meantime the brothers are being held.

Many States Represented In Georgia Tech Enrollment

The twenty-eighth annual session of the Georgia School of Technology will open Monday morning at 8 o'clock, when the classes will begin work.

At 9 o'clock Monday morning, there will be a special meeting called by the president, Dr. K. G. Matheson, in the chapel. There will be speeches by the president, the dean, the registrar and others.

The registration commenced several days ago and has been unusually heavy. Those in charge of the work are confidently expecting the largest enrollment the school has ever had when the exact figures are in.

Considering that the standard of work has been raised considerably during the past year, the large enrollment is all the more surprising. The apprentice, or sub, class that the school has had heretofore has been abolished, thereby eliminating the half-way prep department.

The number of men who have gone in for civil engineering is the largest the school has ever known. This is partly due to the fact that highway, municipal and sanitary engineering departments have been opened up.

The numeer of students who will be in the architecture and engineering chemistry classes also shows a very substantial increase over the number enrolled last year.

Since some people are of the impression that Tech is somewhat of a local school, the registrar wishes it to be known that there are students now enrolled from New York state, Kansas, New Mexico, Brazil, Mexico, Texas, and all of the states bordering Georgia.

Moving in circles isn't the way to get ahead, even though you may move in the best circles.

Judge Longstreet Carved Emory Gate With Penknife

By Wightman F. Melton.

Oxford, Ga., September 25.—(Special.) Visitors to the home of the president of Emory college, Oxford, Ga., little dream, when passing in or out of the gate, that the rungs in that gate were whittled out with a pen-knife, some seventy-five years ago, by Judge A. B. Longstreet, when he was president of the college.

Judge Longstreet, jurist, editor, author, minister, college president, belonged to an ingenious line. His father, William Longstreet, announced his invention of a steamboat before Fulton did, and tried his boat successfully on the Savannah river not long after Fulton had succeeded on the Hudson.

Judge Longstreet, he who whittled the Oxford gate, was graduated from Yale, began the practice of law at Litchfield, Conn.; became a legislator and a judge in Georgia; established The Augusta Sentinel; became a Methodist minister; was president successively of Emory college, Georgia; Centenary college, Louisiana; the University of Mississippi, South Carolina college and again president of the University of Mississippi, where he died in 1870. He was an uncle of the confederate general, James Longstreet.

TO WHOM IT MAY CONCERN:---AND NO OTHERS!

"I WANT TO TRY TO PUT 50,000 COPIES OF NEXT TUESDAY'S CHRONICLE IN THE HANDS OF PEOPLE WHO NEED TO KNOW THE TRUTH—WHETHER SOME OF THEM WANT TO OR NOT—AND I AM ASKING THOSE PEOPLE WHO FEEL AS I DO ABOUT THE PRESENT SITUATION IN GEORGIA TO HELP ME DO IT; THAT'S ALL."—THOMAS W. LOYLESS, EDITOR AUGUSTA CHRONICLE.

I do this out of deference to the two Atlanta newspapers which are carrying it at so much per inch; I don't want to get them mixed up in this thing without their knowledge and consent.

Also, it is an advertisment, because it has a purpose to serve; not exactly a selfish purpose, but, nevertheless, a specific and important purpose—at least, as I see it.

I am addressing it only to those who see the present situation in Georgia as I see it; the others may think about it as they please.

I see in the present situation in Georgia an urgent necessity—and a splendid opportunity—for arousing the best conscience of her own people against mob violence. Too many have been aroused FOR it heretofore.

All this has not so much to do with the Leo Frank lynching; for that horrible affair was but the outgrowth of what we had been sowing in Georgia for many years past.

When I say "we," I don't mean "we"—I mean such people as Tom Watson and his most "incurable" followers.

It is in an effort to offset and overcome this mob spirit in Georgia—which even has its "official organ" in Watson's Jeffersonian—that I have been printing a series of articles in The Augusta Chronicle.

And, now, I am getting to the advertisement:

But, first, I would like to be understod about it. Not that I expect to be understood by some, but I shall, at least, give them the opportunity to understand it—whether they want to or not.

I'm printing this "advertisement" in the Atlanta Constitution and Atlanta Journal, at a cost of over $100 for each paper—a "special" professional rate; may the Lord forgive them!—not with any view of making money out of it for The Augusta Chronicle (though I would, at least, like to "get our bait back") but, solely, with a view of having next Tuesday's Chronicle as widely calculated as possible.

That's all! And that's why I say I am addressing this advertisement only to those people who feel about this matter as I do—who want to see Georgia set right before the world and with her own conscience.

But, I may as well be perfectly candid and say it—I can't hope to do this with The Chronicle's normal circulation. This is exactly 9,350 Daily and 11,500 Sunday.

So, you see, The Chronicle—situated, as it is, on the side of the State—does not cover all of Georgia, by any means.

I am free to confess that Tom Watson circulates about ten times as many of his papers in Georgia as we do.

This does not speak well for Georgia—because there is not a line of news in Watson's papers, and seldom a word of Truth—just abuse, obsenity and sensationalism—but, still, it is a fact.

Now, then, what I am trying to do is to put next Tuesday's Chronicle in the hands of 50,000 Georgians, at least, and if possible, a few thousand on the outside.

But please understand this right at the outset—I am not trying to "make money" out of it for The Chronicle.

No, the only thing I am after is to get this particular issue of The Chronicle circulated as widely as possible.

And why? Because it will contain the whole "Slaton-Watson —"Law or Anarchy"—controversy brought down to date, as follows:

First—The original "Slaton or Watson; which?" article, of four pages.

Second—Judge Samuel B. Adams' masterly letter in defense of law and order; half-page.

Third—Names of all the Georgians who petitioned Governor Slaton to commute Leo Frank's sentence; with many other names and letters added since they were first printed; three pages.

Fourth—Voluntary letters from every part of Georgia, either commending or condemning the Slaton-Watson articles; six pages. Many new ones, which ought to be put before all the people, not only as showing the real sentiment of Georgia, but because of their "moral weight" in helping to determine this vital issue of Law and Order rightly.

Fifth—Newspaper comment from scores of Georgia weeklies—the dailies being as yet unwilling to speak out—together with intelligent and helpful comment by newspapers in neighboring states—about four pages—all helping to set Georgia right in the eyes of the country.

Sixth—A review of Tom Watson's attempted "reply" in the last issue of his Jeffersonian; more of his misrepresentations being shown up without mincing words. His entire case against Governor Slaton riddled by merely citing the record. There are about two pages of this, and if I do say so, it makes interesting reading. Not because it is particularly well written, but simply because it brings all the facts to bear against Tom Watson's mere unsupported assertions.

Seventh—And you will want to see this, and have others see it; just five years of Tom Watson's record in wholesale abuse and slander. He starts in with Christopher Columbus, calling him a "liar and a fraud," and works down to date with President Woodrow Wilson, calling him a "liar and a coward," the "tool of the trusts"—and a whole lot more, besides. To him Grover Cleveland was a "rotten hog," President Taft a pot-bellied traitor"; Bishop Candler a "pot-bellied priest" and some other things besides. And, of course, there are all the things he has said about every Georgia Senator, Congressman and everybody else for the past five years.

He has spared nobody, they are all "vile"; and, as Sydney Smith once said of Shelly—"he even speaks disrespectfully of the Equator."

I give an outline of next Tuesday's edition of The Chronicle just so you can determine for yourself whether or not it will be worth while to give it a wide circulation, both in and out of the state, in the present effort to redeem Georgia from incendiarism and mob rule.

If these articles have any merit at all—and hundreds of the best men and women in Georgia have, already, said they have—then, the only way they can be made effective is to distribute them far and wide.

If they will do any good in helping to remedy the present situation in Georgia—and, particularly, in helping to clear her name of some of the slime with which Watsonism has sweared it—then, the only good can come in putting this issue of The Chronicle into as many hands as possible.

So far, this has not been done; perhaps, not 30,000 people in Georgia have seen even the first article, and not 15,000 have seen the subsequent articles.

Not 5,000 outside of Georgia have seen any of them.

For, as already explained, I cannot undertake to do this single-handed and alone. The expense is too great.

Right here, it may be interesting to note what I have already caused The Chronicle to spend on this work. Here it is, as the bookkeeper furnishes it to me:

Extra composing room pay roll	$197.08
Extra white paper consumed	352.08
Extra postage paid	146.50
Extra milling room expense	54.90
Extra expense addressing wrappers, etc.	86.00
Total	$816.04

An increase in The Chronicle's weekly cash expense of over $400 per week; and even that isn't all—The Chronicle has lost 79 old subscribers, or $456; or a total for the "debit" side of $1,272; or about $200 per day. But that's all right.

Of course, some of this has come back to it in "paper sales" and "new subscribers"—the latter, however, averaging less than three (3) months each. The record for the past two weeks showing as follows:

Extra paper sales, less returns	$331.60
204 new subscribers added at an average of $1.48 each	$302.78
Total	$633.73

I mention the above, not by way of asking for help, or anything of that sort, but, simply because it has been charged that The Chronicle entered upon this work "for pay"; that it had been "hired" to do it, or that I had.

What The Chronicle gets out of it, and what I get out of it, is truthfully shown above—except for that little extra item of "satisfaction"; the satisfaction of having performed a duty to your State.

Now, with these lights before you, if you feel that you want to assist in giving this "Appeal to Georgians, in Behalf of Georgia" as wide a circulation as possible, you are given an opportunity to do so—at as near cost as I can figure it. Here it is:

The white paper will cost us one (1) cent per copy; the postage (extra) one cent; the cost of production, writing wrappers, etc., one (1) cent; or, say, about three (3) cents per copy.

So, let that be the price. For as many copies as you may care to have The Chronicle mail out for you next Tuesday, or as few.

Just send in the names with three cents for each one and we will do the rest.

And if you haven't any money, or don't feel like spending it, send in a few names anyway—and I will send papers to them for nothing.

I, simply, want to get this particular issue of The Chronicle circulated as widely as possible—and, as stated, I cant do it all by myself.

That's why I am running this "advertisement"— to let others who feel as I do about it know exactly what I am trying to do.

If they don't want to co-operate in this good work, they needn't to. I am, simply, giving them the opportunity.

But, if they do, I would like to hear from them, with as many names as possible, before next Tuesday.

I am taking a chance and printing 50,000 copies. It will take that many to meet Tom Watson's publication on an even footing (as to circulation, I mean not otherwise—God forbid!) in every town and county in Georgia.

Think it over, you who want to see an end put to this man's devilish work in Georgia—and do as you please about it. But do it quick!

And, remember, you are NOT doing it for me, or for The Chronicle, or for Jack Slaton—but for Georgia!

Yours for the Truth and the Redemption of Georgia's Honor,

THOS. W. LOYLESS,
Editor and Manager of The Augusta Chronicle.
Augusta, Ga., September 24th.

P. S.: While I'm at it, I want to thank those 204 people who have voluntarily subscribed for The Chronicle during the past two weeks. Nearly all of them have written to me personally, but I have as yet not had a chance to answer their letters. I suppose they have understood why. If not, I'll tell 'em—been working from fifteen to eighteen hours a day, digging out Tom Watson's record and answering his crazy charges about Slaton and others. I am, also, supposed to look after the business office, "between times," but I have just had to let that go. I don't know enough about business, anyway, to worry me much—and I care even less. Still, I know those 204 new subscribers will be a help, in making up for those who got "huffy" and quit—and so I thank them for getting in the "trench" with us.

Scottish Rite Masons' Convalescent Home Points Way To Health and Happy Days for Crippled Children

New Charity Brings Sunshine to Hearts of Dixie's Maimed Tots

By Britt Craig.

Forrest Adair, who loves a good song, a good story and a good deed, had carried me out the East Lake drive through Druid Hills to the Scottish Rite Masons' Convalescent Home for Crippled Children, the only orthopedic institution in the south.

"Walk right in," she said. "We shall go directly to see Becky."

It was thus inferred—and later justified—that "Becky" was an institutional showpiece, like the most impressive painting in the reception parlor, or the heirloom vase in the hallway.

There was personal and institutional pride in Miss Carter's assurance that "we'd go directly to see Becky."

Perhaps she wanted to display Becky to us first of all so that, having been duly overwhelmed by the charms of Becky, we would be thrown into a state of unpreparedness to perceive any institutional discrepancies that might greet us on our tour of inspection.

Miss Carter ushered us through the twin buildings. In the reception hall of the second building she stopped, and motioning for us to tip-toe, called into an adjoining room in mock telephone summons:

INTRODUCING MISS BLOOMING.

"Hello, Miss Blooming! Are you there?"

We halted in our steps.

A child's cheery voice came from somewhere in the back of the building.

"Hey-o! Yetthum, I'm here! 'S 'at you?"

"Yes. Are you coming over to visit us this afternoon, Miss Blooming?"

"Yetthum, I'm conthwiderwin it. Will you be at home all th' afternoon?"

"To be sure. Will you come in your machine?"

Miss Carter discontinued the mock phoning.

Can't walk? Why, her voice had been that of a lively sprite! One could no more associate the joy in it with deformity than sunshine with tears!

We turned to Miss Carter to speak.

"Hey-o Mith Cahtan," interrupted the voice. "I'm tomin' wight over. I'm bwingin' the childwen."

"Do bring the family," urged the nurse.

Forrest Adair and I stood awaiting for a laughing child to come skipping from the rear of the building, hurrying on nimble legs into the arms of the nurse.

That was all any stranger, hearing the cheer of that unseen voice, could expect.

But bolts come from the blue, rhapsodies from the hearts of the ugly, gems of song from beggars, and Becky came to us by a means of locomotion that consisted of one hand which dragged a misshapen body and two lifeless legs and an arm.

THE "CHILDREN."

The "children" she had promised to bring was a tattered rag doll, which she held in her teeth.

Her blue eyes were merry. Her pretty teeth flashed in symphony with the happy humor that spread over her freckled cheeks. Her curls were jet black. Her head was shaped like a doll's.

She crawled and slid to the feet of Miss Carter. She proffered the rag doll.

"The family sorter finks it's time fo' tea," she laughed.

In the presence of Becky, Mr. Adair and I had become as different and solicitous as humble subjects admitted by lowly dispensation to the presence of Her Ladyship. In acknowledgement of our formal introduction, we bowed and salaamed with awed respect.

Most anybody with a pull can commune with nobility. But it's a special distinction to be introduced to Becky.

A regal robe and scepter and she could have graced a fairy tale, from whence it was pleasant to imagine she had stepped.

"Oh, I know you." She pointed an accusing finger to Mr. Adair. "You'th Mithther Fohweth 'Dair, anw you dot thumpthin' to do with thith hothpital—you been out here befowah."

Beauty showering its favors upon him, or royalty seeking his counsel, could not thrilled Forrest Adair more than this. With an exuberance you'd hardly expect of a mighty realty man, he bundled Becky into his arms and snuggled her to his chest.

I imagine he did his own children that way when they were tots like Becky. He couldn't have been any more enthusiastic about even his own.

To be remembered by Becky was a crowning glory.

Just as the tattered rag doll is the dearest to the heart of the child, Becky, though broken and maimed, has been a plaything of the Fates. From cradle days until now—and she is only four—she has been shunted about from home to home.

Not until she came to the crippled children's hospital did she know a permanent home. And never until then was there any hope for her cure.

She has this repertoire of answers for the questions that are put to her by strangers:

"I'm Webecca Booming, foah yeawth ol', goin' on five. I dot thickth mo' thiththerth, but they're all whole."

HER RECITATION.

And then she recites for those who wish her little tragedy of the uncled fly, which concludes with the following line:

"O-o-o-o-o-o but ith cold."

Narrating the last line in description of the fly's plight, she embellishes it with a gesture, bringing her arms across her bosom in mock shivering. This she performs by bringing the lifeless arm around in the grasp of the useful one.

She smiles wanly in excuse for this, as though to say she could do better if the other arm wasn't helpless.

It makes you want to grab Becky into your arms and obey the impulse to smother her with kisses and promise her anything on earth—and keep the promise.

"And a little child shall lead them!" Children like Becky, yes! Folks who might not care for the hospital can't help falling in love with Becky.

The neglect of the gods who fashioned her will be compensated by the state of perpetual pamperdom in which Becky will bask as long as there is a visitor or attache around the institution.

The Sunday editor when he assigned me to this story desired that I go out and write up the hospital in general. But Becky did not enter into his or my calculations, although she stole into the heart and has taken permanent residence there.

Here I find I've contributed probably more space to Becky than will be alloted the hospital. Well, I have this to say: Becky deserves it. The printed page of the Sunday newspaper will not be Becky's only or greatest agency of immortalization. There is a wealth in store for Becky, and she'll yet walk on two good feet to the foot of the rainbow.

The hospital in which Becky became the charter inmate is destined to become Atlanta society's pet charity. It is the only institution in the south where children can come for orthopedic treatment. It is only an infant of a hospital now, but before two years have passed it will rank with the biggest in the nation.

It is one of the outgrowths of the benevolent work carried on for years by one of the city's best known surgeons, Dr. Michael Hoke, surgeon-in-chief of the Scottish Rite hospital. Although it will be maintained largely by charity, the Scottish Rite Masonic body has insured its permanency.

OPENED LAST THURSDAY.

The hospital opened last Thursday. It will now accommodate twenty patients, but only sixteen will be permitted at present. This number has already entered, having come from all parts of the south. It is not a community, fraternal or sectarian institution.

Atlantans will probably remember the pencil campaign carried on downtown just about this time last year by young girls and women composing the Ladies' Hospital auxiliary, headed by Mrs. W. C. Wardlaw, chairman. The $1,100 gained by the sale of pencils at that time was the fund which furnished the nucleus of the crippled children's hospital.

How it came about was in this manner:

Forrest Adair, a philanthropist with many a good deed accredited to his page on the Eternal Ledger, was confronted with a charity case of "club-foot." He sent the child to Dr. Hoke. When Dr. Hoke had performed his orthopedical duty, Mr. Adair sent around for his bill. It was $5 and some odd cents.

Mr. Adair was astonished. He went to see Dr. Hoke.

"It was a charity case, and I acted accordingly. I only charge actual expenses in such cases," he explained.

The $5 represented the ambulance bill.

"Now, see here, doctor," Mr. Adair remonstrated, "this puts me in an embarrassing position. I shall, from time to time, have other charity patients, and I wouldn't, under such circumstances, want to send them to you."

"You may do as you choose. I would prefer that you do," replied the orthopedist.

"Well, let's talk this matter over," urged Mr. Adair.

Whereupon the philanthropist and orthopedist got together on the subject of charity and orthopedics. Mr. Adair heard for the first time how Dr. Hoke for years had been quietly serving the cause of charity by performing, without charge, all cases of orthopedic ailments that had come to his notice.

In the rear of his office he had installed a clinic. His assistant did nothing but charity work. He had succeeded in influencing two of the hospitals to contribute free beds for his patients to have a place where they might recover from their operations. He and his work were sorely in need of an institution where they could be kept indefinitely under trained and constant care.

NOT ONE IN THE SOUTH.

There was not an orthopedic hospital in the south. And the practice of orthopedia had made such rapid progress. No longer was the curved spine, paralysis of the spine, infantile paralysis, "clubfoot," hip dislocation and a number of other infantile afflictions considered a hopeless curse of fate—but curable ailments.

Statistics show there are 4,000 crippled children in Georgia—a staggering majority of them born so.

Hundreds of their parents are not aware that their deformities are curable.

Just as it would affect you, Dr. Hoke's revelations set Mr. Adair thinking. Not long afterward Mrs. Elizabeth Gregg, daughter of Mr. Adair, was intercepted by her father in the act of donning her gloves and furs for departure from the home.

"And where are you going?" the father questioned, idly.

"The ladies' auxiliay board is meeting today to devise some charity scheme," she replied.

Her father, also bent on a mission of charity, but with a more definite idea, perhaps, of his purpose than the ladies' auxiliary board, accompanied Mrs. Gregg to the tea room of the Georgian Terrace, where the meeting was scheduled to take place.

MR. ADAIR'S SPEECH.

Mr. Adair is a right good speaker. Then, too, he is at home with the ladies.

The speech he made before the ladies' auxiliary board that day in a plea for funds to help Dr. Hoke establish an orthopedic hospital might not go down into history as one of the classics of oratory, but the prompt action of the ladies' auxiliary board in adopting his idea was fitting proof of its worthiness as a plain, result-getting argument.

The subsequent pencil campaign of the ladies netted $1,100 for the hospital nucleus.

Then Mr. Adair submitted the same argument to the Scottish Rite body, who promptly pledged its work and its funds to assure the permanent success of the hospital. Now charitably-inclined social workers and society folk are entering into the spirit of the idea enthusiastically. Some of the city's most renowned practitioners, too, are lending splendid aid.

And what a great work is to be performed! There are countless Beckys in Dixie awaiting only the touch of the surgeon's knife to redeem them from crippledhood and return them to joyous mothers' arms, whole and sound and happy.

Where hitherto superstition has condoned and accounted for the miserable plights of deformed children, it will now be criminal to let them remain so.

Dr. E. V. Keller, Dr. O. L. Miller and Dr. Hugh Battey, orthopedists.

Dr. Theo Toepel, physical director.

Dr. W. E. Campbell and Dr. Newton Craig, eye, ear nose and throat specialists.

Dr. L. B. Clark and Dr. George K. Vardeu, children's specialists.

Dr. M. F. Turner, Dr. Charles N. Hughes and Dr. S. L. Silverman, dental specialists.

The board of managers is composed of Thomas K. Glenn, president; Forrest Adair, vice-president; Mrs. W. C. Wardlaw, secretary; J. C. Greenfield, treasurer, and David Marx, John Gilmore and Mrs. J. H. Hilsman.

Organization was perfected last May, but the hospital was not thrown open until last week, because of the delay in securing the services of Miss Carter, the specialist.

It is impossible to operate an establishment of this character without the supervision of an expert in orthopedics. Miss Carter is one of the most renowned orthopedists of the Pacific coast. She had longed to live in the south, and eagerly grasped the opportunity when the offer was made by Dr. Hoke. But it was not without delay that she managed to sever her connections with the Seattle institution. For Miss Carter, although she wears the plain, simple garb of the customary nurse, is no simple nurse. She has devoted years to an assiduous study of orthopedics.

She and Dr. Hoke will be guiding geniuses of the Atlanta hospital. Miss Carter will conduct its manifold affairs and Dr. Hoke will wield the reconstructing scalpel.

The buildings in which the hospital has been set up are two bungalows, thrown together by a connecting hallway. They are adequate for hospital purposes on the small scale the institution will be operated until the middle of next year, or later.

Hundreds of visitors have gone out in the two weeks the hospital doors have been open to the public. The names of many of Atlanta's most conspicuous society figures adorn the pages of the visitors' roll alongside written assurance that each visitor will do her share in aiding the hospital work.

GOOD HEALTH PUBLISHING CO.

Sebago-Wobelo Camp Fire Girls. The first and only official camp fire book. By Ethel Rogers, with introduction by Mrs. Luther Halsey Gulick, founder of the camp fire movement. Written at Lake Sebago, Maine, last summer.

The camp fire girl movement is getting to be one of the most interesting subjects we have to discuss—it is of as much importance now as the Boy Scout club. Do you know there are now more than 100,000 camp fire girls, divided into over 5,000 camps, and these camps can be found in every state in the United States.

Sebago-Wohelo is a very appropriate name for the Camp Fire Girls. "Wohelo" is the watchword of the camp fires. It is made of the first two letters of the three words that "embody" their motto—"Work, Health, Love." It was at Lake Sebago, in Maine, that the first camp fire club was organized, the founders being Dr. and Mrs. Luther Halsey Gulick, who in their summer camp on the lake, four years ago, started the camp fire movement.

This interesting book should be read by all girls, for it has the freshness, the naturalness of nature; it shows you the joyousness of a girl's life out in the open; how they work, live and play, enjoying each day's pleasures of cooking, sewing, taking long hikes over the hills, through the woods and making little incidents of special interest to each other. Camp fire clubs also teach girls the value of friendship and co-operation.

Neurasthenia, or Nervous Exhaustion. With chapters on Christian Science and hypnotism, etc. By Dr. J. H. Kellogg, LL.D., superintendent of the Battle Creek sanitarium. The writer of this volume is a well-known physician, who for about forty years has held very forcibly the same views as set forth by Dr. Jacobi, and he is a very able contributor to the subject of practical medical knowledge.

While it has been issued a year since the publication of this book, the demand has been so great that the second edition has been published. The chapter on "Worry" is one that should be read by every man and woman in America, and even by the members of all American households. "DON'T WORRY—CHEER UP!"

Among other useful and instructive books brought out by this company are "Dieting a Delight," "The New Cookery," by Miss Lena Frances Cooper, chief dietitian at Battle Creek sanitarium; "Constipation," "Colon Hygiene," etc., by Dr. Kellogg.

THE PORTLAND SURVEY.

This discussion of school questions by educational experts is arranged in four divisions, under which valuable and practical recommendations are made concerning:

Organizations and Administrations, Instructional Needs, Buildings and Health, Attendance, Records and Cost. Professor Ellwood P. Cubberly, who has written this instructive work, has also written a very interesting preface for his readers.

Problems in Elementary School Administration. A constructive study applied to New York city. By Frank P. Bachman, author of "Principles of Education," etc.

The above books are among Professor Hanus' School Efficiency series and are the outgrowth of the New York city school survey, but the same problems are universal and the methods of solution recommended as applicable north and south. The book is one of great practical importance to school administration. (Published by the World Book company, Yonkers-on-Hudson, New York.)
